Expose Huge Smuggling Ring Operating on Czech Frontier

Americans Believed Involved

Officials Spring Border Traps

FRANKFURT — (AP) — Secret agents moved last night against a massive smuggling ring reputed to include American service men and civilian employes.

Months of secret inquiry preluded the international crackdown by Air Force and Army criminal investigation agents, and civil police of France, Italy and other countries.

Blazing gunfire Thursday night between U.S. troops and Czech guards on the border near Schirnding, Germany, apparently is connected with the crackdown. German police firing on a smuggler's truck as it sped to the border were shot at by the Czech border patrol. U.S. troops rushed to the scene and exchanged more shots with the Czechs.

The case has been sent to high diplomatic levels to be threshed out.

Air Force spokesmen said traps were set—and sprung—on smugglers at four points along the west German frontier. There was no indication how many arrests resulted, but the spokesman said the smuggling plot has wide ramifications.

One man alone reaped a harvest of $40,000 from his illegal traffic, the announcement asserted. Just a week ago Gen. Lucius D. Clay, U.S. Military Governor, said $200,000,000 of goods had been smuggled from the Allied zone annually. This is about a third the value of lawful exports.

CZECHS FOOLED

In the gun fight near Schirnding, 30 U.S. soldiers wished they were a battalion, so they pretended they were a battalion and "fooled the Czechs", their leader said.

Lt. Francis A. Richter, 24, of Jackson, Mich., said his little band faced possibly 200 Czechs.

Richter, two years out of West Point, said that after the shooting stopped:

"I had the men walk past a lighted place in full view of the Czechs, then circle around and come back as though they were new men.

"I kept the men loading and cocking their weapons as though we had a lot of gun power. Then when I got my field kitchen set up I made the men march through the coffee line four times each.

"The next day a Czech major who took part in the negotiations insisted we had a whole battalion."

Richter reported the Czechs had been shooting waist high with light machineguns.

No American were wounded The Czechs said there were no casualties on their side, but that two men in the truck were injured seriously by the first burst of fire from the German police.

Senate Tax Fight Looms

WASHINGTON— (AP) —Majority sentiment appears to have developed within the Senate Finance committee against increasing federal taxes.

This sentiment is based on the belief of members that congressional appropriations for the next year can be held to a level where the government can pay something on the $252,000,000,000 national debt without any tax boost.

There was little or no prospect, however, that any major legislation will hit the floor for debate before the end of the month.

Taking his stand on the $4,000,000,000 tax increase which President Truman asked as a key point in his economic program, Senator Byrd (D-Va) told a reporter he has made up his mind to oppose it if Congress practices "any reasonable economy" that assures budget balancing.

SUPERINTENDENT NAMED

DEFIANCE —(AP)— Joe G. Deyan was named acting superintendent of Defiance public schools yesterday.

Mayor's Race Still Clouded

City Democratic leaders, seeking a strong candidate for mayor, are eyeing Councilman-at-large Michael Mihalick as a likely prospect, claim local political observers.

Reports on the development are said to have seeped out of secret party sessions, but Mihalick himself did not confirm them Saturday night.

"At the present time, I expect to be a candidate for re-election as councilman-at-large," Mihalick stated in reply to a News-Journal inquiry.

The deadline for filing declarations of candidacy is Feb. 2.

In the other camp, GOP councilmen met yesterday with Ralph Hardy, executive committee chairman, and James V. Will, chairman of the central committee.

Reports indicated they discussed who would seek re-election and what candidates would be run against the incumbent Democrats.

DEMS HOLD FOUR SEATS

At present, besides their one councilman-at-large seat, Democrats Harry M. Bowman, Fred Miller and Nelson Swihart hold seats in the Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth wards respectively.

No decisions were reached, however, and definite information will not be forthcoming until Wednesday night when the executive committee meets to try to pick a slate.

It was learned that at least five persons were discussed for the mayoralty post, including Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, former Councilman Russell Porch, and ex-Mayor William J. Locke.

The Democrats plan several meetings this week, but when any final decision will be made is not known. Mentioned along with Mihalick for the mayoralty nomination are Charles Anglin, former councilman, and Nelson Swihart, Sixth ward councilman.

Girl Survives Horror Trip Through Sewer

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Swift sewer waters bore a 12-year-old girl through sub-street blackness for nearly a quarter of a mile yesterday before she was rescued.

The girl, Margaret Renz, had fallen into a storm sewer while playing follow-the-leader with other children, firemen said.

Then Paul Saro, 19, heard the children's screams and ran to various sewer openings until he arrived at one where he heard crying. Firemen, soon there, pulled her out.

Physicians at St. Luke's hospital said she nearly drowned but thought she was in no immediate danger.

Student Kills Wife, Himself

AKRON —(AP)— An Ohio State university student shot his wife to death on a busy downtown street last night then killed himself, Detective Captain John Struzenski said.

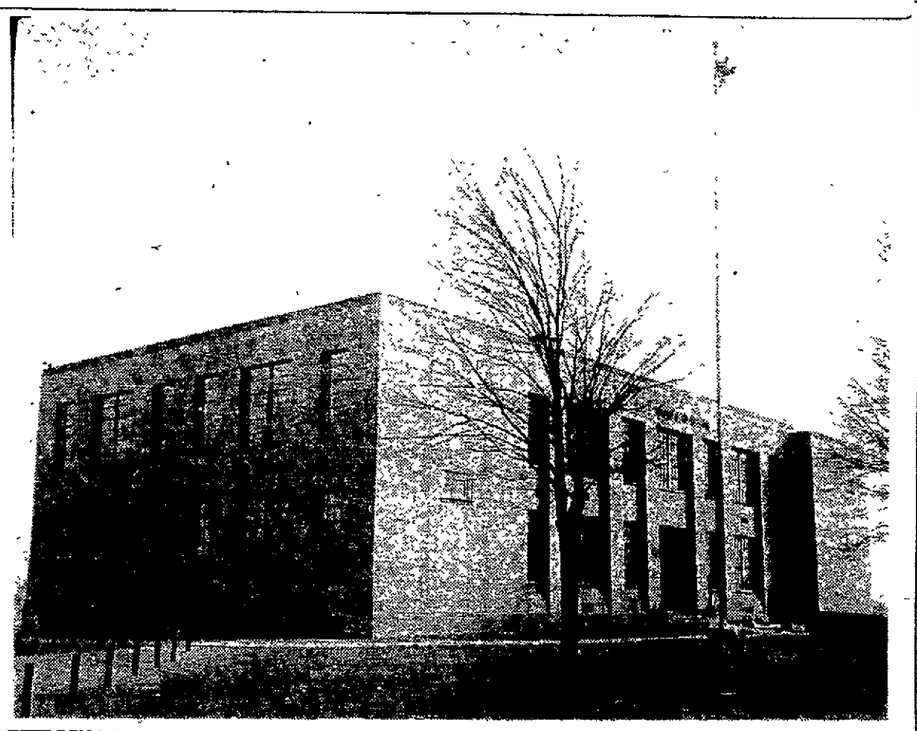
The detective identified the couple tentatively as John C. Anderson, 26, and his wife, Marian, 22. Anderson lived at Columbus; and his wife, from whom he was separated, had been living at the YWCA here, Struzenski added.

Mrs. Anderson died on High street, four bullets from a German pistol in her head. Anderson died shortly after reaching City hospital.

Fear Hungarians To Employ Drugs

LONDON — (AP) — The Tablet, a British Roman Catholic weekly, declares Hungarian communists plan to administer a will-destroying drug to Josef Cardinal Mindszenty before his trial on charges of high treason.

The magazine printed an article it said was drawn up on instructions of the Hungarian Cardinal Primate before his arrest. The article is entitled "Trial By Actedron." The weekly says actedron is the will-destroying drug.



BUILDING READY—When classes open Monday morning at the East Mansfield school, nearly 150 new pupils will be on hand to attend sessions in the four new classrooms which have been added to the school by completion of second floors on the north and south sides of the building shown above. New students will be transferred to East Mansfield school from the one-room Beer school, the seventh grade of Woodville school, and the fourth and sixth grades of Lincoln Heights school. Construction on the additions to the building was started early last summer. The school, an up-to-date brick structure, now contains 12 classrooms. It has a gymnasium and cafeteria. Showers and a locker room have been installed in the basement as part of the improvement project. (Additional pictures appear on page 16.)

U. S. Airman Shot Down

Greek Guerrillas Blamed In Death

ATHENS — (AP) — Lt. Col. Selden R. Edner of San Jose, Calif., an American air observer, and his Greek pilot have been shot down by communist-led guerrillas and both are believed to have been killed.

The Greek air staff and the U. S. embassy announced the incident late yesterday.

U. S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady said Edner was making an unarmed observation flight over the Karpenisi battle area north of Athens when the plane crashed in hilly country.

(The guerrilla version, as carried by Tanjug, said the guerrillas have documents proving "American officers not infrequently take part in military missions." It said that: "Thus, on Jan. 21, a plane which was machine-gunning and bombing noncombatant inhabitants was shot down in the town of Karpenisi which had been liberated by the Democratic (Greek communist) army."

Fear Four Dead In Plane Crash

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. —(AP)— A National Guard plane with four aboard crashed near Fort Eustis late yesterday and all those aboard apparently were killed, state police reported last night.

Fort Eustis said army transportation corps divers had taken one body from Skiffs Creek, into which the plane plunged. Diving operations for other bodies ceased with darkness.

Diplomatic Shake Up Due

Changes Hinted for Five Major Offices

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman and Secretary of State Acheson are expected to shake up top American diplomatic representation abroad in the near future. Several ambassadors will be replaced, some because they insist on retiring.

Likewise, diplomatic authorities here expect that in taking over as secretary of state, Acheson will make some changes among his top policy advisers, probably in advance of any general reorganization of the state department along lines which Acheson himself has already worked out.

Five major diplomatic posts now figure in speculation about possible changes. They are:

Moscow — General Walter Bedell Smith; Nanking-Ambassador John Leighton Stuart; Paris—Jefferson Caffery; Buenos Aires—James Bruce; and The Hague—Herman B. Baruch.

The problems of finding replacements for such men is one of the tasks awaiting joint action by Acheson and President Truman.

In shakeups inside the department, at least two top jobs may be filled fairly soon by Acheson. Paul Daniels, chief of the Office of Inter-American Affairs, is expected to go out of the department to an important ambassadorship in Latin America.

Joseph C. Satterthwaite, who has been director of the office of Near Eastern and African Affairs (including Palestine) for only a few months, is nevertheless slated for reassignment abroad fairly soon because of the law limiting service of foreign service officers in the state department to a period of four years at a time.

2 Killed, 13 Hurt

BERLIN, N. J.—(AP)—A seashore-bound bus collided head-on with a car on the White Horse pike last night killing a man and his wife and injuring 13 others, including two children of the dead couple.

World Food Meet Slated

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The hope of President Truman that both Russia and Argentina might join other nations in discussing the world's food problem is apparently bearing fruit.

Both countries have signified their intention to attend the International Wheat Agreement conference here, beginning Wednesday.

Sixty-one nations have been invited; 38 already have accepted.

The wheat meeting is open to all the United Nations. Its objective will be to divide up the world market among the major wheat exporting countries and to devise a system of maximum and minimum prices for the bread grain that would protect both growers and consumers.

Leaves Grandma For Army Career

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. —(AP)— The army has one recruit who won't need the new "motherly love" treatment that teen-age rookies have been getting.

He's a 60-year-old grandfather, Cornelius Van Zelfden.

The greatest protest to his reenlistment came from a grandchild, who said: "You ought to stay home with Grandma."

Stripling, Foe of Subversives, Tells Story

Takes 'Rest' After 10 Thankless Years

By FRANK CONNIFF

A guy familiarly called "Strip" is putting his cue in the rack down in Washington after 10 thankless years of flushing termites from their hiding niches within the American structure.

Did I say "thankless?" Perhaps I exaggerate. Probably the vast bulk of his fellow Americans understand the mighty service Robert Stripling has rendered to their country during a decade as chief investigator for the House Committee on un-American Activities.

GRIM FACTS

Robert Stripling's own story of his grim battle against communism begins next Sunday, Jan. 30, in The News-Journal. He reveals inside facts on the red menace that every American should know.

They — the rank-and-file Americans—have supported him with sympathy and encouragement down through the years when his committee was serving as an open target for the "liberals," the myopic editorialists who condemned Stalinism abroad but condoned it at home, and the unbridled guttersniping of the Communist smear spacialists.

Yes, the American public is undoubtedly grateful to this still-youthful guy called "Strip." But the weary cynicism which sometimes shrouds "Strip" as he assays the national picture stems from honest causes. He is probably the most unappreciated patriot of the day, a man whose signal services to democracy have met with scorn, derision, misunderstanding, and ever persecution.

Storms Hinder Rescue

Stock Starving As Snows Rage

RENO, Nev.—(AP)— Continuing snow storms yesterday blocked all efforts to rescue eastern Nevada's starving livestock herds.

At the same time, Gov. J. Lee proclaimed a "state of emergency" throughout Utah and instructed all state agencies to make an all-out effort to provide feed for snowbound sheep and cattle.

New snow impeded rescue operations. Wind piled the snow in drifts in some areas, closing roads which had been opened to permit trucks to haul feed to the sheep. Stockmen claim approximately 600,000 sheep are in distress in Utah, alone.

On some Nevada ranges the cattle, wallowing in three feet of snow, have been without feed for a week.

An emergency supply of alfalfa has been found in the western part of the state. Sixteen air force flying boxcars stand ready to fly it to the snow-blocked zones. But all airports and most highways are closed by a new storm that started Friday night and was expected to continue through today.

The stockmen said proposed air lift operations would be ineffective because half the feed dropped to animals would be lost.

Sen. Pat McCarran (D-Nev.) was trying to get army tanks brought into the area.

George N. Swallow, secretary of the United Stockmen's Association at Ely, said that as soon as weather permits opening of the airport there, he will ask the air force to fly the feed in from Yerington, Nev.

Peiping Surrenders

Separate Peace Terms Arranged

NANKING —(AP)—Peiping made its long-expected separate surrender deal with the communists last night even as the Rickety Chinese government sought a nationwide peace at almost any price.

Gen. Fu Tso-Yi's north China headquarters announced a cease fire had ended the 40-day Red siege of Peiping and that some units of Fu's 125,000-man army had already begun an agreed march out of the city.

Terms reported included removal of Fu's name from the communists' "war criminals" list.

The communists had treated Peiping gingerly throughout the siege, declaring they did not want to destroy that intellectual and spiritual center of China. A more practical reason probably was that they wanted it intact for their capital.

Czechs Hold 60 As Spies

PRAGUE —(AP)— Czechoslovak security police were reported yesterday to be holding 60 persons at Bratislava on charges of spying for American intelligence services in Austria.

This was one of the largest hauls in a series of mass arrests made recently throughout Czechoslovakia.

Thus far the official statement promised last Monday on the arrest of Gen. Josef Kuttlwassr and a number of other army officers and civilians has not been issued. That group was picked up early in January on charges of plotting to overthrow Czechoslovakia's communist government.

Kuttlwassr was one of the leaders of the Prague uprising in 1945 that finally drove the Germans out. He is in Pankrac prison, and it is known that his lawyer saw him there four days ago.

Officials maintained silence "for security reasons" on the identity of the eight or nine generals who were reported to have been arrested with Kuttlwassr, or in a separate roundup.

The Ministry of Information said it was unable to either confirm or deny the reports. It added that it hoped to issue a statement next week.

Escapes In Crash

Temperature At 100 Mark In Antarctic

LONDON—(AP)—The Colonial office reported it was 100 degrees fahrenheit on the edge of the antarctic yesterday — with blizzards.

Four members of the Falklands Islands Dependencies survey found the warm spot on a 1,000-foot summit on Deception island in the South Shetland group.

Members of the party explained Deception island is of volcanic origin.

Near the base of the summit the party plowed through a blizzard with visibility reduced to a few yards.

PTA Backs Comic Book Censorship

City Teacher Heads Meeting

With R. Y. Davis, 441 Glessner avenue, leading the way as moderator, members of the North Central and Northwestern districts of the Ohio PTA congress went on record yesterday as favoring censorship of objectionable comic books at the source of publication rather than on the newsstands.

Davis led the discussion in this, the second in a series of five meetings. The conferences are being held to discuss the problem thoroughly before the group makes final recommendations in April for eliminating questionable or undesirable comic books, movies and radio programs.

Clergymen, educators, radio representatives, and juvenile experts spoke before the group, exploring every side of the question, according to Davis.

The group agreed that the problem of the objectionable pastimes should be met constructively by giving the children "something good to replace the evil that is taken away."

Parents were urged to provide better books around the house and to encourage more use of the public libraries, as another means of holding their children's attention to good reading matter.

According to Davis, the other three panels will be held as follows: Feb. 18-19 at Columbus; March 18-19 at Cincinnati, and the final session in April at Cleveland.

The Mansfield teacher had charge of the program and audience participation at Toledo.

Bath Battle Again Heads For Courts

CINCINNATI — (AP) — The "Battle of the Bath" still rages and apparently it's headed for the courts.

It's the case in which Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scott of Covington, Ky., have protested to Cincinnati area Rent Director Stephen Young over a rental "contract" limiting them to one tub bath a week and providing all members of the family shall not take a bath on the same night.

Mrs. William Griffin, the landlady, said flatly yesterday, "They had hot and cold water as long as they paid their rent."

The Scotts have been ordered by Mrs. Griffin to vacate the property by Feb 14.

4 Killed When 'Dud' Explodes

HOPE, Ark.—(AP)—Explosion of a shell which proved alive instead of a "dud" killed four persons operating a private salvage enterprise near an inactive Army proving ground here yesterday. Three others were injured seriously.

State police said the dead and injured had been removing unexploded shells from a restricted area of the southwestern proving ground reservation, pulling out the powder and selling the cartridges for scrap metal.

30 Days In a Well

ASHEVILLE, N. C. —(AP)— Buttons, an 11-year-old spitzcollie dog, spent 30 days in a 30-foot hole in the ground, and was not much worse for his experience following his rescue yesterday. The dog was discovered at the bottom of a 30-foot abandoned well.

Gambling Drive Hits Jackpot

Lancaster Paper Screams Protest

COLUMBUS — (AP) — State Liquor Director Oscar L. Fleckner last night defended his department's raid on the Eagles club at Lancaster. It had been called a "sneak-punch" by the Lancaster Eagle-Gazette.

The Lancaster newspaper, in a front page editorial, assailed the department's raid, stating it was "unjust and intolerable."

"Lancaster has been given a black eye with a sneak punch," the editorial said. "We don't like it and we intend to say so!"

Anthony A. Rutkowski, chief of the liquor department's enforcement division, and an aid, visited the Eagles club Thursday night and confiscated six slot machines.

He said later the club, which holds a private club liquor permit, would be cited to the state liquor control board for possessing gambling devices.

In a statement last night Fleckner said he was sure Fairfield county was not selected as a bad example or singled out for undeserved or unfavorable state-wide publicity.

He said:

"As chief enforcement officer Anthony A. Rutkowski is charged with the primary responsibility of the enforcement of all laws applicable to permittees.

"The law is clear, I believe, and I'm expecting Rutkowski to do his job. While I was not previously informed of any contemplated action in Fairfield county, this is not unusual.

NO PERSECUTIONS

"I am sure that Fairfield county was not selected as a bad example or singled out for undeserved or unfavorable state-wide publicity. There will be no persecutions but all major violations of the liquor control act will be prosecuted in strict accordance of the law."

"Why Lancaster?" the editorial was headed.

"Lancaster and Fairfield county," it began, "are again the butt of undeserved and unfavorable state-wide publicity and again the local public is justifiably indignant that we have been singled out for such unfair discrimination. This time we are stigmatized by a gambling raid conducted by a new state official from Cuyahoga county, where notorious gambling clubs are running full blast."

In Cleveland, Sheriff Joe Sweeney of Cuyahoga county, said, "There are no gambling joints in Cuyahoga county. If they know where there are any, let them show them to me."

The Eagle-Gazette, in its editorial yesterday, touched further on gambling with: "This city and county are as clean of the tinge of organized gambling as any county can be. The strict surveillance of our Lancaster and Fairfield county law enforcers has barred any infringement by racketeers or organized gamblers."

Liquor Enforcement Chief Rutkowski declared: "It will be my policy to stamp out all gambling in places that hold liquor permits, especially gambling by slot machines. And, that incudes private clubs."

Asks Appeal On Decision

COLUMBUS—(AP)— Gov. Frank J Lausche last night said he was "deeply disturbed and distressed" by a court decision that it's illegal for the state to confiscate liquor in places where permits have been revoked.

The Governor asked Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy to appeal from the ruling made by Common Pleas Judge Joseph M. Clifford in Columbus Friday.

He also declared the office of former Atty. Gen. Hugh S. Jenkins failed to challenge a court decision which paved the way for issuance of more liquor permits.

"Instead of an appeal having been filed," he said in a press conference, "it appears there was a conscious willingness to comply with the decision that supposedly made mandatory the wholesale issuance of new permits."

Congressman M'Gregor Opens New Opinion Poll

Uses District Views As Guide In Voting

WASHINGTON—(AP)— Rep. J. Harry McGregor, West Lafayette Republican, is seeking the views of his constituents again this year on the major issues facing Congress.

He is sending a 12-point questionnaire to people in all walks of life in his central Ohio congressional district—the 17th.

McGregor says that as usual he will use the answers to guide him in voting.

The 2,500 questionnaires are going out to Democratic and Republican committeemen and committeewomen, all public officeholders, leaders of farm, labor and civic organizations, men in the professions and in business.

And the questionnaires will find their way to the places McGregor considers the present-day counterpart of the old cracker barrel—the barber shop, beauty salons and blacksmith shops. The proprietors of these establishments hear more talk of politics and national affairs than anyone else, McGregor suggests.

This year McGregor is using President Truman's declared program as the basis for his questions.

He asks if people favor outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor law, or simply amending it.

Among his other questions, McGregor inquires whether these Ohioans favor federal aid to schools, "federal control" of medicine and dentistry, "immediate return" of price controls, continuation of rent control, government farm price supports "regardless of supply and demand," and repeal of federal taxes on margarine.

McGregor says his district is a good sampling area for public opinion, because urban and rural population are almost evenly divided.

Last year he received 1,600 replies from the 2,800 questionnaires sent out. He tabulated answers in terms of percentages, and analyzed them by occupational groups.

Rep. Walter Huber, Akron Democrat, has been named as an assistant whip in the House. Rep. Priest (D-Tenn) is the new whip chosen this session by Democratic leaders. Huber will have charge of Ohio and West Virginia Democrats.

The whip's job is to round up voting support for administration measures, especially when indications are that balloting will be close.

Huber picked up another additional responsibility this year when the committee assignments were parceled out. Already high on the House veterans' affairs group, he was placed well up on the committee to investigate expenditures in executive departments.

This latter group one was considered of definitely minor significance, but its stature has increased in recent years. It will gain further in importance this year, as the report of the Hoover commission on executive reorganization will come before it.

WINS NEW BERTH

A new Ohio Democrat, Rep. Earl Wagner, also won a berth on the expenditures group.

Leaders of the Ohio Democratic delegation are saying privately that Rep. Edward Breen, former mayor of Dayton, can expect to be upgraded in his committee assignments within perhaps six months.

Breen asked for the armed services committee but was given merchant marine and fisheries. He is known to be disappointed, particularly because Wright Field, the huge military air installation, is in his district.

The leaders say they simply weren't able to land him the spot now. But they add that Breen has made a "good impression" on House Democratic bigwigs and is likely to be moved to a better post when one opens up.

180 In Unit See Duty

The Mansfield Naval Reserve unit reported yesterday that 180 of the 200 Naval Reservists in the Mansfield unit were on active duty at some time last year. Those men on active duty were either on cruises or attending a Naval specialists' school.

Reservists who chose to take cruises saw many foreign countries in the course of their short tours of active duty. Those on the North Atlantic trip visited Great Britain, France and other European countries, while those who preferred a warmer climate took their cruises and ensuing short liberty in the Mediterranean area or the Atlantic coast countries of South America.

Specialists schools were chosen by many men, including the Navy's movie projectionists school at San Diego, Calif. At this school they learn not only to operate projectors, but to maintain and repair them as well.

Collision of Two Ships on Foggy Sea Made Wireless History Forty Years Ago Today

NEW YORK — (AP) — Forty years ago today the White Star liner Republic and the Italian steamer Florida collided in the fog off Nantucket island -- and made radio history.

The incident demonstrated the importance of wireless telegraphy as a means of saving life at sea.

The nation was so amazed by the event that the House of Representatives passed legislation making wireless sets and operators mandatory for every ship carrying 50 or more passengers.

The drama began when Jack Binns, a young wireless operator aboard the Republic, broke off "chatting" with coast stations and flung a sudden "C. Q. D." over the foggy waters. It meant "all ships -- danger", and was the forerunner of the SOS signal used today.

The time was 5:30 a. m. Saturday, Jan. 23, 1909.

The Republic, a luxury liner and flagship of the White Star fleet, was outbound for the Mediterranean with 461 passengers and supplies for the U. S. battleship Fleet.

At the moment of collision many of the passengers were in their berths. Capt. William L. Sealby was on the bridge. Fog lay everywhere.

The Republic was coasting slowly, a little off the beaten track for liners, having turned north to start a long sweep across the Atlantic.

Suddenly there came a dozen quick blasts on a fog siren. A hazy shape looming through the mist bore down on the Republic.

This was the Florida. Her sharp prow knifed into the Republic's iron plates on the port side, cutting through to the engine rooms.

There was a moment of shocked silence. Then the Republic righted herself and staggered off into the fog.

Young Binns swaying with the lurching vessel, began to spray the fog with cries for help.

"5:40 a. m. Rammed by unknown ship 26 miles southeast of Nantucket. Latitude 40.17. Longitude 70."

No fewer than 10 ships, hearing the signal, turned in their tracks and made for the stricken ship.

Jack Irwin, an Associated Press correspondent and also a wireless operator, caught from the air the first faint signal of distress Binns sent sweeping over the water. He flashed the news to the Associated Press wires and then to ships at sea everywhere.

As dawn broke over the miserable sea the Florida, her forward hold filled with sea water, crept close and took aboard the Republic's passengers. But her condition was so precarious that the Republic's and her own passengers had to be transferred to the liner Baltic, which was standing by.

Survivors landing in New York said there were two deaths aboard the Republic. The Florida reported four deaths.

Capt. Sealby tried valiantly to save his ship, refusing to leave her. They attempted to tow her to port, but exactly 40 hours after the collision she keeled over off Martha's Vineyard and sank in 45 fathoms.

This was the mishap in a foggy sea that demonstrated for all time the efficiency of wireless telegraphy as a means of saving life.

British Like New Prince

LONDON—(AP)—A Prince of a guy. In pub and palace. That's the way Britain has sized up Philip, Duke of Edinburgh and husband of Princess Elizabeth.

For more than a year now, he has been on trial, serving a sort of apprenticeship for a rough job which will take on increasing responsibilities as the years roll by. And those responsibilities may pile up much more quickly than anticipated. For Philip —now that King George is ill—will be expected to take over many of the royal functions at public affairs this year.

He has brought to the sedate austerity of the palace a breath of fresh air, a common touch, which the common folk over here approve.

By tradition, the royal family make it a practice to leave a party early—even one of their own at the Palace. Not Philip. He's a bitter-ender.

By practice, members of the royal family keep their cars waiting while out visiting for an evening. Not Philip. If he isn't driving himself as he usually does, he'll tell the chauffeur: "Just whip around for me about 12, will you?"

By custom, Buckingham palace has its flunkeys take care of the formalities when one of the regal few accept the invitation. Not Philip. He phones — "I'll be a long sevenish."

Just as it happens on High Street, there is an argument within the palace gates on how to say it: "Is it "kinema?" or "cinema?" Not Philip. He says: "Let's go to the movies."

He marked off a cricket pitch on the front lawn of his Windlesham Moor house and enlisted the gardener, the odd-job man and the policeman on duty for a little practice.

Here in Britain, the average man takes his sports seriously. Philip has proved himself a kindred soul. He's fair at golf, good at cricket, better at squash, and best of all at racing small sailing craft.

But he's no playboy. There are speeches to be made, fairs to be opened, hospitals to be dedicated, factories to be visited, youth organizations to be encouraged. Philip takes them all seriously.

For example, he took over the honorary presidency of the London Federation of Boys' clubs. With his naval work and royal functions, he could have called it quits by merely lending his name to the organization. Philip didn't. In nine weeks, he visited as many clubs.

Philip really works at his job as a Prince.

No More Waiting For Winter Sea Trips

Cruise Space Now Available—But Costly

NEW YORK—(AP)—You don't have to get on a waiting list any more if you want to take that winter cruise to balmy southern waters—but the trip will cost you a fancy price.

There is plenty of space on the transatlantic vessels that go to the West Indies and South America. Rates range from $30 to $100 a day, more than double prewar prices.

Shipping folk and travel agents say bookings for this winter season are below last year because of high rates, induced by increased operational costs, and because of the mild winter. Bookings soar when a heavy snowstorm or zero cold comes along.

Another factor is that more ships have entered the trade, including the new 34,000-ton British liner Caronia, largest merchant ship built since the war.

Frank Philgus, travel agent, says business "is not generally bad but that the increase in prices have caused people to hesitate."

"The general restriction in spending money has begun to show itself very markedly in pleasure travel," he said.

A. L. Simmins, president of Simmons Tours, said operation costs, which include wages, supplies, fuel and dockage, have quadrupled the prewar figure on the cost of running a ship.

Simmons has chartered the French liner De Grasse for a series of 13-day cruises to San Juan, La Guaira, Kingston and Curacao. When reservations dropped below normal, he reduced some rates 25 per cent which cut his income $25,000 per voyage. Business immediately picked up.

He predicts this probably will be the last cruise season for large transatlantic vessels. He thinks it is cheaper to lay them up during the slack season.

Fake Fights Tough For Real-Life Hero

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Audie Murphy, most decorated American soldier of World War II, didn't pull any punches overseas. But now he's an actor, with 28 "fights" in "Bad Boy," his first starring picture. And everybody knows that on a movie set you don't mark up the expensive talent.

"Unless you have been in fights in which you're not supposed to hurt a guy, you have no idea what fighting for the screen is really like," he complained. "It's a tough job."

Beauty Show Idea Rapped In Germany

Civic Rumpus Stirs Nation

BERLIN—(AP)—Beauty is at bay in Germany. Innocently, beauty queens have stirred a civic rumpus from Bavaria to the Baltic.

The issue is whether public contests to select the fairest of the fair are ruining German moral standards and undermining the dignity of hausfraus.

Churchmen are scorching. Some editors are boiling. The younger generation is split.

But Berlin and the surrounding Russian occupation zone are aloof from the raging argument. They've never gone against the old Nazi ban on beauty contests.

The row flared up in western Germany when American-occupied Bamberg prohibited a competition in pulchritude. The good burghers decreed it would be "distasteful."

Then American-occupied Sonthofen called off the judging for "Miss Bavaria." Officials explained it would have been contrary to the religious feelings of their people.

Objections were particularly violent against parading girls in public in scanty bathing suits. But real die-hards claimed it was corrupting even if the girls wore long evening gowns.

One newspaper sniffed at the unfairness of comparing the natural charm of Germans to the "artificial and industrialized beauties" who have made American contests world famous.

Editors expressed repugnance at describing a beauty queen as "Miss." They said Germans should stick to their own word, "Fraulein."

They also ridiculed using a point system, with so many points for a bust and so many more for an underlip measurement, as a way to pick regal beauty.

Most of the anti-queen agitation implied criticism of the United States for permitting the post-Nazi boom in contests. Yet these have became widespread, too, in the British occupation zone. "Miss Hamburg," "Miss Hannover," and "Miss Duesseldorf" were acclaimed in 1948 in cities under the British flag.

Many a German spinster may have taken inspiration from the fact that the title, "Miss Deusseldorf," was won by a girl who had reached the ripe age of 31.

Sometimes the public's attention is all that a winner receives. But the latest Frankfurt queen was given a prize of 100 marks ($30) "Miss Nuernberg" did even better—two dresses, a radio, and a vacation trip.

Munich has set the pace for glittering contests with a civic flourish. The lord mayor himself has acted once as a judge. American military government officers helped him out. They gave the first beauty crown to a 25-year-old war widow, Inges Grodhaus.

It was a demure evening. The queen's white gown hid even her ankles.

Search For Lost Continents Never Ends

NEW YORK — (AP) — The "lost continents" of legend have been the object of man's search almost since the dawn of recorded history.

There are a lot of people still looking for them—for Atlantis, Lemuria, Mu. There are other names for some of them, such as the Fortunate islands, the Islands of the Blest, Avalon, Antilia and the Isle of Seven Cities.

One of the latest active searchers is Egerton Sykes of London. He says he is coming to the United States in the spring to raise $25,000 so he can find lost Atlantis a mile deep on the east side of the Azores. He plans to drop cameras and take pictures. The people of the submerged continent were sun worshippers, he says. Hence they built (or should have built) temples on the east slopes of their submerged lands.

Of course he can get an argument that the lost continent was never anywhere near the Azores. There are folks who believe Atlantis was in Armenia, in the Mediterranean, somewhere in the Americas, or where the Saragossa sea is now. Mostly it is placed somewhere along the Atlantic ridge that runs from Iceland down to the Falkland islands in the south Atlantic.

But that ridge is a mile under water and hard headed geologists and anthropologists can't figure that any of it was above water when there were men around. Man, they say, is only about a million years old.

Some of the religious and semi-religious cults which make the Atlantis story part of their faith don't let that bother them. Man really is many millions of years old, they claim. Men were once 10 to 70 feet tall; some had shining armor like our fingernails all over their bodies, they say. They had different types of minds than modern men, and built several utopias each of which lasted for thousands of years.

The Atlantis legend seems to start with Plato. He said it was quite a place. It had 12 kings, temples covered with silver and gold, great ship canals and a big population. But about 9,600 B.C. it sank into the sea and hasn't been seen since.

Lemuria and Mu don't have the Plato touch. They are supposed to have been in the Indian ocean and the Pacific. They are used to explain some culture likenesses between Egypt, southeast Asia and the ancient Americans.

In these places, many people believe, ancient men built great societies that make ours look like savage cultures. Modern men, according to these theories, only nibble around the edges of the old wisdom built up in the lost civilizations of the lost continents.

Geologists say there was once land in many of the places where the lost lands now are sought. But mostly these lands were there something like 300 million years ago, by their estimates, and the highest form of life was the ancestor of our toads.

On the other hand, some islands have sunk into the sea in modern times—Tuanaki, for instance, in 1836 with the loss of thousands of lives. How many of the old stories are just stories, and how many have some basis in fact?

Also, during the ice ages a lot of the world's water was locked in ice. Ocean levels may have been much lower than now. Maybe there are lost lands that have sunk out of sight. Maybe there were men on them when they were above water.

There is the flood story in the Bible. Other Biblical references are cited. The bodies of many extinct mammoths recently have been thawed out of Siberian and Alaskan ice. They were well preserved and some of them had stomachs full of food. Some sudden disaster must have killed them.

It is arguments like these that keep the old legends alive. A whole literature of thousands of books has grown up around lost continents and lost lands.

Skeptics cite the story of Prester John and his country to show how such stories can get started. In 1122, one John, who was called the patriarch or archbishop of India, visited Rome. He told stories of the wonders of Christian India in Rome and he seems to have been well treated there.

Then, about 1165, a letter to the Emperor Manuel which was supposed to have been sent by Prester John began to be circulated. It was very popular. More than 100 manuscript copies have been located in modern times.

Prester (Presbyter) John, the letter said, ruled a great realm in Asia. He was a Christian and called himself "Presbyter" because a man who had a king for a cook couldn't call himself a king.

Thirteen crosses were carried before Prester John when he went to war. Each cross was followed by 10,000 knights and 100,000 footmen. There were no poor in his domain, no theft, no flatterers or misers, no dissensions, no lies and no vices. He had a mirror in which he could see all that went on in his realm. He was waited on by seven kings, 60 dukes and 365 counts at one time. Twelve archbishops sat at his right and 20 bishops at his left.

The exact origin of the letter is uncertain. But Prester John and the John of India got all mixed up in the minds of the men of the middle ages. From about the mid-twelfth century to 1300, Prester John and his land were as real to the men of that day as, say, Greece.

The only trouble was, no one ever had visited the country. It was placed in many parts of Asia. When Genghis Khan began to be heard of in Europe, for example, he was supposed to be Prester John's grandson.

★

Marco Polo tried to locate the Prester John realm just outside China. But Marco Polo, who wrote a factual account of his long travels, was thought to be the greater liar of his age when men still sought the land of Prester John.

Then gradually, the name Prester John began to be applied to the King of Abyssinia. He was real enough and the old legend faded around 1300.

Or there was El Dorado First he was chief of a tribe in what is now Colombia. He was supposed to sprinkle himself with gold dust and bathe in a lake every year. Then El Dorado became a fabulous city—later a country which early Spainish explorers sought in South America.

Sir Walter Raleigh heard stories of El Dorado from men on captured ships and he, too, sought the country. The lake in which the chief was supposed to wash was long on English maps. There is no lake where the maps showed it to be.

Or there were the seven cities of Cibola. They were fabulously rich cities long sought by early Spanish explorers in what is now the U.S. southwest. They finally turned out to be seven mud pueblos of the Zuni indians.

Many authorities class lost continents with the men whose feet were so big they used them for umbrellas, and with unicorns and Amazons Such things were pictured on ancient maps.

FOR TEEN-AGER—Furniture of this bedroom combines all the elegance and richness of traditional 18th Century English design. Shown in the newly re-decorated, re-furnished Furniture Museum in Grand Rapids—the room was furnished for a teen-aged girl. The chest-on-chest which dominates the room is accompanied by a charming chair back bed, and a modish poudre table vanity. The fine lines of these pieces are embellished by the rich glowing Oxford finish on the mahogany wood . . . chartreuse and yellow in quilted chintz spread and shag rug form a superb color accent to the beauty of this fine furniture.

Polite Thief Places Auto Back In Shed

There's one thief in Mansfield who has manners—he puts things back where he finds them.

P. M. Gifford, 114 Park avenue west, reported to police yesterday that he parked his car for the night at 7 p. m. Friday in a shed at the rear of 110 Park avenue west.

When he went to get his car in the morning, he found that someone had pried open a front ventilator window. Further examination revealed that the speedometer showed an additional 200 miles and there was 10 gallons less gas in the tank.

Gifford thinks that the thief pried open the window, drove the car some 200 miles, and returned it, parking it just where he found it!

HOUSES SCARCE

TORQUAY, England — (AP) — Mrs. M. L. Andrews advertised a house for rent. A few minutes after the paper hit the street the first (and successful) applicant arrived by taxi—followed by 90 others, right up to midnight. Two telegrams came. Next day the mailman staggered up with 300 letters.

Settle for $500

Jesse L. and Gladys I Baith have agreed to accept a $500 settlement from the county for part of their property to be used for the right-of-way of the new section of State Route 13, around Mansfield airport, a Common Pleas court journal entry showed yesterday.

Light Program Listed for County Cagers

Only Four Sessions Remain on Schedule

Richland County league basketball teams will play one game each this week as they head into the last month of competition. Four Friday dates remain on the card for all teams.

Little change is expected around the top of the standings and the best games of the week will likely involve battles for third and seventh places.

Lucas and Lexington will mix it up on the latter's court with the Minutemen trying to shake off Lucas' bid to tie them for third place. A tie was in effect until Lucas lost to Ontario Friday.

BASEMENT BATTLE

The "battle for the basement" will be held at Union and little Shiloh can climb out of the darkness into a tie for seventh if it can repeat its 38-24 upset of the last meeting of the two teams. It was Shiloh's only victory. Union has beaten Butler and Plymouth.

The pace-setting Ontario Warriors gun for their 11th straight loop win against Plymouth, a team which gave them considerable trouble before bowing 36-31 the first time around. Friday's game will be played on Ontario's court, however, and that fact will likely remove any hopes Plymouth may have had for an upset.

The fourth game pits second-place Bellville against Butler at Bellville. Bellville has won its last five games and will warm up for Friday's contest with a non-loop game against a fine team at Millersburg Tuesday. Millersburg has been beaten only twice.

SUNNUCKS LEADS

Ontario's Howard Sunnucks regained control of the individual scoring lead this week with 159 points as he banged in 17 in each of two games. Desmond Donnenwirth of Plymouth dropped to second while Lexington's Dick Dill moved into third.

Speaking Of School Cage Play

By CHARLEY STINE

Although it hardly seems likely that such a thing will happen it would be possible for Mansfield to have two Class A district basketball champions under the present tournament set up.

Suppose Senior high and Madison meet each other in the finals of the sectional tourney here. The winner of the sectional goes to Sandusky and the runner-up advances to Findlay. If both local teams should win these tournaments (and they're only four teams each) they would both be district champions. Yet both are in the same district since according to OHSAA interpretations the sectional joust is part of the district.

STINE

To go still farther, it would be rather silly for a team to be eliminated in regional play by one which it had beaten two weeks before in the local sectional.

★

Madison is really going big-time in both its football and basketball schedules next year. The Rams have already scheduled a game at Ashland for next December 16 and plans are to make the A's a part of the regular schedule in all sports.

★

Dates for the drawings of the Richland county tournament will be announced very soon, possibly this week. The tourney will be held Feb. 22, 23, 24, and 26 at Senior high. Two games will be played each night. District meets start the following week.

★

Fredericktown's great little basketball team has taken a verbal riding from some corners. "Let them get out and play somebody tough," many of the hecklers said. . . . However, it came to light last week that the Freddies had sent out some 75 letters in attempting to book some good opposition . . . There just weren't any takers . . . Fredericktown now is doing the nextbest thing, playing practice games at such places as Wooster, Mansfield and Coshocton to get used to large courts and tall teams . . . speaking of courts, the Fredericktown gym is one of the nicest layouts we have ever seen in a Class B high school.

Bonus Players Must Stay In Major Loops

NEW YORK — (AP) — Baseball's bonus law begins to hurt this year when nine major league clubs approach spring training with 16 "prospects," costing about $400,000 who cannot be farmed out.

Ready or not these players must be kept in the big show. In each case the athlete received more than the legal maximum — $6,000 in the majors — for signing as a free agent.

The Philadelphia Phils have the most — five — so Manager Eddie Sawyer has the biggest headache. He already has one-fifth of his regular season roster of 25 all selected for him. There's not much he can do about it.

SHORT STRETCHES

Most of the 16 bonus men appeared in the majors last season for at least a short stretch. In fact the Phils had two regular pitchers, Curt Summons and Robin Roberts, in that class. Charley Bicknell, used largely on relief in '48, also is a Phil bonus man.

Jack Mayo, a .273 hitter at Utica last year, joined the Phils in late season for 12 games. Now he can't be sent out for seasoning. Neither can Stan Hollmig, the muscular Texas Aggies football star, who hit .303 for Wilmington after receiving a big bonus.

Johnny Antonelli, the sensational Rochester, N. Y., schoolboy, who cost the Boston Braves between $55,000 and $75,000, is slated to take a regular turn for Manager Billy Southworth. He's the only Brave in the bonus category.

SOX HAVE PAIR

The Boston Red Sox, desperate for pitching last year, have two bonus players, Chuck Stobbs and Frank Quinn.

Cincinnati has a pair in Pitcher Frank Fanovich, a wild lefthander who had a 9-13 record at Syracuse in the International league, and Lloyd Merriman, the former Stanford university ace.

Cleveland has three bonus players including the ageless Negro pitcher, Satchel Paige, while Earle Brucker jr., son of the Philadelphia A's coach, is Connie Mack's lone bonus player.

Brooklyn's only bonus man is Pitcher Elmer Sexauer, a righthander who won 11 and lost 7 for Danville, Ill., in the Three-I league last season. He pitched four innings for the Dodgers in late season.

The No. 16 man is Paul Campbell of Detroit.

Detroit Has 17 In '49 Contracts

DETROIT — (AP) — The Detroit Tigers had almost half their 1949 squad signed today, more than five weeks prior to the opening of their Lakeland, Fla., training camp March 1.

Five more signed contracts arrived at the Briggs Stadium offices of the Tigers today, boosting the early bird contingent to 17 players who already have agreed to terms.

Notable among the latest to accept their 1949 contracts are third baseman George Kell, Tiger captain, who hit .304 last season; pitcher Art Houtteman, who lost 16 games while winning only two in a disappointing sophomore year, and rookie catcher Myron (Joe) Ginsberg.

Set Tennis Date

NEW YORK —(AP)— The U. S. Lawn Tennis association voted yesterday to hold its next annual championships at Forest Hills from Aug. 29 through Sept. 5, setting them up approximately two weeks from the dates which have customary.

First Methodist Tops In 'Tennis'

First Methodist is far out in front of the Church Table Tennis league after three weeks of play. The Methodists meet St. John's in one of three matches set for 7:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Newark to Remain In International Loop Next Season

NEWARK, N. J. —(AP)— The Newark Bears of the International league will operate here in 1949 and will be managed by Buddy Hassett, General Manager Parke Carroll announced today.

"The program of assistance promised by the city commissioners as noted in the special executive meeting Jan. 19 has caused the Newark club to make this decision," Carroll said.

The program of assistance Carroll referred to consisted of several methods put forth by the commission at the special meeting designed to increase attendance at the Bears games.

Included were the elimination of the garbage dumps near Ruppert Stadium and improved transportation to the field, which is on the outskirts of the city.

In his 22 seasons as head basketball coach at Michigan State college, Ben Van Alstyne has had only three losing teams.

Seven Foxes, Eight Owls Are Bagged

Eight owls and only seven foxes were bagged by the Richland county fox hunters in their weekly hunt yesterday near Newville. Two hundred and twenty-five men took part.

Killing the foxes were: H. C. Lisle, William Lay, B. "Trig" Snider, and J. J. Schuster of Mansfield, Donald McQuade of Ashland, Gerald Conrad of Hayesville and George Hammon of Butler.

Next week's hunt will be held south of Lexington.

Two Contests Played At F-H

Bowman defeated West Fifth, 19 to 12, and Newman edged Bushnell, 14 to 12, yesterday in Northern Grade school games at the Friendly House.

Tinkey's left-handed hook shot fielder in the fourth quarter gave Newman its win. Thompson, Bowman, was the leading scorer with 12 points.

YEAR-ROUND BEAUTY AND YEAR-ROUND COMFORT . . . for it's Thermopane REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

● Thermopane makes big windows practical whatever the climate. For it is a glass insulating unit, two panes or more, with dehydrated air sealed between. That's why it adds comfort and eliminates excessive heat loss. You leave Thermopane in all year.

Because the inner surfaces of the two panes are sealed from dirt and moisture, there are only two surfaces to clean.

Call us for a free estimate on Thermopane—for new construction or remodeling.

Leader Raps Red Ouster

LYNN, MASS., — (AP) — International President Albert Fitzgerald of the CIO Electrical Workers said yesterday that a Dayton, O., local violated the union constitution in moving to bar communists from office membership.

Fitzgerald said he would not make further comment until he could study a report of the action announced last night in Dayton after a meeting of local 804 of the Leland Electric company.

William Snoots, secretary-treasurer of the Montgomery county CIO industrial union, reported the local passed the anti-communist resolution and added:

"It was a demonstration of the rank and file disavowal of communist domination of the United Electrical Workers."

Fitzgerald said he could not answer now a question of whether the international planned any action in the case of the Dayton local.

Stockholder Meeting Set

Annual meeting of stockholders of the Shelby Sales Book company will be held at the company office Jan. 28 at 2 p. m. for the purpose of electing a board of directors, company officials announced last night.

Present directors set Jan. 8 as the record date for determination of eligibility of stockholders to participate in the election.

Other matters pertaining to operations of the firm will be taken under discussion at the office, located on High School avenue.

Rent Control Bill Readied

WASHINGTON —(AP)— An administration bill reportedly calling for a two-year extension of rent controls and barring any more 15 per cent "voluntary" increases is about ready for Congress.

Officials in a position to know told a reporter the measure might go to the Capitol Monday.

Rep. Spence (D-Ky), chairman of the House Banking committee, said he plans to introduce the bill. It probably will be offered in the Senate, too.

Valk Funeral Set Monday

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow from the Dye funeral home for Edward Valk, 80, who died late Friday at the Strohm Rest Home in Bucyrus.

The notice of his death carried in Saturday's issue of the News-Journal listed the aged man's name as Balk instead of Valk.

Survivors include one sister, Mrs. Amos McNaul of Mansfield.

MRS. WALLET, MAY I COME IN A FEW MOMENTS? MY HUSBAND HAS MY HOUSE KEY.
SURELY, MRS. FRACAS.
HE'LL BE ALONG SOON. I DON'T LIKE TO PUT YOU OUT THIS WAY.
I SAID TO MY HUSBAND ONLY YESTERDAY, WE MUST CALL ON THE FRACASES.
I'M SORRY I HAVEN'T BEEN MORE NEIGHBORLY.
I KNOW HOW IT IS, MY DEAR. I HAVEN'T DONE MY SHARE, EITHER.
HOW ABOUT A LIFT, MR. FRACAS?
THANKS, WALLET. MY CAR IS AT THE SHOP.
IT'S STRANGE WE NEXT DOOR NEIGHBORS HAVEN'T GOT BETTER ACQUAINTED.
THERE ISN'T ANY BACK-FENCE VISITING, THIS WEATHER.
SKEEZIX, I DON'T THINK MRS. FRACAS IS THE ONE WHO STARTS THOSE FIGHTS WE HEAR NEXT DOOR.
I PICKED HIM UP AND HE'S A REGULAR FELLOW. I'M SURE HE DOESN'T.
SHE WAS ON HER GOOD BEHAVIOR. SHE CAN GET MIGHTY SARCASTIC.

Assembly Program Features Three Plays

By MARGIE GOODMAN

Last Tuesday an assembly was put on by M.H.S.'s own budding Barrymores and Bernharts. It consisted of three short plays, the first of which was called "Afraid of the Dark." In concerned three prisoners who were sentenced to die that night in the electric chair, and how each turned to religion as it came his turn to take his last journey down "death row." Phil Bolin, Bob Ward and Harry McCune, who portrayed the condemned men, all put on outstanding and convincing performances, with many a tear-stained eye to prove this.

Pat Jackson and Lloyd Lewis presented a humorous satire on suicide. As they were both to jump off the bridge, Lloyd considerately asked: "Do you prefer that I walk down a little way so, if our bodies are found together, there will be no unpleasant publicity?"

MARGIE

The high point of the last play, "Let's Make Up," was when Dick Elliot and Lloyd Lewis, two indignant boy-friends, lathered and shaved in a hotel lobby just to teach their girls not to primp in public. They proved their joint, and the abashed girl friends really saw themselves as others see them.

Phil Casto, class president, has given us the first sophomore class news of the year. Miss Patricia Pine has been chosen adviser to this newly-organized class of 1951. To get their bank account off to a good start, the sophomores have decided to sell tickets to "The Best Is Yet To Come" performances. These tickets will be distributed to home rooms, and 10 per cent profit will go in their treasury.

Feb. 4 is the date that the state-wide general scholarship tests will be given to M. H. S. seniors who wish to take it. The upper 40 per cent of the class and any others recommended by the principal, are eligible. This two-and-a-half hour test covers literature, science, math, history and reading.

The senior Hi-Y boys advertise that they are doing their part to curb inflation by selling plastic book covers. They figure that by protecting the school's books from rain, snow and general abuse, the school board will have to buy fewer books, and therefore the economic standard of our country will improve.

Society Faces Decision on New Problem

Test Tube Babies Pose Complex Question

NEW YORK —(AP)— How is society going to accept test tube babies?

That's a question currently confronting jurists, lawmakers, sociologists and moralists in the English speaking world, if not elsewhere.

First, are they to be considered the legitimate children of husbands and wives when the husband is not the actual parent; if the answer is a qualified yes, when is a test tube baby illegitimate? What legal rights has the child? The husband of the mother? Does a mother commit adultery if she submits to artificial insemination?

There are thousands of children conceived by artificial insemination. The questions are bound to come up in courts again and again. At the moment legal, religious and lay opinion on the subject is diversified.

The controversy flamed anew in Great Britain where a woman identified only by initials received an annulment of her marriage on the grounds her husband was incapable of normal relations. In the statement accompanying the decree the court referred to her infant child as illegitimate—despite the fact that the husband himself was the father of the child. Conception had been aided by a physician.

With this as a springboard, demands were made that the British government settle by law the social status of children born of artificial insemination.

OPINIONS VARY

Public opinion on the subject ranges from a demand to bring laws up to date with science, to a demand that artificial insemination by a third party donor be made a capital offense.

In the United States the subject has occasioned much speculation. New York state, as a direct result of one legal action, now has a law passed at the 1948 session of its legislature which establishes test tube children as legitimate when the husband has given express or implied consent to artificial insemination of his wife.

Elsewhere, it's up in the air, subject to legal interpretation by the courts.

The case which resulted in the New York law was a separation action. Under the terms of the decree, the husband was permitted to visit the child, then four, for a few hours each week. Early last year (January, 1948) the wife came into court again and asked that her husband be denied the right to see the child. Her husband was sterile, she alleged, and the child was the result of artificial insemination.

If she is successful in her suit, the child would be established as illegitimate," reasoned the court in its decision. "How will that help the child? This court will not lend itself to making any child illegitimate. It would be inhumane, inhuman and contrary to the highest precepts of society."

The justice added that it seemed that if a man was willing to allow his wife to be artificially inseminated, he ought not be penalized for it: "It is not every man who is willing to admit he cannot carry through his marital duties."

The decision, however, stated explicitly that the court was not passing on the questions of property right or "on the propriety of recreation by the medium of artificial insemination."

In that particular case the justice held that the child was not illegitimate, but had been "potentially adopted or semi-adopted" by the husband, who therefore had the rights of a foster parent.

The state law went further, stating that when the husband has consented to his wife bearing a test tube baby, the child is to be considered as the legitimate issue of both husband and wife. That presumably takes care of the child's inheritance rights and the husband's rights to the child in the event of a wrecked marriage.

WIFE HELD GUILTY

In a Canadian case of recent vintage—where the husband did not consent to the pregnancy by a donor—the child was held to be illegitimate, and the wife guilty of adultery.

There was no moral turpitude involved in the adultery, the Canadian court held, but the pregnancy of the wife without her husband's approval constituted "an invasion of the reproductive function."

The Journal of the American Medical Association editorialized in 1939 that "the concept of legitimacy seems to demand the child be the actual offspring of the husband of the mother of the child," and added that if a third party were the donor "it seems the child is illegitimate and the consent of the husband seemingly would have no bearing."

The actual number of test tube babies today is unknown. A lawyer in the New York separation suit told the court his decision would affect 20,000 children. A survey made in 1941 disclosed that 3,649 children had been born by artificial insemination in the United States. It is generally conceded that an accurate estimate is extremely hard to make for the simple reason that the parties involved do not want it known.

The planned parenthood federation estimates that there are some three million couples in the United States who, for one reason or another, are involuntarily childless. Many of these couples are able to have children with medical assistance. It is this group that would logically be interested in the test tube method of pregnancy.

Actually, artificial insemination of humans is not new. In 1790 an English physician succeeded in achieving a pregnancy in a woman patient by the method. (Ten years before that an Italian had experimented successfully with a dog.)

Dr. Marion Sims, a New York gynecologist, revived the method in 1866. It could hardly have been considered a popular recourse for the childless, however, because in 1924 researchers were able to collect only 123 cases in which artificial insemination had been tried—and of these only 43 had achieved a preganancy.

A paper by Dr. Frances Seymour and a colleague, published in 1941, disclosed that 9,489 women had achieved at least one pregnancy by the test tube route.

"With adoption it is the last resort of the childless," an official of the Planned Parenthood federation said, "but as long as there is any doubt whatever as to the status of such children, couples will think a long time before they go ahead with it."

Allied Airmen Jibe at Russians

BERLIN—(AP)—The men of the Allied airlift who fly food and fuel to western Berlin over the Soviet blockade are jibing at the Russians through their own newspaper, the "Task Force Times."

The American and British fliers are laughing, particularly, at Russian propaganda promises to supply the entire city with food and coal. One such jab purports to repeat a joke said to have originated in Russian-occupied Saxony. This says: "Americans are supplying Germany with food by air, the British by ship while the Russians send their supplies by radio."

Honey Wine Made Again

LONDON, — (AP) — Britons are reviving an old wine for the new bottles of export trade.

It is mead, made—in several varities—from honey. Though wine connoisseurs sniffily reject it because it isn't made of grapes, its manufacturers liken its many types to sherry, vermouth and other aperitifs.

A drink of the ancient Druids, mead was mentioned by Chaucer. In old monasteries, the monks allowed a ration of mead at their festivals.

Saxon friendly societies exacted a quantity of honey for certain offenses of their members and turned it into mead to drink on gala days.

Mead has been nothing more than a curiosity since the end of the seventeenth century when the cost of honey made its manufacture prohibitive.

Now, the mead-makers see honey as a relatively cheap commodity that is likely to remain so "for several hundred years." Furthermore, they are encouraged to revive mead-making to help the export drive; the ministry of food has allocated honey on condition that the mead is exported.

The company undertaking the task is Mead Makers, Lt. The factory is an old flour mill at Gulval, a village on the outskirts of Penzance, Cornwall.

This site was chosen not because it gave an opportunity to carry on Celtic tradition but mainly because temperatures are suitable for fermentation throughout the year. Gulval is believed to be the warmest spot in England.

Thousands of gallon.—enough for 400,000 bottles of mead—prepared from carefully preserved recipes dating back to the middle ages and improved by years of research, are now maturing. Bottling will begin in the spring.

Carburetor Too Rich Makes Motorist Too Poor

Car owners who are wasting money and not getting proper gas mileage due to over-rich mixtures will be pleased to learn of a Wisconsin inventor who has developed a very clever unit that helps save gasoline by 'Vacu-mating". It is automatic and operates on the supercharge principle. Easily installed in a few minutes. Fits all cars, trucks, tractors. The manufacturers, the Vacu-matic Carburetor Co., 7617—477-F State St., Wauwatosa, Wis., are offering a Vacu-matic to anyone who will install it on his car and help introduce it to others. They will gladly send full free particulars if you write them or just send your name and address on a penny post card today.—Adv.

Farm Crop Loss Feared

Richland county farmers are uncertain about the effect of the unusually warm winter on crops, and some feel damage will be done to crops.

The next two months will determine whether the wheat crop will suffer from the unusual weather, Guy L. Taylor, of Bellville, said. So far, he added, there has been no serious damage although the alternating freezing and thawing of the ground have been none too good for the wheat crop. He declared a prolonged hard freeze next month without a protective covering of snow would harm wheat greatly.

Farmers who own orchards are also anxious about the effects of the temperature on their fruit trees. The warm spell has brought the trees near the point of budding. A few more springlike days could easily bring forth some premature buds which would be certain casualties to a subsequent cold spell.

No cases of fruit trees blossoming have yet been reported, but if the present weather continues, apple blossoms in early February are a definite possibility, farmers say.

A. L. Rineheart, 549 East Townview circle, who owns a farm in Bellville, said the most pronounced effects of the unseasonal temperature have been noticed on grasses, particularly clover and alfalfa. The freezes and thaws have caused the crops to "heave," that is push the roots out of the ground.

The roots are then susceptible to damage from subsequent frosts, and are likely to suffer harm if there is a dry spring, Rineheart said.

Another effect of the mild winter may be an unduly large number of insects, farmers predict. Usually insects don't begin to multiply until spring, but the mild weather has brought them out from their hiding places, giving them an early start in multiplying.

Fleeing Car Causes Death

MIAMISBURG —(AP)— Odis Derosett, 39, of Miamisburg was killed yesterday by an automobile which went out of control while being pursued by West Carrollton police.

Police Chief Arthur Wagner of Miamisburg said the car, driven by Elmer E. Christian, 24, of Dayton struck a West Carrollton police cruiser at West Carrollton two miles north of here.

The West Carrollton officers gave chase Christian lost control of the speeding automobile here and it swerved up on the sidewalk and struck Derosett. The West Carrollton police caught Christian two blocks from the scene of the accident.

Police Seek 2 Attackers

Police today continued their search for two men who attacked a truck driver, robbed him, and stole his truck Friday night.

Joe Gilliam, Warren road, reported to police yesterday afternoon that the attack and robbery had occurred the previous night as he walked away from the truck he had just parked near 131 East Fourth street.

He told police two men jumped him from the rear, beat him up, dragged him into an alley, and took his billfold containing $12.

When he recovered from the beating, he said, he returned to the spot where the truck had been parked and found it gone. He described it as a 1946 Chevrolet three-quarter ton with a stake body. He had left the key in the vehicle, he told police.

This Rooster C-c-c-can't C-c-c-crow!

DES MOINES —(AP)— A hitchhiking rooster took a 50-mile ride in sub-zero weather early yesterday but the luckless bird wasn't doing any crowing about his feat.

Donald Warren, a milk hauler from Carlisle, Ia., discovered the shivering chanticleer when he pulled into Des Moines at the end of a 4-hour run. The bird was perched on a cross bar under the bed of the truck.

Air Search Abandoned

MIAMI, FLA. — (AP) — Search for a missing British South American coast guard, air force, navy and aboard has ended, coast guard air-sea rescue headquarters announced yesterday.

The coast guard said not a trace of the Tudor-type plane, which disappeared Monday on a flight from Bermuda to Kingston, Jamaica, was found although a vast search was carried on by coast guard, air force, navy and British planes and surface craft, including two U. S. navy task forces.

The plane left Hamilton, Bermuda, Monday morning on the five and one-half hour flight to Kingston. Its course would have been over the eastern end of Cuba.

The plane was on a regular flight from London to Kingston and was last heard from an hour after the takeoff, flying at 18,000 feet.

Admits Guilt In Old Murder

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — (AP) — Chief of Police George Walker said yesterday that an arrest in Jeffersonville, Ind., had solved a 28-year-old Springfield murder mystery.

Walker said that Jeffersonville police had notified him that a man identified as Rollen Lee, arrested there on a bogus check charge, had made a written confession to the murder in a hotel room here on Christmas Eve of 1920 of August J. Siegfried a jewelry salesman from Kansas City.

In Jeffersonville, Police Chief Gordon N. Gilmore identified the man held as James B. Tate, 56. The officer said that Tate told him he formerly lived at Dover, O., and was wanted in Urichsville, O., on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Grain Prices Move Lower

CHICAGO —(AP)— Grains soybeans and lard slid lower on the board of trade Saturday. At one time soybeans were down more than 2 cents, but a slight rally in the last half hour canceled some of the loss. Dealings were rather slow in all pits.

In wheat some selling came from houses with connections in Kansas City.

The market was a disappointment to those traders who had expected a continuation of the sharp run-up in the closing hour Friday.

Recover Bodies Of Dead Airmen

STRACHUR, Scotland — (AP) — The bodies of 20 U. S. army fliers were recovered yesterday from the wreckage of a B-29 that crashed on a hillside near here last Monday.

Bad weather had delayed attempt to bring out the remains. Yesterday a Royal Air Force rescue crew, assisted by naval air men, police and forestry workers, completed the task.

The bodies will be taken to Prestwick, Scotland, then to Germany, from whence they will be flown to the U. S.

Lodge Called GOP Threat

Might Make Bid For Presidency

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Henry Cabot Lodge jr., lost a battle, but some of his friends think it may help him in a war—for the Republican presidential nomination in 1952.

The 46-year-old Massachusetts senator took the hardest fall of all when the regular Republican leadership flattened 14 insurgents who were trying to grab the reins of minority control in the new Senate.

His name was posted against that of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio for chairmanship of the policy committee, a job Taft has held for four years. Taft won, 28 to 14.

But Lodge had made his record. In his own mind, he now stands tabbed as the leader of those who wanted a new order in the Senate, a new look in the Republican party. Be sure that Lodge will cash in on that.

But why Lodge, the politicians ask?

His friends popped up with several surface reasons for his choice as leader of the Senate insurgents.

Lodge, they said, did the biggest part of the job of drafting the Republican platform of 1948. Senator Irving Ives of New York said that platform proves the Massachusetts senator represents the "modern viewpoint" of the Republican party.

Lodge is young—46. He did what no other senator did when he resigned his seat to serve two years in the army during the war. He first came to the Senate in 1937—two years before Taft arrived.

These sounded like good arguments.

But the reason for Lodge's choice may lie deeper. And there are some who say they wouldn't be surprised if Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan had something to do with it.

The Vandenberg-Lodge attachment goes a long way back to the days just after World War I, when the Massachusetts senator's grandfather, the original Henry Cabot Lodge, was a power in the Senate.

Combine that with a matinee idol look—Lodge is tall in a handsome sort of way and dresses the part—and you may have the first ingredients of a presidential candidate.

Peace Talks Near Climax

'Make or Break' By Late Today

RHODES —(AP)— The next 36 hours will see the end of Israeli-Egyptian armistice talks either in success or failure, an authortative source said last night.

As the deadlock which has hamstrung the meetings dragged into its third day, a source close to the Israeli delegation said his country might modify its position "because Israel wants this conference to succeed so she can deal with the other Arab states." Apparently this is known to the Egyptians.

The deadlock has hinged, conference circles said, on a Jewish refusal to evacuate territory taken in two recent offensives.

The Egyptians are known to be anxious for peace but are in search of a "face-saving" device which will conceal their army's actual defeat from the people of Egypt.

Coy Answers FCC Probers

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — (AP) — Wayne Coy, chairman of the Federal Communications commission, said last night a House committee which accused the FCC of a "thought policing" policy never came to grips with a fundamental question of radio freedom.

A special House investigating committee last year made the accusation against the FCC in connection with a decision it handed down concerning the right of an atheist to discuss his beliefs over the air.

Although refusing to revoke any station licenses, the FCC ruled that a station "is not free to deny a point of view access to the radio solely because it is an unpopular point of view," or because it does not coincide with the views of the station operator.

But whether an atheist should be allowed to broadcast depends on whether a public controversy has been stirred and whether reasonableness and over-all fairness warrants it, Coy said. The decision is up to the broadcasters. They have complained this makes them "thought police."

The House committee, headed by Rep Harness (R-Ind.), in Coy's opinion, "never did come to grips with the fundamental question of what is the nature of the freedom to be preserved in radio and who is to enjoy that freedom."

Warm Weather Piling Up Street Repair Cost In City

The street department would be a lot happier if it would get cold—and stay that way.

E. W. Davis, street superintendent, explained yesterday that due to the alternate freezes and thaws that have occurred so far this winter, the roads are "breaking up" much faster than usual.

This occurs when the water in small cracks in the streets freezes and expands, thus forcing the fissure open a little more.

Then a thaw melts the ice and a few particles at the edge of the crack falls away. Another freeze comes, and the fissure is forced open still wider. A solid freeze that remained all winter would naturally cut this type erosion down to a minimum.

"The street department has graveled Longview avenue and Mendota street due to the mild weather. If it were colder and those roads frozen, the expense would not have been necessary," Davis said.

And he added that Mendota street is in such bad condition that a 600-foot strip has been closed off.

"In the summer, when the roads are dry," Davis said, "we can maintain them by grading. But in the winter, when a thaw occurs and holes develop, there's nothing we can do about it because of the mud.

"And the mild weather has made us fall behind on our dig-up work. Things are so uncertain, that we can't repair paved streets. If we put down concrete, we must leave it set for 24 hours before we can patch it with asphalt.

"But with a sudden freeze, the work might be ruined, so we can't do much with those streets, except to patch them."

Davis said he planned to repair dig ups on brick streets only, using heated concrete.

"We can do some work on cold days," he said, "but never on wet days."

ANSWER FIRE CALL

Firemen from Central and No. 2 stations answered an alarm at the home of Mrs. A. F. Jarrett, 324 Prescott street, at 6 p. m. yesterday where a short circuit in a radio had set the cord on fire. There was no damage except for the burned cord.

Dies Suddenly In Cleveland

GALION — Joseph E. Faber, formerly of Galion, died suddenly in Cleveland Saturday afternoon. His wife, Mrs Minnie Errett Faber, died in 1944.

Mr. Faber went to Cleveland a few days ago to reside with a sister there. He is survived by two brothers, Adolph of Lorain, and Charles of Shelby, and two sisters, Barbara and Caroline Faber, both of Cleveland.

He was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church and Knights of Columbus here. Friends may call at the Volk funeral home Monday evening. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 9 a. m. at St. Joseph's church, conducted by Rev. F. X. Hermiller. Burial will be in Galion cemetery.

SWAN ANNOUNCES THE BABIES

—by Swan Cleaners

Robert and June Pumphrey, 49 Reba Ave., are proudly announcing the arrival of Robert James Pumphrey to friends and relatives. This recruit in the diaper boys' club checked in at Mansfield General Hospital Jan. 8, weighing 7 lbs., 14 oz.

"Very cute, but sleepy," is how Mr and Mrs. Harold Yeager, 334 4th Ave, describe their new daughter, Linda Kay Yeager. This winsome lass made her debut Jan. 11 at General Hospital, balancing the scales at 6 lbs., 3 oz.

The "Stork Set" at Mansfield General Hospital welcomed Kathleen Audrey Graf into their midst on Dec. 19, 1948. Kathy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Graf, 386 3d Ave., has dark blue eyes and blond hair and her big sister says she is "just beautiful." The tabulator of weights gave Kathy's as 7 lbs., 13½ oz.

Blue booties and ice skates are in store for William Russell Kiley, newly arrived son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kiley, 398 Wayne St. Bill tipped the dish of balance at General Hospital at 7 lbs., 1 oz. on Jan. 12.

The baby bunting choir has a new soprano named Karen Jeanne Casto, tiny miss of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Casto, 468 Cline Ave. Karen weighed 5 lbs., 12 ozs. when she arrived at Mansfield General Hospital Jan. 5.

Patricia Clara White is the name of the pert baby girl, born to proud parents Mr. and Mrs. Howard White, Crandall Rd. on Jan. 3. Patricia checked in at Mansfield General Hospital weighing 7 lbs., 12 ozs.

There's a new "Jr." at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wheeler, 701 N. Diamond St. This husky lad, Robert Wheeler, Jr., arrived at General Hospital Jan. 8, weighing 7 lbs. 10 ozs.

The diaper debs have a new glamour girl on their roll named Shirley Ann Sampsel. She is the wee daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sampsel, 379 2d Ave. Shirley's birthdate was celebrated at Mansfield General Hospital Jan. 2, when she weighed 7 lbs.

Paul and Pat Brumenschenkel, 1755 Olivesburg Rd. are tickled "pink" over the arrival of their new daughter, Lynn Marie Brumenschenkel. Little Lynn was born at General Hospital Jan. 9, where the instrument of weighing checked her at 6 lbs., 7 ozs.

It's rock-a-bye time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Mertz, 49 W. Raleigh Ave., since the arrival of a son by the name of Paul Frank Mertz. Happy parents say Paul weighed 8 lbs., 8 oz., when he arrived at General Hospital Jan. 11.

Richard and Ada Friddell, 390 Hammond Ave., are in the "bibs and booties" stage since their new arrival, a son named Charles Robert Friddell, Charles arrived at Mansfield General Hospital on the 12th of Jan. and goes on record as weighing 6 lbs., 12 ozs.

"Perfect and sweet as sugar candy" say Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Wittmer, 198 Cleveland Ave., whenever they talk about their new daughter, Deberah Lee Wittmer. This little heart throb with big blue eyes and brown hair tipped the scales at General Hospital at 6 lbs. when she sat on them Dec. 31, 1948.

Dark hair and dark blue eyes are the winning combination at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Michem, 176 Coul St., for that describes their adorable new daughter, Gloria Carole Michem. Gloria weighed 6 lbs., 4 ozs. when she made her first public appearance at General Hospital Dec. 10, 1948.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter P. Mott, 144 Bartley Ave., have filled a pink bassinette in their home with an 8½ lbs. babygirl named Barbara Cathie Mott. This rosy-cheeked miss was first seen at General Hospital on Jan. 11.

Enlisted in the three-cornered pants gang was Jeffrey Alan Alexander, gurgling son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Alexander, 275 W. 5th St. Jeffrey moved the scales at Mansfield General Hospital to 6 lb., 5 ozs. when he arrived Jan. 9.

"A cute little bundle in pink" can be seen at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stimens, Route 5, Woodville Rd. Her name is Susan Ann Stimens and she checked in at Mansfield General Hospital on the 5th of Jan., weighing 7 lbs., 6 ozs.

"Our pride and joy" is what Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greenup, 997 Fairfax Ave., are saying about their endearing daughter Kathy Irene Greenup. This adorable little lass made her initial appearance at General Hospital Jan. 13, weighing 7 lbs., 9 ozs.

The leading male role at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clay Shiloh, goes to their precious new son, Norman Dean Clay. His arrival was announced at Mansfield General Hospital, Dec. 29, 1948, where he balanced the scales at 4 lbs., 4½ ozs.

Black hair and blue eyes describes Marcia Lee Wittmer, so say Mary and Ray Wittmer, Route 6, the proud parents. This little cradle charmer boosted the scales at General Hospital to 9 lbs. when she arrived there Jan. 17.

Pink booties and sweaters can be seen on the clothes line at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Conlan, Route 6, for it's a captivating baby daughter named Sharon Lorene Conlan, 7 lbs., ½ oz. was Sharon's weight when she arrived at Mansfield General Hospital Jan. 2.

"A wonderful little boy" is what Mr. and Mrs. Warren Christman of 425 S. Union St., Galion, are saying about their brand new son, Kenneth Warren Christman, who arrived on Jan. 14, 1949, and easily tipped the scales at 6 lbs., 5 ozs. The happy parents' only other comment was "we're just as proud of him as can be!"

Grand Jury to Hear 28 Cases In Session Opening Tuesday

Three-Day Calendar Scheduled

Shooting, Auto Theft To Be Considered

Evidence in at least 28 cases will be presented to the Richland county grand jury Tuesday, including the case of Orland T. Champion, 54, of 235 Wood street, charged in the shooting of his son-in-law, Henry F. Byrd, last Nov. 27. Byrd has recovered.

Prosecutor Harold Lutz said the work of the jurors will take three days or more. Besides considering charges against the defendants and deciding whether indictments are warranted, the grand jurors will visit the county jail and report on its condition to the court.

Besides the Champion case, the jurors will consider the case of four Reformatory escapers, charged with operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent.

They are Emerson Cain, 21, and Delmar Weaver, 21, both of Pickaway county; Mike Hall, 29, of Hamilton county, and Carl Daniels, 21, of Stark county. They are charged in the theft of the car of Glenn W. Gleason of Butler from near the Coliseum, shortly after escaping from the reformatory, officers said.

Charges also will be considered against Kenneth W. Rodgers, 25, Forest Garden Trailer camp, accused of breaking into the Perez-Smucker studio, 45 North Mulberry street, Christmas eve, when $487 worth of cameras and equipment were taken.

In connection with this case, Glenn R. Jacobs, of the DeSoto hotel, is charged with receiving stolen property.

CASES LISTED

The cases of others and the charges against them include:

Robert Eugene Hall jr., 25, of 319 Grace street, charged with breaking and entering in the snatching of a purse containing $35 at the home of Earl E. Keltner, 303 Wayne street.

Marion Steinhelfer, of Galion, accused of embezzlement of $58.50 in an affidavit signed by John P. Boyle of the Electro Hygiene company here.

Robert James Shoup, 22, of 77 Myers avenue, booked on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent.

Elmer Treadwell, 21, of Harmon avenue, accused of assault with a dangerous weapon, resulting from an altercation with Patrolman Glenn Adams. Treadwell is accused of assaulting Adams with his own police club. Treadwell denied the charges in municipal court.

Albert McConnell, 19, of Bloomington, Ind., accused of forgery in that he allegedly signed his uncle's name to a $1,000 check in purchasing a used car here.

Howard Ware, of 262 North Main street, booked for carrying concealed weapons.

Others whose cases will be considered and charges on which they were bound over to the grand jury are:

Robert M. Gale, operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent; Jesse Miller and Milton Glover, Loudonville, non-support; Miles Marion Skaggs, 42, and Frank Skaggs, 41, both of 325 North Main street, grand larceny.

Thomas W. Garrett, 20, of 224 North Diamond street, pocket-picking; Herbert Lee Yates, 20, of 1017 Fairfax street, Claude Gleason Rose, 19, of Nova, Walter LeRoy Phillips, 30, of 335 Cedar street, breaking and entering; Earl Welo Bishop, Clifford A. Smith, carrying concealed weapons.

Bernice Jane Mae Currens, forgery, Lyda Crain, shooting with intent to wound, and Richard Park, breaking and entering.

ROBERT STRIPLING

Stripling Hit Subversives In Face of Harsh Criticism

I hope Robert Stripling can extract a modicum of bitter amusement from the controversy that has swirled around his head in recent years. He is the one man who has really put the finger on the subversives tunnelling under our form of life—and yet he has been subjected to abuse from every angle of the political compass for his reward.

This lean, intense Texan expected nothing but calumny from the Communists. He was a little surprised when the pompous pundits of the big, pretentious newspapers—newspapers which make a point of proclaiming their anti-Communism—began to fricassee his accomplishments as their concession to the fashionable trends of the day. I guess "Strip" will have to wait until he reaches Heaven before receiving proper recognition for his achievements.

The steady illumination which "Strip" focused on the Stalinist conspiracy placed his critics in something of a guandary. Unable to deflate his voluminous proofs, they have been forced to carp about the "methods" of his committee.

There is little doubt that some of the more edgy members of the committee did make "Strip's" problem unnecessarily difficult. And I myself believe that his tactics could have been a little more subtle at times. Not to tone down the disclosures, mind you, but rather to point up the extent of Communist penetration in key fields of American life.

During the Hollywood hearings, for instance, I always thought "Strip" was a little too fast on the trigger with his $64 question—are you now or have you ever been a member of the Communist party? I would have liked to have seen the witnesses questioned about the indisputable evidence linking them to every twist and variation of the Stalinist line. I firmly believed such an interrogation would have isolated the card-holding Communists for all America to see.

But the angels, if not the "liberals," were on Stripling's side. The Communist tactics couldn't have been better calculated to arouse public resentment had "Strip" charted them himself. The stupid subjection to Asiatic techniques which inhibits domestic Communists completely alienated the American public.

When the press, radio, and newsreels began to reveal the surly arrogance and the vicious injections of anti-Semitism which the "unfriendly" witnesses substituted for rational answers, the tide turned completely in favor of "Strip." The ground-swell of indignation against the "unfriendly" witnesses became so powerful that even Hollywood had to take heed and act.

But I am getting away from the subject. I just wanted to write a few words in tribute to "Strip" as he takes leave of the task he has fulfilled so conspicuously. He has earned the gratitude of every American. Au revoir, Strip.

General Hodges Soon to Retire

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A soldier whose trouble with freshman mathematics at West Point interrupted his military career, soon will retire from the service — a general.

When Courtney B. Hodges left the military academy after one year's service, he entered the ranks as an enlisted man.

And on Jan. 31, after 43 years of continuous service, he is going to step down as commanding general of the First army. He is 62.

Steel Plants Run At High Capacity

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — Steel plants in the Youngstown district will continue operations next week at 105 percent of capacity, with shortage problems rapidly disappearing.

The schedule calls for operation of three Bessemer converter plants, 72 open hearths and 25 blast furnaces.

Car Hits Culvert, Badly Damaged

Sheriff's deputies found a sedan had struck a cement culvert at the Lexington-Springmill road and U.S. Route 30-S, Friday night, resulting in considerable damage to the car.

There was no one around and they had the car towed to a garage. Deputies said a license check showed the car belongs to Gerald R. Crawford, of Mansfield, R. D. 6.

General Smith Hospitalized

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, U. S. ambassador to Moscow, is in Walter Reed hospital for a physical checkup, officers at the army medical center said yesterday.

The soldier diplomat has suffered from a stomach ailment at intervals for years. He underwent treatment in a Florida hospital early this month after an attack which came while he was on a hunting trip.

Officers at Walter Reed said he was "doing all right." He entered the hospital Jan. 20, and the hos- said it usually takes several days to go through the various clinics.

Lodge Offers Prizes for Best Essays on Brotherhood Theme

In observance of National Brotherhood Week, Feb. 13, to Feb. 20, the Mansfield chapter of B'nai Brith is sponsoring a school essay contest on the theme, "Brotherhood in Our Daily Lives."

The contest is being sponsored here at the suggestion of the National B'Nai Brith lodge which advocates that each individual chapter recognize the special week in this way.

Mrs. Albert E. Cousins, 495 Forest Hill road, has been appointed as essay contest chairman. All entries are to be sent to her, postmarked not later than midnight Feb. 20.

Entrants can be any school pupil of the Mansfield public school system, Madison township schools or St. Peter's parochial school from the seventh through the 12th grades.

Mrs. Cousins said yesterday that essays must be original and that only one entry may be submitted by each contestant. Essays must carry full signatures with the name of the school, grade and home address.

Contestants will be divided into two groups—those of the first three grades, seventh, eighths and ninth in the first group and 10th, 11th and 12th in the second.

Prizes will range from $2.50 to $15, Mrs. Cousins said. Entries may be submitted immediately.

Rules have been distributed to all schools, she said.

Plane Starts Mercy Flight

TRENTON, Ont. — (AP) — A mercy plane took off for Winnipeg yesterday on the first leg of a flight to save a tiny Eskimo village in the Arctic from being wiped out by a mysterious epidemic.

The ski-equipped twin-engined transport was dispatched after the Royal Canadian Air Force headquarters here received word that a plague was ravaging the hamlet of Cresswell Bay in the Fort Ross area, approximately 1,000 miles northwest of Churchill, Man.

News of the epidemic, carried part of the way from the north by dog team, was three months old. By November, nine of the 17 inhabitants of the village had died.

The rescue plane is scheduled to pick up a doctor at Winnipeg and then go on to the village.

Mrs. Schaefer Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Emma Schaefer, 67, of 120 North Walnut street, will be held tomorrow at 1 p. m. at the Wappner funeral home.

She died Friday after she fell down a flight of steps at her home.

Funeral services will be conducted by Maj. Williams J. Jones of the Salvation Army, in which Mrs. Schaefer was active for 50 years.

She is survived by three sons, John of Crestline and George and Homer of Mansfield; two daughters, Mrs. Kenneth Troupe and Mrs. Theodore Troupe of Mansfield; a sister, Ida Donohue of Toledo and 15 grandchildren.

Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Installs Officers

The Worthington Grange will install officers at Butler at 8 p. m. Wednesday. Other Granges participating include the Jefferson, Madison and Columbian Granges. There will be a basket dinner and those attending should bring table service.

Ex-Mansfielder Dies In Toledo

Mrs. Verda Stauffer, 74, died Friday in Toledo, where she had made her home since leaving Mansfield 20 years ago. Her husband preceded her in death three years ago. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Norma Woodford, of Marion, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 3:00 p. m. from the Wolford funeral home. Friends may call at the funeral home, starting Monday. Burial will be in Mansfield Memorial park.

Father of Two Mansfielders Dies

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Baker, 110 Kohler avenue, and their two sons, Gerald and Bliss, and Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Knapp and daughter, Jean, have returned from Ashtabula, where they were called because of illness and death of J. C. Taber, father of Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Knapp. Mr. Taber died last Tuesday and was buried Thursday. Mrs. Howard Kirchbaum, of Findlay, the Bakers' daughter, returned to Mansfield with them for the week end.

Ohioan Appointed

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Rep. Kirwan (D-Ohio) yesterday was named chairman of the Interior Subcommittee of the House Appropriations committee which handles appropriations for the interior department, including those for reclamation and irrigation.

WARREN —(AP)— Employment of Cleveland consulting engineers to prepare plans for a $3,500,000 water works has been announced by Warren officials.

Stock Prices Gain Slightly

Market Still Loafing Along

NEW YORK — (AP) — The stock market loafed along yesterday at a slightly higher price level.

Gains were mostly fractional and numerous issues were either ignored completely or held unchanged from the previous close.

Turnover was at a rate of only 250,000 shares for the two-hour session, which would be the lowest total for a Saturday in some four months.

U.S. Steel was one of the most active issues, usually at a fractionally higher price.

Others marked up a bit included Youngstown Sheet Tube, International Harvester, Consolidated Natural Gas, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Great Northern Preferred and Paramount Pictures.

American Telephone erased a modest early loss.

Recently popular Dow Chemical backed down a bit.

Caterpillar tractor was barely affected by an income statement which showed a boost in common share earnings for 1948 to $7.32 from $5.29 in 1947.

Higher in the curb were Pittsburgh Metallurgical, Glen Alden Coal, Cities Service, Copper Range, and American Beverage. Babcock Wilcox and U.S. Air Conditioning were shaded a bit.

Corporate bonds moved narrowly.

Ohioan Finds An Armadillo

LIMA—(AP)—Allen county folk were puzzled today over how an animal, which looks like a groundhog with armor plate, got into these parts.

It is a two-foot armadillo, captured near Beaver Dam by David Shaffer, 21, of Spencerville. Armadillos rarely are found north of Texas, and are most common in Mexico and South America.

Two fellow workers helped Shaffer dig the 12 pound animal out of a groundhog hole. It fled into the hole when it was chased.

The Ohio conservation department could offer no explanation of why the animal was so far north.

Attendance At Dinner to Exceed 200

Two hundred reservations have been made for the first annual Community Chest dinner to be held at 6:15 p. m. Monday at the Park Avenue Baptist church.

The program promises to be an interesting and graphic one. Each of five Red Feather youth agencies, YWCA, YMCA, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Friendly House and the Salvation Army, will present a stunt, portraying the work done by each agency. The other five agencies of the Chest will make brief verbal reports of their work during the year.

W. E. Slabaugh, president of the Chest, will preside.

PARKS TOO LONG

AKRON —(AP)— Parking overtime while he shopped in a Los Angeles department store caused his arrest after police had sought him two years, James Boyd Guy, 28, said yesterday as he arrived from California by plane in custody of two officers. Guy was indicted by a Summit county grand jury on four counts of shooting to kill and wound James Algea, 30, a chemical engineer.

New Pension Plans Urged

Unions Change Labor Tactics

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Government labor experts yesterday proposed an impartial cost analyzing body to help industry and labor find a safe middle ground in pension and welfare fund negotiations.

The suggestion was advanced by some of these officials as they took note of a change in union tactics.

The emphasis has switched from outright demands for new wage increases to proposals for better pension plans and other social benefits.

Besides pensions, other so-called welfare items like insurance, disability, and medical care are figuring more and more in the discussions between unions and their employes.

Four Groups Set Meetings

Four meetings on home hospitality, the last for this season on this topic have been scheduled for the week, Miss Mabel Spray, county home demonstration agent, announced. All the meetings start at 1:30 p. m.

The schedule includes:

Tuesday—Shiloh group, at the home of Mrs. C. S. Gladfelter.

Wednesday—Walnut Hill group, at the home of Mrs. Grace Litt. This group will have a covered dish luncheon.

Thursday—Bellville group, at the Community house.

Pledge of Allegiance to Flag

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Loan to Israel Evidences Friendship

THE UNITED STATES has accepted and passed the proverbial test of true friendship with respect to the new state of Israel. Money has been lent to the Israeli government.

The amount of the loan is $100,000,000, which even in these days of astronomical financing is no small sum. But of almost as much importance to Israel as the money itself is the political significance of the loan. It is an indication of American confidence in the permanence of the new government, and therefore may sway some other governments which have been hesitating over the question of whether to extend official recognition to Israel. Probably the hand of Israel also will be strengthened in negotiations with the Arab states.

The loan is for development of agriculture, housing, communications, manufacturing and public works. This is broad coverage of the field of possible improvements to raise the physical standard of living in Palestine. If the money is wisely used much good should result.

Billions of Dollars Could Be Saved

IN THE MONTHS when Congress is wrestling with the problems of expenditures and revenue, it is very much to the point to direct attention to one of the early partial reports of the Hoover Commission, studying the organization of government. The commission said that reorganization of the methods and setup of the government could save at least $3,250,000,000 a year.

If such a reorganization could be accomplished quickly, that saving would be enough to make the difference between deficit or surplus in the coming fiscal year, or between higher taxes and the same ones. Three billion dollars is a lot of money under any circumstances, and when it would be the difference between red ink and black on the balance sheet it becomes still more significant.

Complete reorganization of the government on the scope of the recommendations being built up by the Hoover Commission cannot be made in a day, probably not in a year. But for the sake of future budgets the reorganization should be started, and carried forward as speedily as is feasible.

There never was a time when the American taxpayers could afford to waste money in the fantastic inefficiencies being described in these reports.

Who Would Mutilate Library Book?

A DISTRESSING problem of some public libraries is the mutilation of books by vandals, as has recently occurred rather frequently in Cleveland. Occasionally a book is stolen, and this may be set down as a matter of simple thievery. When a book is mutilated there is thievery, too, since a portion of the book is stolen, but the damage is so much greater than the theft that the deed can only be called vandalism.

This is a puzzling kind of crime. The person who cuts or tears pages from a book must be moved at least partly by a desire to possess the pages, and this must spring from some appreciation of the artistry of pictures or literature. Why does he not also appreciate the artistic value of the intact book, and the magnitude of the damage done in mutilating it?

If public libraries are to serve their function, the problem is beyond policing. A library cannot have a staff large enough to keep watch over all patrons, and thus prevent vandalism. Moreover honest patrons are likely to be sensitive about being closely watched.

The only practical hope lies in education. The honest patron needs to learn to encourage and abet closer policing. The student who grabs a few pages to take home for work on a term paper should learn that his own moral loss outweighs any possible intellectual gain. The greatest effort must be made to reach the artistic sense of the mutilator, to convert him from a vandal to a lover of books.

Factors Contributing To Health

THE National Research Council has concluded, on the basis of a study in nine countries, that government medical service has little to do with the level of health in a country. It studied three countries with compulsory health plans, three with state-subsidized plans, and three with no government plans.

The council said it found no differences in infant mortality rates or life expectancy for males, the two items compared, which could be traced to differences in medical service plan. Principal factors in health, it said, are an adequate number of doctors, nurses and hospitals, adequate nutrition and high living standards.

This is an opinion which bears on proposals for some kind of national health plan in this country. If the opinion is accurate, national energy might better be spent in increasing medical facilities by more direct methods, and by giving attention to physical living conditions, which in some areas sorely need improvement.

How Some Writers Gained Fame

HE WROTE epic poems in which he took great pride, yet is remembered not for them, but for "The Story of the Three Bears." While his life of Nelson, the great British admiral, is still read, more people are familiar with his bit of light verse, "How the Water Comes Down at Lodore."

That is the whimsical fate of Robert Southey, once poet laureate of England, as recalled in a new biography by Jack Simmons. It is not such an unusual fate, either. The mathematical works of Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, learned as they are, have never brought him one hundredth of the fame that he attained by writing "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland".

A conclusion may perhaps be drawn from these instances: Write well for children and adults will appreciate you.

After a look around, Claude Callan advises: "Join some group and strive to win special privileges. If you work alone you can never hope for anything better than some little consolation prize like equal rights."

Naturally, more will be expected of Truman, now that his salary and expense allowance have been increased to an extent matching one of the lower brackets in movie circles.

So We Have to Go Through All That Again.

A Voice From the Country

Global Situation Helps Russia's Aims

By LOUIS BROMFIELD

CERTAINLY the month of January has brought the world in general nothing to be happy about, unless we exclude that little group of men hiding in the Kremlin for whom things seem to be going very well and according to plan. In the Near East, the British government is up to its old tricks again. Having failed to bring about success indirectly for its Arab friends whom it insists upon financing and arming, and having failed to get support in its policy either from the U. N. or this country, it manages to get some planes shot down as an excuse for strong arm intervention.

BROMFIELD

In Indonesia the Dutch, equipped with American lend-lease arms, pulled a very fast one in springing a private war while assuring this country and the U. N. that they had no intention of doing so.

In China the corrupt Chiang government continued losing everything to the so-called Red armies.

And at home, quietly and almost unnoticed, the boys in the Kremlin won two victories infinitely more important to them in the long run than the confused and doubtful victories in China.

The victories they won in the United States were Secretary of Defense Forrestal's report in behalf of the armed forces and President Truman's budget.

These were both very largely the result of Kremlin maneuvers in the Cold War, and both according to Kremlin's planning, for both operate to weaken our economy and to bring considerably nearer the Russian hope of producing economic confusion, depressions and hardships which, in the end, will make the situation ripe for socialism and finally communism to take over.

The Kremlin realizes that higher and higher taxes, inflation and higher and higher expenditures for arms and the subsidization of Europe are worth more to them than the atomic bombs are worth to us. And they are right.

As to the subsidization of Europe, we already have poured out five billions of taxpayers' money, and President Truman asks for that much more plus eventual "lend-lease" aid, which means simply gifts of arms of all kinds—again paid for by the taxpayers. Meanwhile, the only worry experienced by Soviet Russia is in consolidating the vast gains, territorial and economic, which came out of the Yalta-Teheran agreements.

* * *

Little Progress In Europe.

AS TO the aid for Europe, the returns have been infinitesimal, with no progress whatever toward economic union or federalization which are the only sound means of rehabilitating Europe.

While gulping down the American taxpayers' billions, Great Britain and Holland were caught red-handed buying scrap aluminum cheap in Canada and reselling it at a big profit to American manufacturers desperately in need of it. On top of that, the imported aluminum scrap actually was crossing in mid-ocean scrap purchased with American money and shipped from the U. S. to aid Europe.

Now Mr. Truman proposes to ship not only money and food and materials, but also arms to an area in which the small nations quarrel incessantly and erect against each other some of the most complicated customs barriers and restrictions to trade that ever have existed in history.

Americans and American corporations with money earned in Europe find it impossible in most countries to recover that money or even to spend it within the European countries where it was earned on commodities for export. If, actually, laws do not prevent the American from recovering his own earnings in Europe, hypocrisy and red tape made the recovery virtually impossible.

And in all this the U. N. rapidly is arriving at the status of the old League of Nations, ignored and futile save in such absurd manifestations as UNESCO, which is designed to culture up everybody.

This month could, very properly, be called Black January for the American people. Mr. Truman's gigantic budget, his proposals for gigantic tax increases, the armed forces' refusal to unite, economize or become efficient, while asking for more money than it took to run the whole government a generation ago, all are great victories for the Kremlin plotters who planned it that way.

Yours Truly, "Joe Gloom."

IF WE cannot pay our way in the record prosperity of these times with a vastly inflated dollar, what is going to happen when prosperity begins to slip, even a little bit. Disaster and, if things become bad enough, perhaps even bankruptcy and the repudiation of the debt.

Most of our politicians and a good many of our editors display the signs which precede disaster in a nation.

They appear to lack any historical sense and deal with every issue in terms of the moment. In a world as sick as the one in which we live, this approach is near to suicide.

At the moment there appears to be only one winner—Mr. Joe Stalin, who plays the Cold War up to the limit, draining us not only of money but also of steel and oil and wheat and all the things which are fundamentally more important than the money, while we use our own money to rob ourselves of that real wealth. What is it all about? What are we trying to do? I don't know, nor do I think does anyone else.

And so with these cheery thoughts I will sign myself off with the name "Joe Gloom." At least I have a farm where I can dig in until we are collectivized.

The Nation Today

If Ghosts Came Back

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON—All the well-fed flesh-and-blood people watched President Truman read his inaugural speech at the Capitol.

Once in a while a hand cupped itself around an ear. Or two heads turned to each other and nodded wisely about something Mr. Truman had said. No one seemed surprised at anything in his speech.

He was talking about peace and freedom for all people everywhere, and I wondered what a couple of ghosts from the not-very-long-ago would have thought if they were there.

I could almost see them in their great coats and tricorne hats, slipping in quietly and sitting down, unnoticed even by each other, for they had come in separately.

Then they saw each other and moved together, each recognizing the other for what he was, a ghostly stranger. One of them had a green cockade in his hat.

"I'm from the French Revolution," he said. "I kept up with things quite a while after that. But this is the first time I've been back for a look around in maybe 50 or 60 years."

The second ghost said: "Then you're more up to date than I am. I'm from the American Revolution and I haven't been back since."

As he caught the drift of the President's words, the American ghost sat numb with astonishment.

He stayed like that a long time after the President and the crowds were gone. At last he said to his new friend:

"Did you hear what I heard? He was talking about freedom for all people. He used 'free' or 'freedom' at least 20 times."

What's so strange about that?" said the French ghost, bitterly. He pulled his coat tighter as the icy wind whipped across the Capitol plaza.

"But we won freedom back in 1776," said the American ghost. "I thought we had set an example for the whole world. I thought by this time all people everywhere would have won freedom for themselves."

The better-traveled French ghost, who had been back a number of times since his own revolution in 1789, looked at his companion.

"Freedom isn't as simple as that," the French ghost said. "We wanted it. We took a lesson from you, although nobody else did for a long time. Freedom was the battle-cry in our revolution."

"And we won freedom. Then we lost it again for a long time. We didn't know how to handle it when we had it. We had to struggle for it all over again. Now once more we have it. I hope we can keep it."

* * *

Limited "Freedom."

THE AMERICAN ghost said: "Oh, but we know how to handle it. As soon as we got it, we kept it. We made it work, I'm sure."

"Don't kid yourself," the French ghost said. "Back in those days, when you said 'we have freedom,' you meant just freedom for some of you. What about your slaves?

"There wasn't any freedom for them until you fought a civil war among yourselves, and that was almost a hundred years later."

The American ghost was silent a moment. Then he said: "Why isn't everyone free by this time? Doesn't everyone want it?"

"I'm sure everyone does, if he can think or feel at all," the French ghost said. "But, look. Freedom isn't some weed growing wild, ready to be plucked by any passer-by.

"It's a tender and delicate flower. You have to want it very badly before you begin to appreciate its beauty. And there always have been people eager to crush it and crush the hand that reached for it.

"For most of history those few people have been able to keep the others out of the garden where it grows.

"To pluck it at all, you must want it, really want it. You must be willing to struggle for it. And if you're lucky, you'll get help from those who also want it, or already have it.

"That's what Mr. Truman was talking about. That's why he kept repeating 'free' and 'freedom.' He wanted people everywhere to think of what he was saying, and to feel it.

"He was saying that if they wanted it badly enough they'd get help in reaching for the flower."

It Says Here:

—By KEN WOODMAN

WELL, according to the Dun and Bradstreet cost of living index, things are getting cheaper. This is good. It will give people more money to pay higher taxes.

* * *

Of course, if this means that corporate earnings are falling off Congress may have to look for something other than profits to tax.

* * *

But someone may come along soon with the suggestion that everybody be given a tax-free expense account and that government pay all the taxes itself. This will do away with any silly notion that citizens should pay for their government and demand their money's worth.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Bevin Scolds Ambassador Lew Douglas

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—While Washington concentrated on making Harry Truman the 32nd President of the United States, a lot of important things happened in the rest of the world just the same. Here are some of them: While President Truman was bawling out British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks, Foreign Minister Bevin was doing the same to U.S. Ambassador Lewis Douglas. Douglas called on Bevin with a protest against the movement of British troops around the Palestine-Egyptian border. The ambassador's call was on the direct instruction of the White House, but Foreign Minister Bevin told him Britain would move troops as it pleased regardless of advice from the USA.

PEARSON

At long last, the American embassy in Belgrade is closing a trade deal with Marshal Tito to wean him further away from the Iron Curtain.

Tito himself suggested the deal shortly after Moscow announced it planned to cut Russian-Yugoslav trade by 90 per cent. Delighted with the Tito overture, the state department authorized the American embassy in Belgrade to proceed rapidly, and we will soon trade American copper, machinery and oil for Yugoslav copper, lead and zinc.

This may be a big step toward a new friendship with the once-belligerent and anti-American Yugoslav leaders. (The Yugoslav people generally have been pro-American.)

* * *

Boycotting Dictators.

Suddenly and secretly the state department has cancelled a U.S. Air Force flight to Peru. Reason: Peru is now under military dictatorship.

The Air Force, however, its ear attuned to motors rather than political niceties and with one of its big ex-airmen, Gen. Harold George, now running the Peruvian lines, was all set to send a goodwill flight to Peru. Whereupon, acting secretary Lovett stepped in, threatened to take the matter to the White House unless the idea was dropped. It was dropped.

Meanwhile, President Truman himself has cautioned the state department about recognizing the new military dictatorship in Venezuela. President Gallegos, the man the Venezuelan army exiled, traveled with Truman to Bolivar, Missouri, and this is something Mr. Truman definitely understands.

* * *

True To Form.

HERBERT HOOVER is handing out information about the same way as when president of the United States.

The other day Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan wrote the ex-president asking for a copy of the Hoover commission's preliminary report on reorganizing the agriculture department.

Since Brannan would be called to put the report into effect, naturally he wanted to begin studying it.

Hoover replied that he was sorry, that the information was secret.

What Hoover didn't know is that agriculture dean H. P. Rusk of the University of Illinois, who headed the subcommittee studying the agriculture department, had already sent copies of the report to the heads of every agriculture college in the country. In other words, about every agriculture expert had received the report except the man who would have to make it work.

* * *

British Monkey Wrench.

THE BRITISH have thrown a monkey wrench into the North Atlantic pact. At a secret meeting with Undersecretary of State Lovett last week, British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks presented an official demand from London that Britain's African colonies and dominions be included in the new alliance against Russia.

Lovett and the French ambassador, Henri Bonnet, were vigorously opposed. Bonnet was especially indignant, pointing out that this proved French fears that Britain is more interested in defending her African bases and colonies than the defense of the European continent.

* * *

Navy Loses Old Friend.

HOUSE Armed Services Chairman Carl Vinson with more say-so on military matters than any congressman, will fight for a full 70-group air force—even if it has to be paid for out of Army and Navy budgets.

Vinson's idea is to spend more for the Air Force and less for the Army and Navy. He is especially gunning for naval aviation, plans to put all except sea-duty planes into one air force.

Interesting fact is that Vinson used to be the Navy's chief spokesman on Capitol Hill—until he decided that the Air Force was the nation's first line of defense.

High Cost of Romance

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHAT does it cost your 18-year-old son to take his best gal to a swank night club? Not just a little village club but the glamor center in some big city?

Do you think that's a trivial question? Well, it isn't. It's one of the most serious problems in young America's world today and it's doing more than any other current problem to shape the future of our nation.

Time was when taking out your best girl friend was a modest affair. She made her own party dress, to begin with. Her mama taught her how. It was made from a dotted swiss and it cost all of $2.90 at the local dry goods store.

Her flowers were collected from some neighbor's garden and were as sweet as any Fifth Avenue orchid. Transportation was equally modest. She went in Dad's buckboard or the village hack or her thrifty admirer borrowed the neighbor's surrey with the fringe on top.

The whole setup, including the wild extravagance of an ice cream soda, set her admirer back $1.75. And that was the limit.

Nowadays no self respecting young man would dare to escort his sweetie to a street car or bus. He would hire at least a taxi or a drive-your-own. The least ornament which he could bestow on his siren would be a five dollar orchid.

Frequently this would be accompanied by a bottle of French perfume. And by the time our hero had struggled through the cover charge and miscellaneous taxes he would have spent at least a week's mazuma. Anything less than that would brand him as a piker and a lowdown hick.

* * *

THESE figures are not exaggerated. They are not the dream fantasy of some raver on juvenile delinquency. They are the minimum expenses which are expected today of any young man who aspires to take out an ordinary young American girl, and they are far below the maximum, believe me.

They truly represent a week's wages if not much more and that's a mere courtship fee. It does not involve any serious intentions.

Nor is this a sudden change which has come overnight. It is an accepted matter of social opinion which has been creeping up on us for years. For years our young men have been forced to spend a sum equalling Dad's income tax in order to take one commonplace, nice little girl out for the evening.

She doesn't need to be a spectacular beauty. She doesn't have to rate amongst the Astorbilts. She's just an ordinary kid with freckles on her nose and a giggle under her upper lip and no exorbitant demands in the way of luxury.

So what do you think of that? What do you think of a situation which compels our boys to expend such an amount of money or be rated as jerks?

Personally I think the whole situation is cockeyed and is doing more damage to the American state of matrimony than any other grievance on earth.

I believe if it costs that much to take a girl out for one evening's entertainment it's going to cost too much to live with her for life.

Every young couple stepping out for a dance or a movie should be willing to wear their prettiest and act their nicest and display their best manners but no young couple should expect such an idiotic expenditure as that. No girl should be too flossy to ride in a bus or street car. No boy should be expected to spend ten dollars for an orchid.

The whole thing is bugeyed and you can take it from me, pardner, we're going to have our ears pinned back to pay for this foolishness sooner or later. Preferably sooner.

WELL, the inaugural is over and every circus, up to and including Ringling Brothers, has a mark to shoot at for this season.

They even had a steam calliope in the parade. With any encouragement Harry would have climbed aboard and played "Buttons and Bows" on it.

* * *

I like fun, and laughs never hurt anybody, but I fancy a little more dignity and seriousness when a ruler of one of the greatest states on earth takes the helm in days so full of problems and perils for every American.

* * *

There were moments when millions were watching a great historic ceremony in the old tradition or witnessing the launching of a new Olsen and Johnson show.

* * *

However, if it put Harry in stronger spirit for the tough job ahead it was okay with me. It won't be much fun up there among the global worries from now on.

Remember Ponzi?

The death of a man who swindled gullible Americans on such a big scale that his name was once a synonym for get-rich-quick" schemes, naturally recalls that era.

In Boston, in 1920, Charles Ponzi scooped into market baskets the cash which flowed in on the promise that senders would get 50% in 45 days.

Two Boston banks collapsed with the busting of the Ponzi bubble. Ponzi served seven years in prison and was then deported to Italy. For a time during the war he prospered again in Brazil.

When death came, Charles Ponzi was a tired old man of 71, paralyzed and partly blind. Unless friends of more prosperous days come to the rescue the body will go to a pauper's grave.—Cleveland Press.

Thoughts of Home

—By ANNE CAMPBELL

To be at home is happiness.
Peace trembles, in the quiet air,
Only home-loving footsteps press
These carpets, making my day fair.

The furniture cannot be priced,
For it was touched by long-dead hands.
With friendliness the rooms are spiced,
And love obeys the heart's commands.

There is no luxury to greet
The neighbor who comes in to call,
But harmony makes each room sweet,
And God's white candles light the hall.

The world outside is gay and loud,
A band plays in the gathered gloam.
Somewhere there is a laughing crowd,
But I would rather stay at home,

The past and future mingle here;
The memories I love so much.
This is the almost perfect sphere,
Where earth and heaven seem to touch.

CHURCH NEWS

Public installation services were held at Shiloh Baptist church last Sunday evening and all officers and departmental heads of the church were installed by the pastor, Rev. A. J. Payne.

Shiloh Baptist Missionary society met at the home of Mrs. Lulu Chiles on Lily street last Thursday evening.

Missionary Society No. 2 of Mt. Calvary Baptist church recently elected the following officers:

Mrs. S. B. Beauford, president; first vice president, Mrs. William Byrd; second vice president, Mrs. Wesley Bradley; third vice president, Mrs. John Blossomgame; fourth vice president, Mrs. Robert Lattimore; secretary, Mrs. L. Hammon; assistant and corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. T. Wisdom; treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Pearson. The society plans a banquet in the near future.

Missionary Society No. 2 of Mt. Calvary Baptist church sponsored a program at the church last Sunday afternoon. During the program the society presented the church a lace tablecloth and a chrome coffee service. A social hour followed, in the ladies lounge.

The Path Finders class No. 11 of Mt. Calbary Baptist church held election of officers Thursday afternoon, Jan. 13 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Wisdom on Orange street. Officers elected were Mrs. Cora Herman, president; Mrs. L. T. Wisdom, secretary; Rev. S. B. Beauford, teacher and Mrs. Julia Turner, assistant teacher. A social hour was enjoyed after the meeting.

The Church of God in Christ on North Diamond street has begun a $2,000 building fund drive to complete the church auditorium. The drive will end the second Sunday in June.

An annual roll call of the membership of the church is being inaugurated at Mt. Calvary Baptist church next Sunday, Jan. 30 at the 11 A. M. services. Memorial services for members who have passed away will also be held at this time. This service will be held each year in January.

ORGANIZATIONS AND CLUBS

Two new Girl Scout troops have been started at Hedges school, one an intermediate troop and the other a Brownie troop. Mrs. Louise Anderson is supervisor of the intermediate troop for which fifth grade students are eligible, and Miss Willa Mae Lee is supervisor of the Brownie troop in which second grade pupils are eligible. The leaders along with Mrs. L. T. Wisdom are taking training in Scout leadership at Town House, 17 N. Franklin.

More leaders are needed and also women to serve on the troop committee. A Brownie troop will be started at Bowman school at an early date. Mothers are asked to urge their daughters to participate in Scout activities, which are fine character builders. There will be a meeting for high school girls at Town House on Jan. 25. Mrs. S. B. Beauford had done much to get these troops started.

May Chapter No. 62 O. E. S. will meet in the chapter rooms Thursday, Jan. 27.

Queen Esther Chapter No. 1, O. E. S. will meet Monday, Jan. 24 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ferguson on East Luther Place.

The Utopia club is having a tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Burrell, 129 East Luther place today. Hours are from 4:30 til 6 p. m.

The Auxiliary of American Legion Post No. 72 had a rummage sale yesterday on North Main street at Allen Jackson's place.

The Auxiliary will meet Monday, Jan. 24. This organization is planning a Kiddie and Valentine party for Feb. 14.

The Fifth District American Legion conference will meet today in Fostoria. Those who planned to attend are Mr. and Mrs. John Clement, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Atwater, Mr. and Mrs. Winston Greene, Miss Hazel Williams, Miss Louise Allen, Chris Drye and Jesse Caston.

Science Aids Prospectors

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Russia got the jump on the world 17 years ago in the important new science of geochemical prospecting, but American geochemists or even outdistanced the Soviet scientists in giving the pick-and-shovel prospector a new tool—the chemical kit.

They can't be sure, because Russia clamped a secrecy lid on geochemical research a year ago. Since January 1948 no new reports on Soviet work of this type have been available.

It's all very important from a security standpoint because the nation that maps its hidden ore deposits the most thoroughly is in the best position to use those resources in time of war.

The U.S. Geological Survey has made public the translations of six Russian papers on geochemical research. The most important article, by Soviet geologist E. A. Sergeev, summarizes Russia's work up to 1940 in soil analysis as a method of prospecting for mineral ores.

Says youthful, curly-haired Herbert E. Hawkes, director of the Geological Survey's two-and-a-half-year-old project for geochemical research:

"Our program got under way in 1946. In addition to laboratory work, we started digging through all the obscure little journals in government libraries, looking for papers on what other countries were doing about soil-analysis prospecting. We found to our complete amazement that the Russians were 14 years ahead of us. They had started the work in 1932."

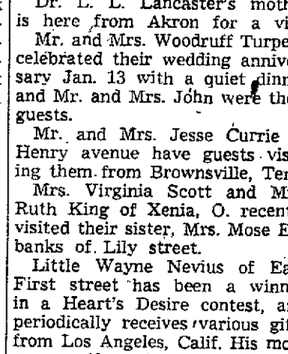
Some phases of prospecting research were under way in other countries, Hawkes says. Sweden, for example, was making progress on the chemical analysis of vegetation as a clue to the soil's composition.

But most of the reporting on the subject was by the Russians. Hawkes himself had to learn to read Russian in order to translate the articles and to check the accuracy of translations by other persons.

Hawkes says at least three commercial companies in the United States already are experimenting in geochemical prospecting. The Geological Survey project, he adds, is "barely reaching the stage where we are ready to give it a whirl in the field."

THE NEW REPLOGLE DRAFTING MACHINE

For School, Office, Home, Field Use



This new machine cuts your drafting time at least one-third by combining the drawing board, T-square, protractor, triangles and scales into one single unit. Its one-piece construction enables you to complete neat drawings up to 22 x 16 in. anywhere—in school, office, shop, home or on field trips in your car. It is a professional type machine in every respect, now available at an extremely low price. The three-way aluminum scale arm includes standard, architects' and engineers' scales.

HUNTING DOG—PARDON, A HUNTING HOG—DOWN ON INDIANA FARM—Well, I'll be hog-goned, if that isn't sumthin'. A hog has replaced a dog as the hunting companion of Jack Hough, Adams county, Indiana, farmer. The hog, called "Barney," is a six-month-old male Hampshire. He goes through the woods and fields with Hough, and follows trail until he flushes it. Hough says the hog followed him one morning and has been doing it ever since. And he gets results, declares his owner.—(International)

Ho, hum. Had a derogatory letter in the mail this week, and as is usually the case the writer "forgot" to sign his name.

He wanted to know how far beyond the city limits I had ever been and he hurt my feelings. Shucks, I went clear over to Lexington one day.

I like a good argument and can assure you of a fair crack at me if you'll only sign your letters. Now don't EVERYONE leap for a pen and pencil. We only get so much space each week!

We're trying to check up on a report that some beavers are now living within the county, and hope to have this ready in a week or so. There's a pretty good chance that there are, especially since word came to us that several are now located in Trumbull township.

The Conservation League, incorporated, of Warren is trying to raise funds to build a 921 acre reserve around the new beaver dam. To raise funds, the league is soliciting by mail.

It's a good cause and all that, but I can't help but contrast their method to that of the Richland County Wildlife Protective association. Our county group wanted a reserve, bought a farm, and is now setting up a series of events and activities to pay for it.

Take a bow boys, you deserve it!

★

Speaking of sportsmen's groups, the Loundonville Wild Life Conservation club held a meeting this past week and arranged to purchase more than 100 rabbits to be released this spring.

A plan is afoot to have some noted conservation expert address the group at an early meeting.

Here's an idea we'd like to advance to the officers of the various sportsmen's groups. How about exchange meetings between the various groups in this area?

Some constructive ideas should be gained by each of the clubs in this manner, and most sportsmen would like to get together more than once a month in the winter.

The recent warm spell had most fishermen looking forward to a quick trip afield, but look what it did to the fish worms!

Ray Brokaw who lives out on the Lexington road caught half a can of night crawlers on his lawn Tuesday night. The crawlers were not slow and half-dead, according to Ray. He claims they popped back into their holes like greased lightening when the light fell on 'em.

What's that old saying — 'In the spring a young worm's fancy' — naw, that's wrong. If the cold snap hadn't settled in Wednesday I'd have taken advantage of his offer to let me have the crawlers.

So you think fishing and hunting don't cost money, eh? (Well, maybe you already know they do but we'll quote a few facts and 'figgers' to prove it.)

During the 1947-48 hunting season, hunters paid $29,814,327 for licenses in the United States During the same period, ending June 30, 1948, fishermen paid $28,350,069. More than 14 million fishermen purchased licenses, setting records for both cash spent and number of licenses sold

Ohio ranked fourth in sales of hunting licenses and second in sales of fishing licenses. Is it any wonder our game finds survival a tough proposition?

Considering the number of men and women who take to the field, it's a minor miracle that game and fish appear to be gaining in numbers.

Kentucky officials are reporting a lot of trouble from some coyotes who have crossbred with dogs The animals are killing stock and a full-scale war is being planned on them.

If anyone cares to make a little money, a bounty of $50 apiece has been offered for the animals. But be set for some rough times. One of the coyotes caught in two steel traps managed to whip four dogs!

Ogden Again Heads League

ASHLAND — Dr. J. W. Ogden, Hayesville, will continue another term as president of the Ashland County Wild Life Conservation league following his re-election at the league's annual meeting held at Hayesville.

Other officers elected include John Baxter, first vice president; Jay Whitney, second vice president; H. E. Russell, treasurer and recorder; Robert Shenberger, corresponding secretary and G. L. McClaran, assistant treasurer and recorder.

Elected to head the league's divisions were Whitney, coon dog, George Lingle, bird dog; Irvin Imhoff, beagle; Harry Long, fish; Robert Ryland, vermin control; H. L. Hess, forestry; George Krill, junior membership.

DIVORCES AERIAL STAR

KANSAS CITY —(AP)— Harry A. Rybock, 31, civilian personnel officer at Wright Field, Dayton, yesterday was granted a divorce from Elsabeth Maria Johanna Rybock, 26, circus tight-wire dancer. Her maiden name of Endres was restored.

Know Your Fish

Bass Deserve Reputation as Scrappers

Although the annual catch of bluegills and other panfish far exceeds that of both large and smallmouth bass, the latter two species well deserve the title of the "poor man's trout."

A hard fighter and a fair-sized fish, the bass provides more thrills for the average fisherman than any other fish. Not that he's the hardest fighter. He's not. But he's large enough and plentiful enough that even those who are fishing for perch, crappies, bluegills, etc. show up at the end of a day's fishing with several of these scrappers in their string.

Sportsmen in different parts of the country may talk about cypress trout, slabsides, greenbacks, largies, or any number of other names, but it all evolves into one thing. They are usually passing a compliment or two concerning bass.

Outside of the smaller members of the sunfish family the bass has perhaps more names than any other fish but fights just as hard and proves just as plentiful under any of these names.

Live bait (especially minnows and crawfish), casting baits, and fly baits are the three most common methods of catching bass with casting running well in advance of the other two methods.

Primarily, the reason for this is that the fisherman who spends the amount of money needed for a rod, reel, and several baits is usually a student of this fish.

He knows the bass hang out in shaded spots, around sunken logs or tree roots, in a deep pool at the foot of a riffle, and that the fish likes water which has a temperature of 65 to 70 degrees. Past trips have shown him that bass feed early in the morning, just before dark, and that they will often move into water which is so shallow their fins will stick out of the water.

LEARN TRICKS

He has learned that a bait thrown out on the water and left lying there for several minutes before it is moved will attract more strikes than a bait which is hurled far out and then retrieved as fast as possible. Tired arms and limited catches have proved to him that short casts from 20 to 30 feet will produce more fish than the long casts for which so many fishermen strive.

There are several reasons for this, but the vast majority of strikes come during the first feet of the retrieve. Therefore, if a fisherman casts shorter he will cover more water in less time than the artist who arches his plugs clear over in the next county. And he'll bring home more fish.

Under certain conditions, however, long casts are necessary. If the water is clear and the day is bright, the bass can see the fisherman for quite some distance. To quiet his fears and keep him interested, the bait must be thrown as far away as possible. As a general rule this procedure is used in a mid-summer method.

Fly fishing is the most thrilling of the three methods, but few fishermen become expert enough to handle the light baits and long lines. The light tackle gives the bass a chance to prove his fighting ability and many a rod tip has been broken by fish which scale only a pound or a pound and a half.

As for live bait, old timers claim a bigger bait will catch a bigger fish and this seems to prove out. If small minnows are used, crappies and larger bluegills will keep cleaning the hook. In addition, the minnows soon wear themselves out fighting the hook and lose their attractiveness. Chub and sucker minnows of four or four and one-half inch length seem to catch the larger bass. Strikes will be fewer, but the average fish will be bigger.

As for pertinent facts which identify the bass: the mouth is unusually large for the size of the body, even in the small mouth bass; the stomach is a creamy white; and the back is a dark green. Even within the same school, several different shades of black and greenish scales can be found along the sides.

For those who are not familiar with the way a bass searches for food and launches his attack, a few hours spent on a ten or twelve foot bluff overlooking a stream or lake will provide knowledge that will be of assistance in future trips. For one thing, as the bass are young they will school along the shores, cruising in search of food, and two or three will dart forth after the same meal. As they grow older and larger, they quit this schooling practise and go along the shoreline in groups of three or four. Eventually they will run in pairs but rather than mates they seem to be chance acquaintances.

As a summary, the man who wants more bass to put on his stringer will confine his fishing to the early morning and late evening hours; will cast short; will use baits which resemble a minnow; and will have the patience of Job.

Happy bassing!

READY FOR RESCUES

CLEVELAND— (AP) —The coast guard's only helicopter in the ninth dictrict will be assigned to Buffalo for rescue work next month if ice on Lake Erie there is thick enough to support fishermen. Every winter many emergency calls come from the Buffalo area asking help for fishermen stranded on ice floes, coast guard officers said.

Fish and Game Law Violation Arrests High

Arrests for fish and game law violations hit an all-time high in Ohio this past year, conservation officials have reported.

A total of 3,081 arrests were made, and of this number only ten persons escaped conviction.

The other 3,071 paid fines totaling $65,130.50. The money will be used to aid fish and game conservation work.

Stag Smoker Held By Bucyrus Club

BUCYRUS — A stag smoker was held Thursday night at the Bucyrus Gun club, west of here, by members of the Bucyrus Junior Chamber of Commerce and guests.

Cards and recorded music provided entertainment with refreshments being served. About 30 attended the affair which took the place of the club's regular monthly meeting.

CHAMPION—This perk Peke with a name that gives an indication of his Chinese ancestry, (Ir-Ma-Mi Hey-Tsi Tang) is a consistent winner in dog shows. The dog's most recent award was given at the Wisconsin Kennel club show where the pekingese won the championship title. The owner, Mrs. Irene Miles Herring, Nail road, R. D. 1, Mansfield, took the dog to the competition in Milwaukee. The pekingese, which will be two years old Feb. 1, has won four three-point shows in addition to the one at Milwaukee, and also a one-pointer.

More people now are working on U.S. farms than at any time since 1940.

Our 100th Anniversary Year

MANSFIELD'S OLDEST FUNERAL ESTABLISHMENT

This firm, founded in 1849 by James A. Niman, was the first funeral establishment in Richland County.

UNDER SAME MANAGEMENT FOR THE PAST THIRTY FIVE YEARS

J. H. Finefrock, then manager of the Black & Wright Company, Cleveland's largest funeral directors at that time, purchased the Niman interests, November 27, 1914 and has managed the operation of this firm since that time.

A NEW FUNERAL HOME

After occupying the Niman Corner, North Main Street at West Temple Court for 78 years, the old Niman homestead was purchased at 100 West Fourth Street, was dismantled and the present funeral home was erected. It was the only funeral home in Mansfield specifically constructed for its purpose and is still one of the finest buildings of its kind in Ohio.

NATIONAL SELECTED MORTICIANS

In 1928, the National Selected Morticians, an organization which selects one funeral director from each city in the United States on the basis of professional qualification, financial soundness and ethical standing, invited the Finefrock Mortuary to represent Mansfield in its organization, and this firm has been representing Mansfield in this honor group every year since.

PROFESSIONAL CONTRIBUTIONS

J. H. Finefrock has contributed much to the profession. He served as President of this district of the National Selected Morticians, President of the Ohio Funeral Directors Association in 1936-1937, and a member of the Ohio Board of Embalmers and Funeral Directors 1941-1947.

THE FOURTH GENERATION

In commemoration of our 100th anniversary, Mr. Finefrock has now associated with him his two sons, John H. Finefrock, Jr., and Don A. Finefrock. John Finefrock, Jr., is a graduate of Western Reserve University and the Cincinnati College of Embalming. He served in the United States Army in the Pacific Ocean Area during World War II. Don A. Finefrock attended Denison University, is a graduate of Cleveland College of Embalming and served in the United States Army in the China, Burma, India Area during World War II. Both sons are licensed Funeral Directors and Embalmers.

WE HAVE SERVED

Our firm has been called upon to serve many families in Mansfield and vicinity throughout the years because we have maintained a thoughtful, dignified and conscientious service, a beautiful, well equipped funeral home, an expertly trained and thoroughly experienced staff and economically priced services.

Dear John:

On behalf of the members of NSM, its officers and Board Members, we extend our congratulations to you and your firm upon the 100th Anniversary of your business in Mansfield. This is the most significant milestone which any business can attain.

The people of Mansfield have been fortunate to have the splendid service offered by your firm throughout these years. You have maintained the highest standard of funeral service to be found anywhere. Throughout the years you have been progressive, bringing the newest and most advanced methods, equipment and facilities to those who have called upon you to serve them.

John, your thirty-five years of personal management of this business and your sincere service to the people of Mansfield has been equalled by the splendid contributions which you have made to your profession. You have been a respected leader in your associations and have likewise played an important part in developing the licensing laws for the advancement of funeral service and the protection of the public. Your contribution has been a very large one.

Twenty-one years ago, this organization welcomed you and your firm into membership. You were invited to membership because you met the exacting requirements and standards of this organization. You have consistently maintained these standards throughout the years. We have been proud to include you in the membership of this organization.

And now, you have attained your 100th Anniversary. Our congratulations to you and our sincere hope that your firm may carry on with the same sincere progressive service to your fellow men for another hundred years.

With every good wish to you and yours, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Overall-Clad Trio Passes Worthless Checks In Plymouth

Chief Says Four Places Cash Papers

Nearby County Officers Alerted

PLYMOUTH—Officers of nearby counties are assisting Police Chief Robert Meiser locate an overall-clad trio that passed worthless checks here a week ago. Four business establishments were victimized.

Donald Willet, who operates harness shop here, cashed one check for $46 while Songwer's restaurant cashed one for $27 and the local Texaco gas service station got one for $5. The other, of an undisclosed amount, was cashed at an unidentified tavern here.

There were two young men and a middle-aged man in the group, Chief Meiser reported. They drove a stock-carrying type truck and secured cash by stating they had nothing but the check on their persons when they were presented bills at the various business places.

Three of the checks were drawn on the New London Savings bank and the other on an Ashland bank. They were returned marked "no funds." Meiser notified sheriffs in adjoining Huron and Crawford counties to aid him track down the trio.

The trio has not returned here and no warrants have been issued but prosecution is promised if the men are apprehended, Meiser stated Saturday. One of the suspects has been seen frequently at cattle and horse sales in Bucyrus.

Two of the checks bore the signatures of Robert Gray and E. E. Williams while another had the signature of E. L. Boyd and Eugene Walton, the chief said.

'Queen' Gets Post's Aid

CRESTLINE—The candidacy of Beverly Bausch, local girl chosen District 10 queen by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, for state queen selection was backed by the local VFW organization as $50 was forwarded to the district president. Gifts also were sent to Willard McComas who has been ill at his home.

The post announced a banquet, followed by a dance, in the local hall on Saturday, Feb. 19 which will be open to the public. The Policemen's Ball has been scheduled in the VFW hall for Feb. 2.

Last week's scholastic grid banquet was held at the hall and Coach Eldon Smith addressed the post members. The organization donated $25.

Purchasing of material and redecoration of the kitchen were discussed at the meeting. When completed the post's kitchen will be equipped with the latest modern conveniences.

Crestline Cast Rehearsing Play

CRESTLINE — The Dramatic club of Crestline high school under the direction of Robert Crider are practicing the play "We Shook the Family Tree," which will be presented in the near future.

Leesville Lutherans Sponsoring Minstrel

LEESVILLE—St. John's Lutheran church here is sponsoring a minstrel at the local high school auditorium at 8:15 p. m. on Jan. 31. It will be presented by the Friendship class of St. Paul's Lutheran church of Bucyrus.

The Leesville church is engaged in an extensive improvement program and the minstrel is expected to provide additional funds for the church. A minstrel last year proved to be a great success.

GET EGYPTIAN ORDER

LOUDONVILLE—Fixible company has received a letter of confirmed credit for five more coaches from El Alamia, the representative from Cairo, Egypt. Eleven Fixible coaches already are operating in Egypt.

SWISS PRODUCTS ADMIRED—Mrs. Karl Oesch (standing and holding a tray of edelweiss) and her daughter, Emily, Mrs. Harold Went of 917 Herring avenue, Mansfield, look over souvenirs in the Oesch farm home near Shelby. These were obtained in Switzerland which the Oesch parents visited last fall. A beanie cap, on the arm of the chair, is a child's favorite and carries emblems of the Swiss counties. The small bells on the top of the end table are worn by goats and sheep while the larger cow bells are scattered on the floor and on the table. Mrs. Went holds a Swiss Christmas cake in her lap. It is inscribed with a greeting and frosted outline of the town's church.

Yodeling Secondary on Karl Oesch Farm

Swiss Cow Bells To Peal In County

By BILL HERRING
N-J State Editor

SHELBY—Swiss music will peal out on the Karl Oesch farm southeast of here this spring when the cows are turned out to pasture.

It'll not be traditional Swiss yodeling but will emanate from cow bells Oesch secured on his recent visit to his native Switzerland. Last fall he and Mrs. Oesch visited his birthplace of Schwarzenegg, near Berne. He has 12 of the cow bells each tuned to a different octave so they'll provide a "song" and help locate each belled cow.

Oesch and his wife, Tillie, sailed Aug. 7 on the Queen Elizabeth and returned Dec. 9 on the Queen Mary. The return trip was an eventful one made in foggy and stormy weather and found the vessel reaching American shores at the height of the east coast shipping strike.

GETS A BARGAIN

He was to order cow bells for a Mansfield resident but couldn't resist getting some for himself when the maker offered them at cost. They all bear his initials, the year of manufacture, the Swiss flag shield and either mountain roses or edelweiss (the Swiss native flower) cast on the bell. They also bear the name of the maker —Gebr. Berger, or Gerber Brothers in English.

Two have been given away—one to his wife and the other to his brother, Fred, of Alto, Mich. Leather collars are attached so they may be hung on the cow's neck.

Karl was born in Schwarzenegg and Friday observes his 66th birthday anniversary. He has been in the United States for 45 years, first settling at Alto, Mich. He has been a Richland county Ohioan for 17 years and now owns two farms near here. One, of 270 acres, is on Shelby, R. D. 1 while the other, of 135 acres is a mile and a half distant on the Amoy road. He does general farming, specializing in dairy farming.

He became acquainted with his wife while she was visiting in Alto with her father, Rev. John Fuhrer of Bern, Ind. The Fuhrers are Russian and the Oeschs were married in Mansfield in 1914 and have 10 children, between the ages of 35 and 18 years. They are Benjamin, Ann, Rose, Edith, John, Emily, Elmer, Martha, Helen and Robert. There are eight grandchildren.

Emily now Mrs. Harold Went of 917 Herring avenue, Mansfield, helped Martha care for the three younger brothers while the parents were abroad.

COUSIN WELL KNOWN

Karl has a brother, Fred, in Alto, Mich., a sister in Germany and two other sisters in Berne, Switzerland and an aunt, Mrs. Eliza Giger, 75, who lives in Edmore, Mich. A cousin, Karl Lennart Oesch, was general chief of staff of the Finnish army until Finland surrendered to Russia.

He was sentenced to 11 years in prison but was released after serving three years in a prisoner of war camp and now serves as an interpreter as he speaks seven languages.

The edelweiss is the last flower to bloom before snow falls and is found on the southern side of the mountains. It is highly regarded by the Swiss and a gift from a youth to a girl is paramount to announcing their engagement.

The farmer from near Berne, Switzerland and his wife, from Bern, Ind., await spring when the cows will be turned into pasture fields with the Swiss bells reminding all within hearing distance of a pleasant trip to the old country.

Farm Club Plans Loudonville Dance

LOUDONVILLE — The Young Men's Farm club will sponsor a round and square dance at the high school gym on Wednesday evening. Johnny Mack's orchestra will furnish music.

The club also has decided to send two delegates, Alonzo Heffelfinger and Dale Snyder, to the Young Farmers' conference to be held at Ohio State university Feb. 4 and 5.

Monday evening the club will attend the International Harvester program being sponsored by the Strang Implement company of Loudonville and on Jan. 31 the club will visit the Hayesville Young Men's Farm club.

U.S. production of broiler chickens now is about four times larger than in pre-war years.

Ohio Jeweler, 'Rocks', Given Lengthy Flight

DAYTON — Jack Werts, a Dayton jeweler, breathed easier yesterday after an overtime plane ride with $1,500,000 worth of diamonds in his pocket.

The jeweler had been in New York and Washington the past week appearing in television programs.

Returning to Dayton aboard a TWA Constellation, the plane hit a 200-foot ceiling over Dayton and the pilot decided to continue on to Chicago.

With all the glittering "rocks" aboard— including the 16.25 carat Vanderbilt diamond which Werts owns—the plane radoes ahead and two policemen met Werts in Chicago to protect the jewels.

The jeweler caught the next plane back to Dayton, landing here at 11.28 p. m.

Pay Boost Given Clerk

Action Approved In Loudonville

LOUDONVILLE — Council last week boosted the annual salary of the village clerk from $1,800 to $2,400 to become effective next year. Mayor J. F. Church recommended the action. Money from the waterworks and general fund will make up the difference.

Fire Chief Harold Stockman reminded council tires on the pumper type fire truck are the original ones at the time of its purchase in 1939. He also recommended the fire alarm siren be relocated and given electrical attention.

Fairview residents reiterated the surface water drainage problem in the community.

Action was deferred on a petition by Will Snyder to have an allotment plot within the corporation limits accepted as an extension of East Washington street.

Bucyrus P-TA Purchasing Lot

BUCYRUS — The playground area at Norton grade school here will be enlarged this spring through the efforts of the Parent-Teacher association at the school, Mrs. Edwin Norton, PTA president announced Saturday.

The association is purchasing for $400 a 156 by 50 lot adjoining the present playground area. The lot is being purchased from J. F. Streis of Los Angeles and it is expected to be ready for use in late spring.

A benefit bridge and a family night meeting, both events planned for February, will be sponsored by the association.

Minstrel Show Bookings Made

BUCYRUS—Eight out of town bookings already have been made for presentation of the annual spring minstrel by the Friendship class of St. Paul's Lutheran church here, Robert Streit, production director, announced last week.

Initial presentation of the minstrel will be at Bucyrus high school on Thursday night.

Out of town appearances include: Nevada, Jan. 29; Leesville, Jan. 31; Sulphur Springs, Feb. 8; North Robinson, Feb. 12; Sycamore, Feb. 14; Whetstone, Feb. 16; Holmes-Liberty, Feb. 18, and Mr. Zion, Feb. 28.

Proceeds will be used to help furnish the parish house, which will get under construction this spring.

Distinguished Award Given Ashlander, 33

By VIRGINIA LEED, N-J State Correspondent

ASHLAND—Newly announced 1948 winner of the annual Distinguished Service Award of the Ashland Junior Chamber of Commerce is 33-year-old Elton Whitted who received the award at Thursday night's dinner meeting of the Jaycees.

The award is made annually to the young Ashland business man selected by a committee of Ashland civic leaders. Chairman of the selection committee this year was G. Reed Page, president of the Ashland Chamber of Commerce.

Whitted, graduate of Ashland college and father of three small daughters, is at present one of two Ohio directors of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce. He is a past president of the local Jaycees and during 1948 was a vice president of the Ohio Junior chamber.

Active member of the First Brethren church, Whitted is business manager of the Laymen, national publication of the church; chairman of the church board of trustees, vice president of the Northeastern Ohio laymen's organization, assistant Sunday school superintendent and member of the board of deacons. He also is a director of the Ashland Lions club and member of the Ashland district Boy Scout council.

ELTON WHITTED

Assistant to the chief chemist at the Faultless Rubber company, Whitted is a member of the American Chemical society.

Achievement, leadership and service to the community during the calendar year are the requirements for selection of the annual award winner.

Bucyrus Vets Plan Affairs

BUCYRUS—A full week's celebration of the golden jubilee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars is being planned by Walter E. Bauer post here beginning Monday night.

Highlight of the week's events will be a military ball on Thursday night. The ball will include a drill by Battery B, 147th Field Artillery battalion, stationed here, ball arrangements are in charge of Capt. Carl Kaplanoff, local ONG commander, and Frank Howard. Foster Schreck's orchestra of Upper Sandusky will play for dancing.

Monday night's event is a card party sponsored by the Ladies' auxiliary. Mrs. Howard Williams is chairman of the event, which will include a smorgasbord supper.

A stag party will be held Tuesday night and past presidents of the auxiliary will be in charge of a special program on Wednesday night. Both the Cootie and Cootiette organizations will sponsor the program Friday night when a Dutch lunch will be served.

Jack Friend's band will play for the regular Saturday night dance, which will conclude the week-long celebration.

Ontario Livestock 4-H Club Elects

ONTARIO—Officers were elected last week as the Ontario Livestock 4-H club met at the township house here. A short talk on "Our Achievement Program" featured the meeting and a contribution was voted for the Rural Life Center.

Quentin Matthes was chosen president; Bruce Smith, vice president; Bernard Palmer, secretary-treasurer; David Craig, reporter, and Clay Mentzer, recreation leader.

Meet On Monday

CRESTLINE—The New Washington Lutheran Pastors' conference will be held in Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church Monday.

Galion Native Promoted At Springfield

GALION—Of interest to many Galion friends and relatives is the promotion of Thomas (Tom) R. Dougherty, from the position of night general yardmaster of the New York Central railroad at Springfield to the position of day yardmaster.

The night vacancy will be filled by V. E. Lineau of Bellefontaine.

Dougherty was yardmaster in Galion for 16 years before going to Dayton in 1941, and then to Columbus, later being sent to Springfield, the Ohio division headquarters.

He was born in Galion, and during his high school days was prominent in athletics. For a number of years he refereed athletic contests in this vicinity. His wife is the former Ethel Thomas. They have four children.

Ashland 'Y' Names Staff

ASHLAND—S. F. Jameson, superintendent of Ashland public schools, is newly elected president of the Ashland YMCA.

Other officers elected include A. Ross Siverling, vice president; William Ekey, recording secretary, and E. P. Lersch, treasurer.

At the annual meeting of members David Downie, Ralph Eckard, John C. Myers, jr., and Harold Rader were elected directors and Dean Duffey was named a new member. H. M. Clark was elected as a trustee for four years.

Ship of First War Finished In 2nd

NEW YORK — (AP) — Most freighters can be constructed in a few months, but there is afloat today a former American cargo vessel that required all of two World Wars and twenty-one years to build. Launched too late for World War I, this holder of a unique shipbuilding record was laid up as an unfinished hull until World War II forced its completion, the American Merchant Marine Institute reveals.

The Trento slid down the ways at Pascagoula, Miss., in 1920, but it was decided not to finish the ship which was placed in layup at Mobile. But in 1941, when war caused another ship shortage, the Trento was quickly completed, her hull being remarkably preserved. Renamed the Philae and placed under the Panama flag, because of Neutrality Act restrictions on the movements of American ships, she served throughout the war. Recently she was sold to Norwegian owners who named her the Thorscape.

Third Galion Club Favors School Act

Religious Education Program Supported

GALION—The Current News club at its regular meeting Friday joined two other organizations of the city in going on record as favoring whatever steps are necessary to advance a more favorable program of Christian education in the public schools.

A resolution pertaining to this was passed by the club and will be sent to the Ohio Council of Churches and Religious Education, and will be presented at the Ohio Pastors' convention in Columbus later this month. The club took a unanimous vote on the issue which had been discussed at a previous meeting.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Floyd King, and was presided over by the vice president, Mrs. S. A. Rhoades, in the absence of the president, Mrs. Russell Delahooke.

The afternoon's program was in charge of Mrs. Robert Larr, and featured modern popular music composers and their compositions. As Mrs. D. E. Laughbaum told of the life and compositions of the composer, the music was demonstrated by Mrs. King, pianist.

Responses to roll call were current events. The rgoup planned to hold a covered-dish luncheon in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Delahooke.

Chorus Plans Spring Revue

BUCYRUS—Bucyrus Male chorus' annual spring minstrel revue will be presented Tuesday and Wednesday nights, March 15-16, in Bucyrus high school auditorium, Dr. A. D. Bumstead, revue director announced.

James R. Kehrer, Crawford county commissioners' clerk, will act as master of ceremonies during the first half of the production. A duo piano team, composed of Edwin Norton, Bucyrus, chorus accompanist, and Mrs. John Whitcomb of Mansfield, will be another new feature in the production.

Soloists for the production include Mrs. Frank Bordonaro, Miss Vera Mead, Miss Evelyn Brinkman, Robert Caldwell, Edgar Price, Russell Tither, William Haller and Edgar Rieber.

Carl Clime, Harry "Tiny" Beelman and Adam Boryezka will be endmen.

New London Barber Opened Main Street Shop In 1904

By HENRY PARNELL
(N-J State Correspondent)

NEW LONDON—Ross H. Seiler lays claim to being this town's oldest barber-both in years and point of service.

He has barbered continuously in New London for the past 53 years. The shop has been located on East Main street here ever since the opening date.

Seiler formerly barbered in Shiloh, Shelby, Plymouth and other area towns before establishing his residence and business here.

In addition to his barbering years, Seiler also claims to be a bricklayer. His one and only such experience in that field being in 1910 when he closed shop and joined other local merchants in a brief business holiday so that the Main street paving project could be finished before the Christmas buying began.

Millersburg Milking Unit Clinic Set

Feb. 4 Program Features Experts

MILLERSBURG — A milking machine clinic will be held in the local high school auditorium, Feb. 4 beginning at 1:15 p. m. it is announced by Fred Marti, assistant county extension agent.

C. L. Blackman, dairy husbandry, of Ohio State university who spent the past year in South America to aid and assist the dairy program there, will explain the physiology of milk let down in the cow.

Installation, care and maintenance of mechanical milker systems will be discussed by R. L. Richards of the International Harvester company. Milking machine sanitation will be told of by P. R. Ellsworth, OSU dairy technologist.

Dealers who care to may display units. Four dealers already expressed their desire to do so.

"Dairymen and especially fieldmen, the world over know that milking machines are one of the biggest single sources of bacteria contamination of milk," Marti states.

Trains Using Rubber Tires

PARIS — (AP) — France has 140 rubber-tired railway cars, that have gone 12,000,000 miles since they were introduced in 1932. The cars weigh 16 tons, compared with steel-wheeled cars of 33 tons.

When a tire goes flat, a light warns the driver and he stops at the next division point for a change. No danger is involved, because adjoining tires carry the weight.

The trains run in almost complete silence and with increased smoothness at 80 miles an hour. A tire lasts for 22,000 miles.

They cost more to operate because Diesel engines are too heavy for the tires and are replaced by gasoline engines, which are more expensive to operate.

Ohio's Milk Cows Lead 1948 Farm Value Gains

COLUMBU — With an average farm value of $198 per head in December, Ohio's milk cows in 1948 reached the highest level of value in history and were worth twice as much as in the previous peak year of 1919.

Releasing figures this week to help Ohio farmers in preparing their year-end inventories and reporting 1948 income taxes, Extension economists at Ohio State university singled out milk cows as having made the greatest strides in value per unit this past year.

In December 1948, milk cows in Ohio were valued at $34 more per head than at the same time a year previous, although they were not quite as high as the record peak of $202 per head reached in August.

Favorable milk-feed ratios and generally good prices for market beef, the economists said, were chiefly responsible for the gains made by milk cows. In December, 100 pounds of milk would purchase 159 pounds of feed, or 33 pounds more than the same quantity would have purchased at the close of 1947. Lowest value per head of milk cows found in the records is $30 in 1933.

With the exception of hogs and beef cattle, farm prices of other livestock at year-end were above those of 1947, the economists stated, while the prices of grains were somewhat below and those of most grass seeds considerably above last year.

Average per hundredweight price for hogs was $21.60, or $4.30 less than a year ago, while the average figure on beef cattle was $21.70, only 10 cents less than the previous year. Lambs had gained $1.20 per 100 pounds from $21.60 in 1047 to $22.80, and veal calves reached a near record peak at $29 70, $4.20 above last year's quotations. Horses, at $55 per head, showed no change from 1947 prices.

At $1.20 per bushel, corn was 99 cents under a year ago, and farm prices of other grains compared with 1947 were as follows: Wheat, $2.18 down 69 cents; oats, 81, down 44 cents; rye, $1.60, down 75 cents; barley, $1.30, down 50 cents; soybeans, $2.80, up 5 cents, and buckwheat, $1.15, down 80 cents. Potatoes dropped 20 cents to $1.65 per bushel.

Prices of grass seeds per bushel experienced some sharp changes as compared with 1947: Red clover, $26.20, down $3.80; alfalfa, $29.20, up $6 20; timothy, $5.60, up $3.65; alsike clover, $14.60, down $5.30, and sweet clover, $8.90, up $2.50. Loose alfalfa was quoted at $24.50 per ton, being up 50 cents, while clover-timothy hay, at $18 50, was down $1. Silage remained constant at $6.50 per ton.

Other farm products, such as chickens, turkeys and wool, all indicated per pound gains, as follows: Chickens, 33 cents, up five cents; turkeys, 51 cents, up 11 cents, and wool, 52 cents, up eight cents.

In using these average figures, the economists explained, farmers will find they are generally more applicable for central, north central and south central Ohio. Prices are usually higher in eastern Ohio and lower than average in western Ohio. Let age and condition determine the value changes in breeding and work animals, they said.

36 Women Answer Lucas Talent Call

LUCAS — Thirty-six community women met with Director Harold McCuen, of Mansfield, at the Lucas school last week in response to the Mother's club initial call for talent for a variety show to be presented March 10 and 11. At least a half dozen additional women will join the cast at the first rehearsal session Thursday night at the school.

McCuen outlined the show would feature a minstrel half and a variety part which will include Gay Nineties numbers, melodrama and vaudeville acts. Many of the women have participated in minstrel successes of former years.

Lexington Child Unit Holds Meeting

LEXINGTON — The monthly meeting of the Child Conservation League here last week in the home of Mrs. Lynn McCammon found 20 members present. They answered roll call by giving their pet "peeve." Mrs Robert Carpenter was assistant hostess and lunch was served.

Plans were completed for the P-TA meeting in the local high school building on Feb. 3 and a committee appointed to prepare a dinner to which husbands of members will be invited. The group voted to retake Mrs. William Dickson back into membership, thus filling the closed roster.

Young Actors Attend Skyscraper School

NEW YORK—(AP)—You would never dream the stern-faced skyscraper was Broadway's little red schoolhouse.

Yet some who have made bright names in show business learned their three R's at the professional children's school there. Ruby Keeler, Gene Raymond, Ida Lupino, Mary Miles Minter, Kenny Delmar and Paul Haakon are among them. Some who may be tomorrow's stars are conning their 'sixes and eights" there now.

Walk into some of the schoolrooms, where work from first grade through high school is geared to the needs of juvenile actors, and you can spot more than a dozen youngsters from current Broadway hits. There is Arlene McQuade from "Summer and Smoke," Jackie Collins from "The Young and the Fair," and Robert Antoine and Dean Kelly from "Life with Mother."

Sixty-five little red heads from "Life with Father" passed in and out of the school during the play's long Broadway run. A number of pupils, past and present, appear in radio, television and vaudeville.

Blonde, brunette and red heads bend over desks in the colorful schoolrooms that fill three skyscraper floors. Faces are bright, eyes alert. Clothes are colorful and well-groomed. There is an air of good health and poise but, the traditional show-off manner of the child actor is virtually nowhere in sight. This is one set of pupils, however, which does not have to be prodded to recite. They love to talk. Teacher never has a dull moment.

"One morning I heard "static" and then an "announcer's" tones coming from the clothes press in the corner," says Mrs. Ruth Wilson, who has taught at the school 28 years. "I investigated and found one of the boys in there making like a radio. An other teacher was distracted until she located the ventriloquist who went into action during the spelling class."

"And I remember the April Fool's day when I sat on a thumb tack that somehow had got on my chair. I rose to that occasion fast and sent Kenny Delmar to the principal.

"But I had a lot of laughs and happy years. Nancy Walker was a born comic and kept the youngsters in stitches. Milton Berle could recite "I'm Thinking of the Hedgerows of England," with gestures that brought down the house. Paul Haakon was a serious boy and an excellent student.

"But another boy who was a big hit in a broadway play was always having trouble with his school work. He made enough money to buy his famil, a beautiful Long Island house, but he was afraid to take his report cards home and hid them.

The professional children's school was founded in 1914 by deaconess Jane Hall of the Little Church Around the Corner, after she met some bright stage children who could neither read nor write. It is a non-profit organization operated by a board of trustees headed by Mrs. Hammond Speiden, daughter of New York Lawyer John Hays Hammond and sister-in-law of Benny Goodman. Two-thirds of its budget is met by tuition, the rest by contribution.

New Costume Role Pleases Van Heflin

By HOWARD C. HEYN

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Van Heflin is making another costume picture and he's glad, for a fairly sound reason.

"I have a horrible time selecting clothes for a modern picture," he said. "I'm not clothes-conscious. Most fellows learned something about dressing in college. But my fraternity made me stay in the basement whenever we gave a dance."

About period clothing, however, Van is particular. For "Madame Bovary" he told the tailor to make his dinner coat hike up on one shoulder, so he could keep pulling it down. "The character I portary would have to borrow a dinner coat, and it wouldn't fit," Heflin explained. "It broke the tailor's heart, but that's the way I want it."

The designer had sketches for dozens of outfits. Van protested. His character in the film, he said, would own no more than four suits.

As for every-day clothing, Van has a special dislike for tight collars. He always finds an excuse to unbutton the top of his shirt. "I have 12 black ties, and they go with anything. I have also assorted gay gift ties, which I don't like although I like to see bright ties on other people. But being Scottish I never throw away my gift ties. I wear 'em.

Stage wardrobe, he says, is much simpler. "You need only three outfits: Slacks and jacket, a dark blue suit, and a dinner suit."

"When I was in 'Philadelphia Story' I got Joe Cotten to pick out my clothes. He loves clothes and he knows them never gets the wrong tie and shirt combination. In Hollywood I ask Peter Lawford to help me shop."

Off the set Van wears slacks and sport shirts. No tie. His shoes are 12AAA—hard to find—so he wears sneakers most of the time, much to his wife's disgust. On those rare occasions when she gets him into a tuxedo, he irrirates her further by calling it "my costume."

Van even approves of slacks for women, whether or not they have the figures to wear them. "After all, not every man has the figure for pants, either," he says, "but we're stuck with 'em, aren't we?"

Joan Crawford Plans New Dancing Picture

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Joan Crawford may be "a dancing daughter" again one of these days. She says she's taking daily practice in all phases of dance "for exercise and the possibility of a musical picture."

Joan hasn't danced for the camera since "Dancing Lady," except for a hootchie-koochie routine in carnival scenes of her latest film, "Flamingo Road," at Warner Bros.

Busy Year Ahead For Anne Baxter

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Anne Baxter has figured out that she will be working in $8,000,000 worth of pictures during the next 12 months. Her spare time, if any, will be devoted to her orchid nursery at Burlingame, in northern California.

Miss Baxter is completing "You're My Everything." She'll turn screen murderess in her next, "Waltz into Darkness." Then comes "Sweet Poison," with Richard Widmark.

Producer-Director Preston Sturges will use her in his comedy, "Matrix," and Zachary Scott is trying to borrow her from Fox to play his maternal grandmother, a Texas pioneer, in an independent production, "The Mastersons."

Come spring, Anne and husband John Hodiak will make a two-month orchid buying trip to Guatemala and other Central American countries. She is now growing 14 varieties, and she has sold 800 plants in the past few weeks.

Kilbride Again Dons 'Laminated Wardrobe'

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Once again Percy Kilbride has donned his famous "laminated wardrobe," introduced in "The Egg and I."

In "Ma and Pa Kettle" the shiftless sire of the Kettle clan wears seven layers of insulation between his skin and the outside world—three suits of underwear, two shirts, one vest, one coat. Weird is the only word for his accessories: a derby hat studded with campaign buttons dating back to McKinley; a pendant of horse-blanket safety pins; a dog chain for his watch, and a complete set of handyman's tools suspended by strings from his belt.

Percy will drive the same sway-back donkey and arklike wagon seen in the rubble-strewn diggings of "The Egg and I."

Robinson Prepared For Italian Role

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Edward G. Robinson will put his knowledge of Italian to work in "East Side Story," the script of which requires him to speak as much Italian as English. He plays an Italo-American in New York's Little Italy.

Robinson learned the language while earning his master's degree at Columbia university.

Hollywood Has Rash Of 'Red' Film Titles

HOLLYWOOD —(AP)— Investigations by the House un-American activities committee apparently haven't frightened Hollywood insofar as movie titles go. Coming up are "The Red Pony," "Wake of the Red Witch," "Red Shoes," "Red Canyon," "Red Stallion of the Rockies," and "Red Hot and Blue." In release is "Red River."

However, the ghost of "liberty cabbage" (sauer kraut during World War I) walked at Universal - International. Director Charles Lamont changed a line of dialogue in "Ma and Pa Kettle" to read "Chinese flame" instead of "Chinese red." Things were looking too bad for the nationalist government, Lamont explained.

Studio Copies Star Down to Fine Points

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Stephen McNally is being groomed for the same kind of well poised, gentlemanly roles already made famous by Walter Pidgeon. And so, with the slavish attention to minor detail that is typical of Hollywood, Universal-International sent McNally to Pidgeon's tailor, Dominic Alvara, for the wardrobe he'll wear in "The Lady Gambles."

Rowdy Lady Brightens Up New Revue

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK — (AP) — With such suave, sophisticated feminine comediennes as Beatrice Lillie in "Inside U.S.A.", Dorothy Stickney in "Life with Mother" and numerous other ladies with the subtle comic touch in Broadway nocturnal attractions, it is good to see a rowdy lady again. Such a one as Nancy Walker who stumbled in with new revue, "Along Fifth Avenue," which might possibly turn out to be a hit.

"Along Fifth Avenue" is a revue with its good points and its weak points, but when a trial balance is taken at the end of the evening you find that you have had a pretty good time. Especially when the star, Miss Walker, is on stage.

Miss Walker is the sort of comedienne who definitely does not go in for glamor. As one critic noted, "her face needs only the addition of a cigar to make it the perfect portrait of a tired business man." In her humerous dialogues she resembles a punch drunk prize fighter on defense.

But, in some numbers, such as her sketch where she is trying to sell a male customer some perfume to make his sweetheart succumb to his romantic advances, the girl gets quite a bit of allure into her worthy efforts for laughs.

One of the first signs of spring on broadway is the arrival of British players in British plays, usually murder melodramas. Without the services of Scotland Yard, it seems, half of the playwrights in Haymarket would have to retire.

So, on the threshhold of spring, there arrives the first of these very polite treatises on mayhem, the play "The Shop On Sly Corner" which brings Boris Karloff back to Broadway.

This police case history, which played for almost two years on London stages, concerns a very respectable, to outward eyes, antique dealer whose undercover activities lead to murder.

Broadway—

Young Artists Again Showing Up on Stage

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK — (AP) — Broadway, which saw only a soupcon of fledgling talent during the war years, is beginning to welcome once more a bountiful supply of avid youngsters who are blossoming with brilliance in the world of entertainment.

The theatrical revue, "Lend an Ear," Leonard Sillman's night club folderol, "New Faces," and many other nocturnal attractions are being sponsored or performed by comparatively young artists.

Even in the field of Broadway management, the "war-years" young are beginning to make themselves felt in the bright light circles again. Among them is Alexander H. Cohen who came fresh out of Columbia university in 1941 at the age of 21 and made his Rialto bow as co-producer of one of Broadway's longest running hits. That was a "sleeper" called "Angel Street" which persisted through 1,295 Broadway showings.

In the theater, as on the race track, a "sleeper" is a surprise winner, and during the seven years since the triumphant first night of "Angel Street" Cohen has never stopped hunting for another like it. Like most showmen, he produces primarily for profit, but he also coddles a gambling spirit.

His latest venture is experimental. That is a play, now current, called "Jenny Kissed Me," which he and three associates transported to Broadway from the campus of Catholic university in Washington, D.C.

Near misses like that are an old story to Cohen. The revue he produced in 1942, "Of V We Sing" was one such. With Betty Garrett in it, the revue had reached its sixteenth week when Cohen lost the lease on his theater. Before he could arrange for another playhouse, he was drafted into the army.

A second curious failure was "The Duke in Darkness." Written by Patrick Hamilton, author of "Angel Street," and with Philip Merival starred, it was handsomely received by the critics. But the public failed to rally round, a phenomenon which still mystifies the young producer.

New Met Conductor Wants Opera Season Made Longer

By W. G. ROGERS

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Metropolitan opera house has been called the best opera house on 39th street, but "it's a great deal better than that," says Fritz Reiner, newest member of the conductorial staff.

Reiner, a short, chunky man with a martial manner, came here last fall after leading the Pittsburgh symphony for 10 years, and he is scheduled to conduct three operas at the Met: "Salome," "Parsifal" and "Falstaff".

Two things about the Met impressed him at once: The line at the box office, and the musical ability of young American singers.

His chief complaint had to do with the short season, or the long seven-month vacation. Everybody is out of practice, it's like banking the fires in an industrial plant. He would like to see a 26- or 28-week season: "An opera house can't make money by giving fewer performances; it makes money by giving more." Besides, he believes a longer season is necessary to develop in singers and musicians the proper sort of pride in the institution with which they are connected. They should be as proud to say: "I'm at the Met" As a violinist is to say: "I play with the Boston Symphony," Reiner claims. He is convinced that this sort of pride is essential to greatness in any institution.

ANOTHER CONDUCTOR

Frieder Weissmann has just come back from Mexico City with an unusual if not unique account of working men who thought they were not working hard enough, and contemporary musicians who were fed up on contemporary music.

Weissmann, who conducts regularly in Scranton and who probably is best known for his RCA Victor records, was invited south of the border to conduct the newly formed Sinfonica Mexicana. It's a labor-union orchestra; the president of the Sinfonica is a concert master and, like the secretary, treasurer and other officers, is a union member.

They organized the 102-man orchestra because, says Weissmann, they wanted to play some classics instead of the modern fare, such as Stravinsky, Hindemith and Chavez, which is invariably programmed by Carlos Chavez himself, composer and conductor of Mexico City's established orchestra.

The discipline, says Weissmann, was excellent, and "it's a first-class orchestra." The players, many of them also in Chavez's orchestra, organized on their own and accepted no pay; now the sumphony is scheduled to receive a government subsidy.

Weissmann was offered three rehearsals; he asked for five and they were given him; then the concertmaster said the men would like to rehearse once more, so they held a sixth session. That never happened to him before, says Weissmann. He played Brahms, Beethoven, Richard Strauss. Next season, when Iturbi and Kleiber will be among the visiting conductors, Weissmann will go back again.

AND ANOTHER

When Arturo Toscanini was last in Italy, he stopped at La Scala for a rehearsal by his friend Nathan Milstein, and for the first time observed the work of a 28-year-old conductor, tall, slim, good-looking Guido Cantelli. Toscanini was so impressed that the young man was offered a job with Toscanini's NBC symphony. When he made his debut a week ago—and he continued last tonight and will remain for two more Saturdays—the public was impressed, too.

BALLET

The New York City ballet company has just packed city center for 10 straight nights in a brief mid-season appearance. Among the new or unfamiliar works were "Time Table," by Copland and Tudor, which ante-dates "Fancy Free" but does not bear comparison with it; "The Seasons," by John Cage and Merce Cunningham, which was not Cage's best music nor Cunningham's most expressive dancing; and "Divertimento," in which Alexei Haieff's music matched Balanchine's choreography almost perfectly for one of the company's most exhilarating numbers.

HEART CHAIRMAN — Film luminary Irene Dunne is chairman of the women's committee of the American Heart association's 1949 drive for $5,000,000 to fight the nation's leading cause of death. She was named by Harold E. Stassen, chairman of the campaign, to be Feb. 7-28. (International)

THE SITWELLS AGAIN

"Facade," with poetry by Edith Sitwell and music by William Walton, had its first American performance here this week in the museum of modern art. The press was admitted only to the dress rehearsal, and the public bought all the small auditorium's 496 seats at $15 and $24 per seat. When it was first produced in England in 1923, the press ridiculed the performance, and Noel Coward walked out on it; now the English like it. As given here, the music from a six-piece orchestra and the voice of Dr. Sitwell reading her poetry were piped into the auditorium while the audience gazed at two decorated curtains. The spirit was both comic and serious, and it made an interesting experiment in rhythmaical effects.

Says Soviets Will Lead Auto Output

Russian Expert Cites Progress

MOSCOW— (AP) —The Soviet automobile industry is out to top the world.

"Ten years ago," said the well known Russian automobile expert Yevgeni Chudakov in a press interview, "we overtook Britain France and Germany in truck production and gained first place in Europe." "There is not the slightest doubt," he added, "that in the near future Soviet automobiles will be the best in the world."

"Already now, said Chudakov, "the average capacity of Soviet-made trucks is roughly half as much again as that of American models.

"In this way although the United States still manufacturers more automobiles, the Soviet Union is overtaking it as regards tonnage carried."

Great things are being predicted for motor transport in the USSR, and the production of a 45-ton truck by the Yaroslavl auto plant is one of the reasons.

This huge truck has already had a trial run between Yaroslavl and Moscow and back and is reported to have stood up well.

According to Chudakov, still bigger trucks are being designed by Soviet automotive engineers.

Besides long-distance freight haulage, Soviet industrial enterprises are making increasing demands on the nation's automotive plants.

This year, according to statements, the government shipped twice as many automobiles as last year to agricultural areas, but the demand is still great.

Large scale socialist economy has laid its imprint on all kinds of motor vehicles manufactured in the USSR. Just as medium and heavy models predominate in local tractor production, in the automotive industry emphasis is on heavy duty trucks of greater carrying capacity.

Builds heavier models

The Stalin auto plant in Moscow has begun making four-ton Zis-150 trucks instead of the previous three-ton model.

The Gorki auto plant has gone over to the production of Gaz-51 trucks with a carrying capacity of two and a half tons instead of the one and a half formerly.

The Yaroslavl auto plant has launched the new seven-ton Yaz-200 truck, which takes the places of the former five-ton Yaroslavl model, in addition to making the new 45-tonner.

All the new types are said to be provided with improved heavy-duty engines designed for greater speeds than their predecessors.

The new passenger cars are the seven-passenger Zis-110, the five-passenger Pobeda and the low-powered Moskvich.

"Work is now coming to an eend," said Chudakov, "on designing a new six-passenger car which will incorporate the latest achievements in automotive engineering while belonging to a lower price bracket than the Zis-110."

Presently Soviet automobile engineers and designers are engaged in a major undertaking initiated by the Academy of Sciences of the USSR--to work out the most suitable types of motor vehicles for the future.

In local conditions the various parts used in the different makes of cars and trucks can be standardized to the maximum, whereas in most other countries this is possible only within the framework of a single manufacturing company.

Moscow and Leningrad streets, and the roads leading in and out of the two biggest cities in the country, are now filled at almost all hours with automotive traffic.

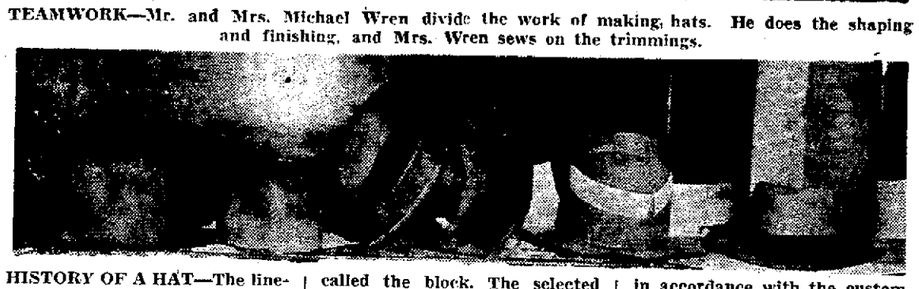
The most conspicuous cars in the cities are the chrome-streak, long, sleek Zis-110, a fast moving comfortable car with automatically operated windows, and the medium-sized Pobeda. There are also a number of the small Moskviches.

Russia is also becoming fast populated with the stationwagon-built on a Moskvich frame.

SEEKING RE-ELECTION

CRESTLINE — Edward Blocker, councilman, said today he will be a candidate for re-election.

TEAMWORK—Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wren divide the work of making hats. He does the shaping and finishing, and Mrs. Wren sews on the trimmings.



HISTORY OF A HAT—The line-up of objects above (left to right) illustrates the processes of hat making from the rough original hat-in-the-rough. It is partially shaped but has no inside or outside. These 'roughs' range small, medium and large, but an experienced hatter can convert any of them into the desired size and shape. Next comes a round wooden piece called the block. The selected rough' is placed on a block of the proper size. The hat is then pressed with a hot iron to shape it to the block. To give the material a rough finish, the hatter uses a wire brush. For a smooth finish he uses a special fine grade of sandpaper. The next operation makes use of the flange and stool, used in shaping the brim. Again the hot iron is put in use. Brims are shaped in accordance with the customer's desire. When this is completed, the trimmings are added. These are the leather sweat band inside, the outside band, and the binding around the outer edge of the brim. When these steps have been completed, the hatter does a bit of retouching, repressing the brim or crown if necessary. Then the job is complete, and the hat is ready for the buyer.

Mickey Fits 'Lids' to Odd-Shaped Noggins

Hatter Carries On In Danbury Tradition

Michael (Mickey) Wren, who knows all the angles of hat-making from rabbit fuzz to fine finish, has a jovial outlook on just about everything. He isn't a mad hatter—he's a happy hatter.

Wren, whose hat shop is located at 5 East Third street, has one of the few businesses of its kind in the United States. Although part of his work is routine cleaning and blocking, he also fits, shapes and finishes hats from the rough, almost formless stage, in which they are fist made in hat factories.

His ability in this line stems from years of experience in the plants at Danbury, Conn., where he was born and raised. He worked at the trade there for 15 years, both at "making" and "finishing", as the two steps of the process are known.

Back in 1915 he was traveling through Mansfield. He received such discouraging comments on the need of a hatter in this city that, with a touch of Irish stubbornness, he decided to stay. Apparently things weren't as bad as they sounded, because he has been here ever since.

Wren married after locating in Mansfield. Mrs. Wren aids in operating the shop. They reside at 459 Beethoven street.

The major part of their hat-making business is done for customers outside of Mansfield.

"Recently I received an order from a man in Oregon for whom I had made a hat in 1937," said Wren. "We keep the head sizes of all persons for whom we make hats. That enables us to fill repeat orders by mail."

The taking of the head size and shape is done with a device which looks somewhat like a wire basket. When it is pushed on the head, pin projections at the top make a diagram of holes in a piece of paper, showing the exact shape of the head.

The original hat-in-the rough, Wren explained, is made of rabbit fur. In the first operation the loose fur is sucked over a spinning mold. The hat is thus roughly formed, but is at that point very fragile. It is wet down and is then wrapped in burlap for shrinking.

Nearly all hat manufacturing is done in the east, Wren stated. In most cases the finishing is also done at the factories. Few hatters of the younger generation are interested in finishing shops of their own because of high wages paid to skilled men in the factories offer a greater inducement, said Wren.

City Workers In Milwaukee Attend Charm School Classes

MILWAUKEE — (AP) — The city of Milwaukee is sending its employes to "charm school." The workers are being given time off from serving John Q. Taxpayer to learn how to serve him better in eight easy lessons.

The city calls its efforts a court in public relations. Around city hall however, the course has been dubbed "charm school" and that's how the public refers to it.

Charm school consists of eight one-hour classes in which the employe is briefed in the art of pleasant, courteous, prompt and efficient service.

Only 90 of Milwaukee's 7,000,000 city workers have been graduated thus far—not enough to prove much. But, says Ovid B. Blix, co-ordinator of the course, charm school is here to stay judging from the enthusiasm of the employes and the favorable comments on the idea from the public.

It's the first time such instruction for city employes actually has been put into operation, as far as I know," says Blix.

The course was conceived last summer by 32-year old Mayor Frank P. Zeidler and the heads of the various city departments —not because of any lack of good service at city hall, they said, but because there always is room for improvement. Blix, associate chief examiner of the city's civil service commission, serves as coordinator and Miss Evelyn Shaw, counselor for special activities at the Milwaukee Vocational school, is instructor.

The course lasts one month. Two classes of 15 city employes each meet twice a week in a city hall conference room for one hour on the city's time.

The textbook for the course is contained on a printed card given to each student. On it Miss Shaw lists these "steps in every public contact":

1. GREET an individual or group promptly, pleasantly, courteously and sincerely.
2. LISTEN attentively and patiently. Be sure to get the facts in determining the nature of the comlaint or request for service.
3. PROVIDE information, material or service, or
4. REFER the party to the proper department or authority. Do everything possible to close each interview on a friendly note.

Efficient execution of those four points, Miss Shaw feels, will lead to the ultimate in public relations at city hall.

After the instructor gives a brief psychological explanation of the rules of charm school, the employes study and discuss common mistakes. Miss Shaw gives an analysis of specific problems. Various points are emphasized by the use of training films. An example is the film on telephone courtesy.

The students are graduated at the last session. Blix tells them they now have to do post-graduate work in their daily jobs; Mayor Zeidler presents diplomas (certificates of public relations), and the graduates go out to do or die for alma mater.

If Milwaukee's citizens do not become the best served in the nation, it won't be the city's fault.

MARCH OF DIMES
FIGHT INFANTILE PARALYSIS
JANUARY 14-31

Give--And Give Generously To The MARCH of DIMES

Your Contribution Is YOUR Insurance For Protection and Care Against Polio

Place Your Contributions In MARCH OF DIMES Boxes In Local Business Establishments

To The People of Richland County

Unless our 1949 March of Dimes campaign is successful our local polio program will be in peril. Figures released by Marshall C. Moore, treasurer of the local Chapter reveal that from June 1st, 1947 to May 31, 1948, $4,394.48 was spent for the care and treatment of cases occurring during 1947. From June 1, 1948 to the present time an additional $3,133.26 has been spent for the care and treatment of cases occurring during 1948, and not all of these cases have completed their treatment as yet and further expenditures will be necessary.

Health Department statistics reveal that Mansfield and Richland County had thirteen cases of polio during 1947 and six cases during 1948. Increased costs for the care and treatment of polio victims makes it imperative that the 1949 March of Dimes campaign be successful. Polio outbreaks are unpredictable, and we have no way of knowing whether or not OUR community will be stricken by polio next year. Your contribution is your insurance for protection and care against polio, should it strike in this community.

March of Dimes Drive Lagging Behind 1948 In County Area

Outbreak Last Year Used Funds

Jaycees Help In Campaign

While contributions are beginning to trickle in to the Richland county chapter's Foundation for Infantile Paralysis fund, the drive is lagging far behind the first week's figures of past years, according to Marshall C. Moore, chairman of The March of Dimes drive.

Less than $300 has been received during the past week, Moore said, and prospects of raising the amount needed to carry on the work in this county are dark.

From June 1, 1948, to Dec. 1 1948, the Richland Foundation spent $3,133 for treatment of polio victims from this county, with an additional $600 spent in the past month and a half, Moore said.

Several youngsters, polio sufferers from Mansfield and the county now are in the Children's hospital, Columbus, and at Elyria hospital and monthly expenses are set at approximately $300. This expense will continue for the next few months, or until the victims are released from the hospital.

TREATMENT COSTLY

"All of this bears out the fact that treatment of infantile paralysis is the most costly of all diseases," Moore said.

The Richland County Foundation operated at a loss during the year from June 1, 1947, to May 1, 1948 when a total of $4,394.48 was paid out for the treatment of local sufferers. Contributions to the March of Dimes during the 1947 drive accounted for $8,000, of which $4,000 was sent to National Headquarters, Moore explained.

Last year $8,000 was again contributed, but part of the $4,000 which remains in Richland county was sent to the state fund to assist other Ohio communities where the polio epidemic was worse, it was reported.

Working with the March of Dimes Foundation officers on this year's drive are a group of Junior Chamber of Commerce members who are contacting Mansfield industrial concerns for extra contributions. Edward Pifer, Junior Chamber of Commerce president, is heading the committee, assisted by Robert Coe, Robert Murphy, Charles Card and Robert Fichter.

Contributions to the drive may be made bw dropping dimes in the "March of Dimes" collection boxes, 700 of which have been distributed throughout Mansfield and Richland county, or by mailing your donation to Marshall C. Moore, treasurer of the Foundation, at 703 Richland Trust building, Mansfield.

Mother Placed On Probation

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Shirley Barr, 34, of Dayton, Ky., who abandoned her newborn baby in a bus station trash can, was placed on probation yesterday for five years. She had pleaded guilty in criminal court to a charge of child abandonment.

The baby was found in the Dixie terminal on Nov. 15 a few hours after its birth. It is being held at General hospital.

At the time of her arrest, Mrs. Barr told officers she thought the child was dead when she placed it in the trash can.

ADMITS CHECK THEFTS

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Clarence E. Tabor, 20, of New Boston, O., was given a three-month jail sentence on one count and a suspended sentence of one year on another count Friday when he pleaded guilty in U. S. district court to charges of stealing two unemployment compensation checks from the mails.

Mansfield Funeral Home Observes 100th Anniversary

This year will mark the 100th anniversary of a Mansfield funeral home which only once during its century of service has changed family hands.

That firm is the Finefrock funeral home, purchased from the Niman family by J. H. Finefrock on Nov. 27, 1914. It continues today with Finefrock's two sons, John H. jr., and Don A. taken in as partners in the firm, in commemoration of the anniversary event.

James A. Niman started the firm in 1849 at the corner of North Main and West Temple court when he purchased the interests of the Baker and Elder Furniture and Cabinet company and set up an "Undertaking Establishment" under his own name.

John H. Finefrock jr., has searched historical records to discover that in those days it was the custom of the "undertaker" to provide a coffin "made to measurement" usually by the local cabinet maker; to provide a hearse and also to officiate at the burial.

Among the many funerals at which the elder Niman officiated was that of Senator John Sherman, famed Mansfield statesman in October, 1900.

James Niman died in 1908 and his son, Charles Niman, took over the business and operated it until Finefrock purchased the firm.

Finefrock had been in the funeral business nine years before coming to Mansfield. He started with the Eckert Brothers company of Berea in 1905 and in 1908 was made general manager of the Black and Wright Undertaking company, the largest funeral firm in Cleveland at that time.

When he came to Mansfield he continued to operate the firm in the old location until 1927 when he bought the old Niman homestead at 100 West Fourth street, dismantled the old house and erected the present funeral home. This building, according to John H. Finefrock, jr., was one of the first to be constructed in Ohio especially for its purpose.

During the past 100 years the company has seen tremendous progress in the profession. From the days of the "ice box cooler", the horse drawn equipment and storefront rooms to the present day of modern embalming, fine automotive equipment and handsome funeral homes, has been an era of change. The Finefrock firm has played a part in this change. The first motor hearse in this section of Ohio was purchased by the company in 1916. It was a Reo chassis with the hearse body built by the Kinkle Brothers company of Galion.

JOHN H. FINEFROCK

Unsolicited honors have come to Finefrock during his 35 years of service here. In 1928 the National Selected Morticians invited the firm to become the Mansfield representative for their organization. Each year since the firm has been reinvited to membership which is based on professional, financial and ethical standings.

Finefrock has served as president of district No. 6 for this organization and was president of the Ohio Funeral Directors' association in 1936 and 37. He was a member of the Ohio Board of Embalmers and Funeral Directors from 1941 to 1947.

Finefrock's two sons are both veterans of World War II and are graduates of recognized Ohio embalming schools—John, jr., from the Cincinnati school and Don A. Finefrock from Cleveland. In addition the elder son was graduated from Western Reserve university and Don attended both Denison university and the Kentucky Military academy.

Police Hold Young Pair

CINCINNATI — (AP) — A Baltimore, Md., boy and girl, each 17, were being held for their parents here by juvenile detention authorities after being taken into custody Friday in a downtown hotel.

Detective Captain Patrick Hayes identified the two as Edward Kimpel III, son of Edward Kimpel jr., and Margaret Crumb.

Hayes said the boy told him he had chartered an airplane in Baltimore and that he and the girl were en route to Louisville, Ky., to be married.

He said the plane was forced to land here because of bad weather.

Hayes talked with the boy's father by long distance telephone and the elder Kimpel said he would be here today or early Monday to take the two back to Baltimore.

Judge Taking New Position

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — Municipal Judge John J. Buckley jr. has submitted his resignation to Gov. Frank J. Lausche, effective Feb. 5.

On Monday, Feb. 7, Buckley will begin service as one of the three judges of the Seventh District Court of Appeals, a position to which he was elected last Nov. 2. The court will be seated in Jefferson, Ashtabula county, that week.

Buckley's unexpired term as municipal judge runs until next Jan. 1, and Governor Lausche will appoint his successor for that whole period.

Rescue Plane Takes 11 From Ice Floe

CHURCHILL, Man. —(AP)— All 11 men aboard a Dakota transport forced down Friday on a Hudson Bay ice field were removed yesterday by a ski-equipped RCAF plane.

The ski-plane made two trips to the ice fields, about 70 miles from the RCAF base here, to remove the men. The first four were removed shortly after noon and the remaining seven later in the afternoon.

2 Richland Institutes Scheduled

Adario, Union to Present Programs

Farmers' Institutes, once a popular institution in Richland county rural areas, will be held in only two communities this winter.

First of the two programs will be held next Friday and Saturday in the Adario Town hall. The other, at the Union Rural school, is scheduled for March 4 and 5.

The Adario Institute will begin at 10 a. m. each day. On Friday morning the Adario school children will put on a program. A picnic dinner will be held at noon.

Speakers for the Friday afternoon session, starting at 1:30 p. m., include Mrs. L. S. Fought of Tiffin, and County Agent C. N. McGrew. Entertainment Friday night will be put on by the "Hoosier Corn Huskers" of Findlay radio station WFIN.

Joe E. Thomas, of Hayesville, president of the Ohio Association of Township Officials, will speak Saturday morning. Other speakers include Miss Mabel Spray, county home demonstration agent, and Mrs. Fought. There will be a musical program. Luncheon will be served.

PRESENT PLAY

The afternoon session will have a musical program, and Thomas and Mrs. Fought will be the speakers. The Saturday night session, starting at 8 p. m., will feature a play called "Ma Simpkins of Simpkinsville." There will be a musical program.

Elden L. Fair is president of the Institute board; Frank Eastman is vice-president, and Marion Taylor, secretary. The executive committee is composed of Paul Pickworth, Ed Tennis and David Enzor. Eleanor Lemmel is publicist.

The Union Farmers' Institute will include a three-act play, to be given by the young people's class of the Clay Memorial church, party games and folk dances, musical and other entertainment, speakers on farm community and farm life, and displays and posters, prepared by the children of the community.

General chairman for the Institute is Kenneth Hyatt. Other chairmen include poster committee, Carl Baker; music, John Humbert, exhibits; Foster Kineth; and recreation, Mrs. Ruby Bookwalter. Martin M. Frank is program chairman.

POSTER GIRL AT HOME — Linda Brown, 4, poster girl of the 1949 "March of Dimes" campaign for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, goes into the tub after a day of official visits. A victim of infantile paralysis a year and a half ago, Linda was cured through the Foundation.

New Owners Get 2 City Properties

Two high priced real estate properties changed hands last week.

The Laundromat building, 233 Park avenue east, was sold by Lemley and Welsh to Marion Lutz, of Little Washington. The building is constructed of steel and brick.

The Charles C. Getz home, 318 Davis road, has been sold to Dr. Karl T. Langacher. The colonial, semi-stone home in Woodland, is located on a lot 100 by 80 feet. The transactions were handled by the Huff Realty company.

Sicilian 'Robin Hood' Slowly Losing Power

ROME—(AP)—The sands are runing out for the last of Sicily's big bad men.

Inexorably, like a tide gnawing at a sandy shore, police are reducing the area of Salvatore Giuliano's "Free State of Siculi," the mountainous country around Montelepre where he has ruled for three years.

In the last few months several of Guiliano's top lieutenants have fallen before police guns or landed behind bars. His mother, father, and two sisters, along with the wives of many of his followers, are in jail.

On more than one recent occasion Giuliano himself was near capture. There is evidence at least some of his followers are fleeing to safer climes. Early last month police quietly surrounded Montelepre, "capital" of Giuliano's mountain domain, and captured Giuseppe Bdalamenti, one of his top level aides. Police also picked up Giuliano's father and 10 others in whose homes they found arms or explosives.

But if the dragon's sphere of action is being steadily crimped, there is enough sting left in his tail that police tread warily in his rugged fastnesses.

Rare is the week that does not bring its report of policemen or caribinieri killed or wounded in clashes with Giuliano's henchmen. Sicilian dispatches still tell of holdups, kidnapings and murders laid to the band.

But the police drive is taking toll of the Giuliano band. The body of an outlaw found after a clash in October proved to be Giuliano's cousin, Giuseppe Sciortini. Francesco Scordino, 31, described as his "lieutenant," was picked up in November in the Turin central postoffice as he prepared to flee to France.

The so-called "executioner" of the band, Giuseppe Passatempo, died in combat with police late in November in the Partinico-Montelpre area. Several other bandits were wounded. In the Volterra region of peaceful Tuscany, far to the north, two other onetime Giuliano followers fell into police hands after a rash of Sicilian-style kidnapings and out-rages.

PQLICE MAKE DRIVE

The man heading to drive to break Giuliano's three-year reign of terror (and quell the resurgent Mafia) is Francesco Spano, 61-year-old police veteran who helped the late Inspector Cesare Mori make good Benito Mussolini's boast that he would end Sicily's outlawry.

The stooped, graying Spano was ordered back to Sicily last April to deal with a wave of political assassinations that had brought communist-led labor to the verge of an insurrectional general strike.

Taking a leaf from Mori's book, Spano began training a special "flying force" of 750 highly mobile, heavily armed carabinieri to breach Giuliano's stout defenses. Meanwhile, he rounded up small fry and persons suspected of aiding the bandit chief, including his mother, Maria Lombardo, and his sisters, Mariannina and Giuseppa.

By late October Spano felt strong enough to put up posters throughout western Sicily announcing that the police had "the men and the means to banish banditry" from the island and urging the people to cooperate in what seemed to be a final drive on the bandit leader.

Last year police officials at Palermo said 20 out of 21 important bandit bands once infesting the island had either been wiped out or so weakened they were no longer to be feared. Only one tough nut had refused to crack.

Salvatore Giuliano, a swart handsome youngster (he is now 26) took to the hills in 1943 after killing a policeman who sought to confiscate his wagonload of black market wheat. A few days later he ambushed another policeman who tried to arrest him.

Then he organized a mass escape of 14 convicted bandits from Monreale jail near Palermo and made this the nucleus of a powerful band. To clinch his control of the rugged country behind Palermo he "liquidated" a rival band and laid the bodies of six of its members before a police station.

Displaying, in the grudging words of one police official, "considerable organizing ability," Giuliano dressed his men in American army uniforms, armed them with automatic weapons and regularly fought off or escaped police and soldiers—numbering, in one drive, more than 1,000—sent after him.

After that everything he did made news—and he did things with a flair.

When Interior Minister Giuseppe Romita offered 500,000 lire for his head in 1946, Giuliano offered 600,000 for Romita's.

When Ernesto Cardinal Ruffino of Palermo preached a sermon against banditry, Giuliano wrote a letter to a Palermo newspaper reproving the Cardinal for "interfering in this matter" and urging him to "raise the spirit and morale of the forces of order, on whom most of the blame lies."

When Giuliano's men killed a carabiniere in a clash last May, he sent 50,000 lire to the dead man's mother, along with a letter expressing regret and saying his band fired in self defense.

MORE MOUTHS TO FEED—Mrs. Florence Baumberger, above right, and Mrs. Ellen Wittel, left, cooks at the East Mansfield school cafeteria, are going to be even busier than usual Monday morning when they prepare lunch for 150 extra pupils who are transferring from Beer school, Lincoln Heights school and Woodville school, following the recent completion of four new classrooms at the building. Mrs. Baumberger has been employed at the school for the past five years, while Mrs. Wittel is new to the kitchen staff this year. They are assisted in the preparation and serving of lunches by seven girls from the seventh and eighth grades at the school. The other picture shows a group of East Mansfield pupils in one of the new classrooms. School enrollment will now stand approximately at 450. This number will not overtax the facilities, but represents just about full enrollment. A new Lincoln Heights school will accommodate the pupils of that section when the building is completed.

Spain Seeks Dollar Fund

Money Juggled By Franco

NEW YORK — (AP) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco has created a sliding scale of values for Spanish pesetas in his latest maneuver in the battle for Spain's economic recovery.

It results in higher prices for what he terms non-essential imports and bigger profits for the exporter of hard-to-sell Spanish products.

There are two principal reasons for the new measures. One is Spain's lack of dollars. The other is the government's last ditch fight against outright devaluation of the Peseta

The overall goal is to increase Spain's dollar income and to make every penny count. Spanish economy requires products which must be paid for in dollars Needs include heavy machinery to modernize factories, rolling stock for railroads, trucks and nitrogen fertilizer.

Modern machinery would increase production, lower costs in the domestic market, and boost exports Improvement of railroads would provide more efficient distribution of available food production. Nitrogen fertilizer would increase production of such vital foods as wheat.

The new measures were announced recently by Juan Antonio Suances, Franco's minister of industry and commerce.

Basically the device used is a form of devaluation. Under Spanish law only the government's Instituto DeMoneda (money institute) can possess dollars.

All dollars coming into Spain legally go to the institute. The Spaniard who needs dollars must buy them from the institute.

The new measures embodied in recently published decrees require the importer of less essential goods to pay a premium in pesetas for the dollars he needs. The Spanish exporter of favored products gets a bonus in pesetas for the dollars realized from his sales.

Draft Repeal Not on Agenda

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Two congressional opponents of the draft said yesterday they are not planning to push for repeal of the selective service law this year

Both agreed that repeal of the draft might increase pressure on Congress for a permanent universal military training law.

Rep. Havenner (D-Calif.) told reporters he has not heard repeal suggested by any House members even though the army is keeping up to full strength with volunteers There have been no actual draft calls for several months

Rep. Bishop (R-Ill.) said he would oppose repeal of the draft

Be Your Own Weatherman!

Signs Tell All—And Sometimes More

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK—(AP)—Every man should be his own weather man, I always say.

Especially when the weather bureau crosses you and you come out dressed for sunshine and get trapped in a blizzard with no hat or rubbers or overcoat. That happened to me once too often so I hunted for another way of forecasting the weather.

I consulted raw-boned farmers and weather-beaten sailors, some very old books, the man in the street, spinsters and rheumatics, some not so very old books, students of race track conditions, golfers who study the weather but play anyway, and my aunt's first cousin (on my father's side).

On the basis of this research into timeless proverbs, rhymes and sayings I can now offer predictions.

★

It will snow if---

Grouse shake their feathers at night; turkeys sit in trees and refuse to come down; cows bellow in the evening; cats sit with their backs to the fire; dry leaves rattle in the trees; rabbits take to open country; many meteors fall; black clouds gather in the north in winter; burning wood pops more than usual in winter; my aunt's first cousin's back aches.

★

It will thaw if ---

Old sheep eat little; cats wash their face; hogs rub themselves in winter snowflakes get bigger.

It will be a long, hard winter if--

The leaves are slow to fall; the breast-bone of the goose is red or has many red spots; bushes are thick with berries; Squirrels grow unusually bushy tails; the brown band on certain caterpillars are narrow; autumn had a lot of fog; the skin on the belly of a cat fish is unusually thick; the mole digs his hole two and a half feet deep (the winter will be mild if the hole is one foot deep); October was warm; onion skins are thick ("onion's skin very thin, mild winter coming in; onion's skin thick and tough, coming winter cold and rough")

It will rain if---

Dogs refuse meat or eat grass; cats cry a lot; flies bite your hand; bees stick close to the hives; cats sneeze and scratch table legs; candles burn dim; smoke goes downward; walls and pavements are damp and bad smells come up from ditches and gutters; cows try to scratch their ears; horses stretch their necks and sniff the air; mice run around a lot; smell of pipe tobacco hangs around longer than usual; soot falls down the chimney; rigging rope on ships and clothes lines becomes slack; the bull leads the cattle going into pasture (if a cow leads, the weather will be uncertain); you step on an ant; chairs and tables creak; my wife decides to wear a new hat.

It will be cold if---

The sky has lots of comets, pigs pick and store straws and leaves or become uneasy and grunt and huddle together; geese fly about 10 p. m.; prairie chickens come into creeks; field larks collect in flocks; my aunt's first cousin's teeth cavities give her a bad time.

★

It will storm if---

Cats rest their heads with their mouths turned up; old sheep eat a lot; foxes bark at night; prairie dogs bank up their holes with grass and dirt; rabbits run to the woods; birds stop singing; the aspen leaf shakes in calm weather; the silver maple shows the lining of its leaf; the hair of red head (man or woman) becomes unusually kinky.

★

The weather will be just plain foul if---

Cats snore; one crow flies alone (if crows fly in pairs, expect good weather); petrels collect under the stern of a ship; sea gulls sit on the sand; sun has large spots; my aunt's first cousin's corns ache.

It will be fair if---

There is enough clear sky to patch a Dutchman's breeches; spiders make new webs and ants make new hills; there are red clouds in the west at sunset; there are no falling stars on a clear summer night.

For other types predictions, there is lots of information, too. Like: cold November, warm Christmas; if ice bears a man before Christmas, it won't bear a mouse after; foggy March, frosty May; rain before seven, lift before eleven; on Thursday at three, look out and you'll see what Friday will be; moon and weather change together; and, of course, if the ground hog comes out of his hole on Feb. 2 and sees his shadow, you know there will be another six weeks of winter.

The stuff about the saints' days gives us some interesting possibilities. For example, all you need is rain on June 19, St. Protasius' day and this will happen.

It will rain for 40 days That means it will rain on St. Swithin's day, July 15, and that's another 40 days of pouring. That means it will be raining on Aug. 24, St. Bartholomew's day, and according to the proverb, "as Bartholomew's day, so the whole autumn."

That means rain on Sept. 20, 21 and 22, and that means rain for October, November and December and since the weather between Dec. 25 and Jan. 5 is supposed to supply the key for the next 12 months, that means rain for the whole year, or forever, just because it rained on June 19.

Ashland Dad Solves His Expensive-Years Problem

"Here's my picture," said a thoughtful Ashland dad recently. "I'm going on 46, and I've got a son—now overseas. My two daughters are at the college here, and I've a younger lad who expects to enter soon.

"In other words, I'm right in the middle of those Expensive Years all parents know about. If it weren't for that, I'd go in strong for your retirement plans now—for I realize I'm not getting any younger.

"It's a pity you don't have something with a Hold-Till-Called-For sign on it—something I could start now and then build on later, when I haven't so many college bills to pay. Had you ever thought of that?"

You can imagine his surprise when I told him we had a special plan for that purpose—a security income plan which would give his family ample protection now at low cost; and, in addition, would secure for him the right to start a retirement income plan at a later date, in fact, at any time before age 55.

Do you happen to be a Dad with similar problems? Are those "Expensive Years" causing you unnecessary worry? If so, drop me a note or phone my office. It will cost you nothing to get the facts Conventions are synonymous with fun and Gamma province conference being held here this week end is no exception. Two hundred women from Ohio, Michigan and Indiana registered Saturday for the convention of Delta Theta Tau sorority at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Zeta Rho chapter members of Mansfield are hostesses for the gay occasion, assisted by Delta Theta chapter, also of this city.

Informality was the order for the day and a half session. "Open house" was being held on many floors of the hotel Saturday as local girls entertained their visitors. Mrs. Ralph Hanno is serving as general chairman, assisted by the following hostesses, Mrs. David Shelley, co-chairman, Mrs. James McConnell, Robert Walter, Miss Jean Kelly, Miss Maurine Beal, Mrs. Thomas Wright, Mrs. Lyle Ernsberger, Mrs. Richard Porch, Mrs. Howard Ripper, Mrs. Thomas Scott, Mrs. Robert Sneeringer, Mrs. William Allee, Mrs. Robert Bonham, Mrs. John Carew, Mrs. Trudy Clark, Mrs. William Colby, Mrs. Charles Hayes, Mrs. Russ Hoff, Mrs. Fred Lewis, Mrs. Karl Johnson, Mrs. James LeMunyon, Mrs. Robert Saltzgaber, Mrs. Richard Shaw, Mrs. Merrill Swigart, Miss Eileen Tahsler, Mrs. Richard Talmadge, Mrs. Robert Walters, Mrs. James Wallace, Miss Marjorie Woodard, Mrs. Fred Zumsteg, Miss Margaret Fiedler, Mrs. Robert Boyd, Mrs. Robert Fleming, Mrs. Frances Edwards and Mrs. Rupert Cox jr.

A group of Cincinnati members and one from Michigan chartered buses for transportation to Mansfield.

Activity began Friday evening as the Mansfield gals gathered at the hotel to complete arrangements for the convention and to be on hand to greet the guests.

The accompanying pictures show active members who were photographed by Bill Graham, N-J staff photographer, as they chatted Friday evening at the hotel. The upper left photo was taken in the suite of Delta Theta's chapter, which was gaily decorated in the sorority colors and with attractive circus murals in keeping with the theme of the convention. Mrs. D. A. Tucker, refreshment chairman, pours a coke for Mrs. Edward Monahan, chairman of decorations, as Mrs. George Walker, entertainment chairman, waits her turn.

Mrs. Robert Walter, breakfast chairman, does a bit of primping as Mrs. Howard Ripper, publicity chairman, admires her new hat.

Mrs. Mary Gillette, of Chicago, national vice president, was caught by the cameraman as she arrived at the hotel Friday evening. In the second row of pictures at the extreme right are Mrs. S. B. Leonard, delegate from Delta Theta chapter, Miss Helen Lorow, reception chairman from that chapter, and a former member, Mrs. Charles Saylor of Columbus (the former Doris Mann), now affiliated with Alpha Xi chapter. Insert is of Mrs. James McConnell, banquet chairman, Mrs. Thomas Scott, president of Zeta Rho chapter, and Mrs. James Wallace, Zeta Rho delegate.

Attractive white programs outlined in Kelly green, with the numerals "49" on the front, were distributed to each gal. Again the circus theme was carried out with colorful drawings decorating the page.

The schedule for Saturday included registration at 8 a. m.; forum at 10 a. m.; business meeting at 1 p. m.; banquet at 6:30 p. m.; formal dance in the ballroom at 10 p. m., and this morning the convention closed with a "Lost Breakfast," at 10:30 a. m. The gals today were startled to find out that proper attire for breakfast was "come as you are."

Pauline Lane Honored At Bridal Shower

Miss Pauline Lane was honored recently at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Waldo Dillon and Mrs. Raymond Welty. The affair was held in the Dillon home, 332 Fairlawn avenue. Twenty guests were in attendance.

A bride's book was made and presented to the honoree. The guests cut nursery rhymes in half and gave one section to Miss Lane and pasted the other on her gifts. She then had to search through the house until the package with the other half of the rhyme was located. The hostesses presented her with a gift of linen.

Refreshments were served buffet style at a late hour by the hostesses.

Miss Lane is the bride-elect of John M. Welty. They will exchange nuptial vows May 22 in an open church ceremony.

Progressive Dinner Given

A progressive dinner party featured the recent meeting of Sigma Kappa Gamma sorority for which 13 members were present.

The first course was served by Mrs Robert Glasner at her home 38½ Glenwood boulevard, after which the group motored to the home of Mrs. Jack Palmer's mother, Mrs. Stanley Blackstone, 233 Bartley avenue, where the main course was served at a long table lighted with white tapers and centered with a flat arrangement of sweetpeas, daffodils and asters.

Mrs. John Yoha, South Main street road, served the dessert course at her home, with the guests seated at card tables.

Another meeting has been planned for Feb. 3, in the clubroom in the Citizen's building.

Lodge Officers Entertained

Mrs. Howard Markley, Lucas road, junior past noble grand, entertained the officers of Miriam Rebekah lodge who served in their several offices during 1948. Dinner was served at 6 o'clock in the parlors of the I.O.O.F. temple.

There were seventeen officers and two guests, Miss Lenora and Miss Anna Horn, present for the four course dinner. The table was centered with two large vases of deep red rose buds, which were later presented to each officer and guest present.

Following the dinner the group enjoyed a social time with cards as the diversion of the evening.

WOMEN'S GROUP PLANS TEA

Mrs. Logan Scott and Mrs. Orlan Hoyer will preside as hostesses to members of the Richland county Republican Women's club for a tea Wednesday, Feb. 9, at the new Republican headquarters, 52½ North Main street, it was announced.

MISS RUTH MORRIS

Mrs. E. A. Morris, Lakewood, Ohio, is announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Ruth Morris, to Dr. Theo. N. Kirkland jr., son of the Rev. and Mrs. T. N. Kirkland, Meridian, Mississippi. The date of the wedding will be announced later. Miss Morris was the nurse in Dr. Max Brown's office until moving to New Orleans, La., six months ago.

Wilma Jean Eise Wed to Crestline Man On Friday

A DRESS of lovely shell pink faille taffeta was chosen by Miss Wilma Jean Eise for her marriage to John M. Willrath, Friday at 8:30 p. m. The bride's dress had a round open neckline with a band of taffeta forming a bertha. Little cap sleeves and long tight gauntleis accented the style of the gown. The waistline came to a point in the back with a bustle effect in large bows, forming the gores of the skirt which fell to a slight sweep in the back.

Miss Eise wore an imported Chantilly lace veil, dyed to match the gown. It was held in place with a little Mary of Scot type bonnet, shirred on top and underneath the brim. Tiny velvet roses in shell pink were placed on the side and back of the little hat. Lace streamers fell down the back of the hat to the side.

Miss Eise and Mr. Willrath exchanged vows in the First Christian church with the Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger officiating for the double ring ceremony. White candles lighted the scene at the altar, which was decorated with palms, ferns and two beauty baskets filled with pink and white flowers.

Miss Alfraetta Bowden presided at the organ for the nuptial music.

Miss Eise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Eise, 620 Gilbert avenue, and Mr. Willrath is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Willrath, Crestline, Ohio.

Mr. Else gave his daughter in marriage. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations, and sweetheart roses, with a removable gardenia corsage.

Mrs. Manford D. Crum, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She was attired in a deeper shade of pink. Her gown was of faille taffeta made with a square front neckline and a little cape fell over the shoulders. The skirt was very plain and full. She wore little cuffed gauntlets just to the elbows and a half hat of a shade of shell pink trimmed in two shades of pink velvet roses to match her gown and the bride's. She carried a bouquet of shell pink and deep pink carnations and roses.

Mrs. Eise chose a navy blue dress with navy and white accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Willrath wore a wine suit with grey accessories. Both mothers wore white carnation corsages.

Robert B. Simmermacher of Crestline, friend of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Carl H. Eise jr. brother of the bride, and Robert L. Tracht, friend of the bridegroom, escorted the guests to their pews.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception for one hundred guests was held in the Mansfield-Leland hotel clubrooms. The bride's table was centered with a five tiered pink and white wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The cake was surrounded with pink and white carnations. Candelabra were placed at each end of the table.

For her traveling costume the new Mrs. Willrath wore a grey wool dress. After February 1 the couple will be at home at 460 Woodward avenue.

Mrs. Willrath is a graduate at Mansfield Senior high school and is employed as a stenographer at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company. Mr. Willrath graduated from Crestline high school and employed by Brandenburg Chevrolet company.

Out-of-town guests were from Fremont, Toledo, Crestline, Galion, Marion and Columbus.

Mrs. Shafer Gives Talk to Circle

Mrs. W. W. Purdy was hostess at her home, 408 Park avenue west, to members of Circle Four of the First Methodist church at a 1:30 dessert luncheon. The table was decorated with various colored sweetpeas.

Sixteen members and two guests, Mrs. C. L. Lisle and Mrs. Charles W. Stoneburner, attended the meeting which was in charge of the president, Mrs. C. A. Crawford. Mrs. Harry Welsh was welcomed as a new member.

Mrs. W. H. Newcomer led the group in devotions and Mrs. Stoneburner gave a prayer. Mrs. Charles Shafer told the group about Panama Canal and her recent trip there. She read several clippings on the subject and gave a descriptive talk on it.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Margaritis, 327 West Third street, February 17.

THRIFTY NEEDLERS MEET

A covered-dish dinner was served to 11 members of the Thrifty Needlers club and one guest, Mrs. Kenneth Sauslin of Shelby, when Mrs. Russell Fink entertained at her home on Auburn avenue in Shelby. Mrs. Roy Metz was presented with a birthday gift from the group, and contest prizes were won by Mrs. Sauslin, Mrs. Earl Fox and Mrs. Joe Amato. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Fox, Cook Road, Feb. 3.

PASTEL COLORS USED FOR WEDDING CEREMONY

Miss Elaine Eleanor Berry Becomes Bride of Marion W. Bowman of Bellville.

YELLOW, green and white were the bride's colors carried out in church decorations, gowns and reception, when Miss Elaine Eleanor Berry, daughter of Mrs. Hazel Berry of Galion, became the bride of Marion W. Bowman, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Bowman of Bellville.

The double ring ceremony was read at 3 p. m., Sunday, Jan. 16, at First Reformed church here, by Rev. R. R. Elliker, pastor of the church. Two beauty baskets were filled with flowers in the bridal colors, and lighted tapers were used in candelabra at the altar. The ceremony was preceded by a program of music with Miss Miriam Sayre at the organ, and Mrs. Ellis Swick as vocalist.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Emery Armstrong of Lexington, the bride was attractive in a gown of white slipper satin. The gown had a beaded sweetheart neckline and short train. She had a finger-tip length veil, and carried a white Bible topped with a gardenia corsage. She added a strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom, to her bridal ensemble.

Mrs. Armstrong was her sister's matron of honor, wearing a gown of yellow taffeta, and carrying a colonial bouquet of green flowers. The bridesmaids, Miss Faith Berry, youngest sister of the bride, and Miss Evelyn Foos, a close friend, had gowns of green taffeta and carried bouquets of yellow flowers.

Jack Spayde of Bellville, friend of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were John Bowers, James Showacker and Clyde Mowry of Bellville, and Marlin Armstrong of Bellville.

A reception was held in the church parlors following the wedding. In the receiving line, the bride's mother was attired in navy blue and white, and Mrs. Bowman had a brown and white ensemble. Both mothers had corsages in white flowers.

Friends and relatives of the couple who assisted in serving at the reception were Esther Foos, Mrs. Thomas Holmes, Mrs. Wilbur Shifley, all of Galion; Miss Martha Bowman of Bellville; Miss Joan Scheiber of Crestline.

For a short wedding trip, the bride wore a wool suit of a gray and brown mixture. She had pink accessories and completed her outfit with her gardenia corsage.

The couple will live with the bridegroom's parents at Bellville.

Following her graduation from Galion high school, the bride had been employed as stenographer at the Perfection Steel Body company in Galion. Mr. Bowman was graduated from Bellville high school, and is now employed in the maintenance department of the Standard Oil company in Mansfield.

MISS ELLEN AUKERMAN

Mr. and Mrs. Ora Aukerman, Greenwich, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Ellen Darlene, to Harold Philbrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forest Philbrick, Greenwich. The wedding will be an event of this coming summer.

Inauguration Scene Displayed At Home of Mrs. Wisterman

GALION—An inauguration scene, uniquely arranged by a Galion hostess when she entertained her club recently, is being viewed by many of her friends.

Assisted in arranging the timely scene by her husband, Mrs. Joseph Wisterman, placed it at one end of her dining room table. It has patriotic bunting arranged around the white columns of the "inaugural" platform on which dolls are arranged to represent the President of the United States taking his oath of office. Miniature bouquets of flowers are arranged on the platform where the doll figures represent the Chief Justice, President Truman, Mrs. Truman and Margaret, the Vice President, and other dignitaries. The women are attractively gowned in taffetas, satins and silks, while the men are in black. The President is standing before a miniature stand on which the "Bible" is placed.

On the canopy above the platform is a picture of President Truman. Below the platform is "grass" and real flowers which were arranged to stand in sand. Miniature cadets guard the white steps in front of the platform, and Mrs. Wisterman arranged small American flags at either end.

That she spent much time in arranging the scene is noticed in the pine cones on the grass which have real grass growing from them. Little wooden Missouri mules are also on the "lawn," and pottery mules holding plants were placed at either end.

The Wistermans left the scene in place, and are welcoming friends to see it this week.

Delegates Selected

CRESTLINE — Mrs. H. C. Hagan and Mrs. Robert Herbertshausen were elected delegates and Mrs. David Altaffer and Miss Katherine Mayer alternates to the Mid Winter Conference in Columbus March 5th when the American Legion Auxiliary held its business meeting in the Legion rooms with Mrs. H. LOST 62 LBS. TOLEDO LADY WELL PLEASED

Mrs. L. Barnes, 2433 Cherry St. gets desired results with Rennel

"I have lost 62 pounds while taking Rennel Concentrate and am feeling fine," writes Mrs. L. Barnes. "I am 60 years old, have a rooming house and now again do all my own work. I have recommended Rennel to several of my friends who are taking it with fine results. I cannot praise Rennel enough."

Imagine, eat plenty and lose weight with this simple yet effective amazing home recipe. After purchasing a bottle of Rennel from your druggist pour the contents into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. No diets to complicate your meal planning. No expensive vitamins to fortify your system from weakness while going without food for you can eat normally. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender, more youthful curves—if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Don't be switched to another product, insist on genuine Rennel.

Fund Woes Worry State Legislatures

Money Requests Exceed Incomes

A little five letter word—money—spells out the big woe of the men who hold the purse strings in the states.

Oklahoma's problems were summed up by Gov. Roy J. Turner as "mostly revolving around the dollar sign."

That goes for most of the other states.

An Associated Press survey of the 42 states where legislatures now are in session shows finances are causing the most trouble. In some states—such as Illinois, Nevada and North Carolina—requests for cash are running far beyond expected income.

Top items on the spending sheets are school systems that need more money and more buildings, highway networks that should be enlarged and repaired, and improvement and expansion of mental hospitals and other institutions.

Six states are trying to raise millions for veterans bonuses. A dozen are being asked for more money for old age pensions.

Requests for pay raises for people on the public payroll have been heard, or will be heard soon, in no less than 30 states.

Here are a few samples of suggested projects:

A commission studying Delaware's education plant has proposed a school building program that calls for $4,500,000 for Wilmington alone.

Florida's legislature probably will put up $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 a year as the state's share of a federal-state $208,000,000 water control program involving most of the southern end of the state.

A special committee in Kansas has recommended that $1,750,000,000 be spent in the next 20 years to bring the state's roads and streets up to a "fair standard."

New and old governors across the land will have to bear down hard if they want to keep budgets from ballooning to record heights.

MORE REVENUE WANTED

Rising costs have led to talk of ways and means of bringing in more revenue. Mentioned most often in the early discussions are higher gasoline taxes and new or higher income and sales taxes.

Social security measures will come before lawmakers in many states. A boost in old age pensions will be sought in a dozen states. None approaches the bid for $100 monthly pensions backed by the Montana old age pension association.

Other, and less numerous, security bills seek higher unemployment payments, higher workmen's compensation for injuries on the job and greater benefits for dependent children and the blind.

President Truman's call for repeal of the Taft-Hartley act will have some echoes at the state level. Labor leaders have fixed their sights on repeal of restrictive labor laws in Delaware, Ohio, Oregon, Tennessee, Utah, Florida and Texas.

Some states will work on legislation that stands out from the general pattern.

California will have another look at Gov. Earl Warren's proposed public health insurance program. It would be financed by payroll deductions from worker's checks and contributions from employers. Warren's previous bills along that line were defeated.

There is a movement in Georgia to curb the negro vote. It would work this way. A proposed law would wipe clean all existing voter registration books. A new registration would be held and constitutional amendment would require prospective voters to read, write and probably interpret the constitution to the satisfaction of registrars. House Speaker Fred Hand has said the program, if enacted, would eliminate about 80 per cent of the present negro vote.

ACT ON REPEAL

Kansas lawmakers will follow through on last fall's state-wide vote to repeal the constitutional ban on the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor. The next step is to discard the state's "bone dry" statute and provide control legislation. Legislators from counties which voted dry will have a majority in the house so the proceedings should be interesting.

Oklahoma also may try to get out of the dry column. Petitions for a referendum on repeal are being circulated. One state senator plans to submit a repeal bill to the legislature.

South Carolina, now the only state in the union not permitting divorces, will take the final steps to abandon its unique position. A constitutional amendment to legalize divorces on four grounds—adultery, physical cruelty, desertion and habitual drunkenness—was approved at the Nov. 2 election. It must be ratified by the legislature before it can go into effect.

And South Dakota may decide to join the other 47 states in enacting a drivers license law.

Architects Now Work From Inside Out to Utilize All Space

Ingenuity of Design Makes Modern Small Houses Desirable

The small home that first loomed so large on the American scene just before the war as part of the nation's defense housing has undergone such steady evolution in design that today's small home barely resembles it.

Today's small house is so well-planned that a 10x11 bedroom seems spacious; a 9x11' kitchen almost over-sized.

Architects have abandoned their old method of laying out the interior of a house after the exterior was designed. Architects in all sections who today are concentrating on the small home design the interior first.

They use enormous ingenuity in utilizing every inch of space, every bit of knowledge of color and light, every new development in building materials and equipment to make today's small home as livable as the larger pre-war home.

HOW SPACE IS SAVED

Partitions are no longer placed arbitrarily to close off space regardless of the family's needs and habits. Wall locations are planned to bring doors near each fewer than a few years ago. other, eliminating crisscross 'traffic'through rooms.

Partitions are thinner and Although a 2-inch saving on each side of a partition may appear unimportant, when 2 inches are saved on each side of the 66 feet of partition walls in the average small home, the total saving amounts to 22 square feet; nearly 250 cubic feet.

Window placement creates maximum wall areas for furniture grouping without sacrificing space, as so often happens when wall areas are narrow and skimpy.

HALLWAYS ELIMINATED

Hallways are eliminated. The front door opens into a small vestibule or directly into the living-room. To make space for a picture window on the front of the house, the entrance is often placed at a corner of the house. In such a case, stairs to the attic rise on the end wall of the living-room

COLOR INCREASES SIZE

Architects employ open construction and careful use of color and light to make rooms appear larger. The dining-room has become a part of the double-duty living-room. Storage walls separate room areas. Wide windows admit maximum light.

Bright but soft and glareless artificial illumination is provided in concealed coves or recessed wall and ceiling fixtures. Color values are kept light to give a feeling of cheer and of greater space and to avoid an oppressive sense of crowding.

This use of color embraces walls, ceilings, furnishings, floors and draperies. Interior designers consider floor color an integral part of each room. They create floor color harmony and contrast. This is often achieved by the use of asphalt tile flooring, available in such a wide range of marble-ized and plain colors that it can harmonize with any decorative plan.

Apparent size of rooms is increased by pastel wall color with woodwork to match. Draperies are hung beside rather than over windows to help convey an impression of space.

HEATING EQUIPMENT SMALL

One of the greatest post-war space-savers in small homes is the reduction in size of radiators or eliminating them altogether. For a home heated with steam or hot water, today's radiators are half the size of those a decade ago, and when recessed into walls waste practically no space. Even this space is saved in the home which has warm-air grilles in walls, hot-water coils embedded in its concrete floor, or steam or hot water circulating through baseboard radiators.

Kitchens are compact for maximum storage in minimum space. This trend saves steps, lessens work. Revolving shelves are placed in cabinets where they join at a corner. Sliding cupboard doors save space used by swinging doors.

Cabinet shelves are placed at irregular heights so that bulky articles can be stored in the same compartment with low stacks of dishes and utensils. Wall cupboards extend to the ceiling; additional work surfaces are provided by auziliary counter tops which slide or swing beneath the work surfaces of floor cabinets.

RAMBLER TYPE — Styled in the comfortable and increasingly popular ranch design, Brick Engineered Home E-3 meets the needs of today's modern young family. The low, graceful lines of this T-shaped, 3-bedroom bungalow offer the utmost in spacious home design for a normal-sized lot. "Engineered" for economy, the building products in this home are manufactured to a standard unit of measure or "module," so that they "fit" without unnecessary waste and cutting. This is one of the first group of Brick Engineered Homes ever offered to home planners. Complete detailed building plans and material specifications for this home may be obtained from the Structural Clay Products Institute, 1756 K street, N. W., Washington 6, D. C., at $15.00 for the first set and $5 each for additional sets.

HOME OWNERS' QUESTION BOX

Q—Does a porch cost as much to build as a room of equal size?

A—An open porch costs approximately half as much. A screened porch costs about two-thirds as much. A glassed-in porch costs about the same.

Q—Why is sheathing applied diagonally on the sides of a house?

A—It has been found that diagonal sheathing is eight times as strong as horizonal sheathing.

Q—In relation to home building, what does "parget" mean?

A—Parget is coarse plaster used as a decoration or as protection for masonry. Sometimes it is called "parge coat."

Q—What is the modular system of construction?

A—It is a system of planning all measurements in multiples of 4 inches. By facilitating extensive use of standard size materials, the modular system minimizes cutting of materials on the job and lessens waste.

Q—Why does paint blister on the exterior of a house?

A—If the house was painted recently, within a year of two, moisture under the paint is probably the reason. If there is moisture between the wood and the paint, the sun's heat can cause vapor pressure, resulting in blisters which crack so that the paint peels off.

FROSTING GLASS

Glass can be frosted by painting it with a solution of half a pound of Epsom salts in a quart of water

Riches Fading

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—The number of Swedish millionaires is decreasing. At the end of 1947 Sweden had 809 millionaires (a million crowns is $278,000) against 1,018 a year before. Persons with a half and a third million crowns were also fewer, while all the smaller categories, owning from 20 000 to 300,000 crowns had become more numerous.

The two-block long grinding and polishing machines for plate glass used by Libbey-Owens-Ford compensate for curvature of the earth which is 8 inches to the mile.

Builds 515 Apartments

WASHINGTON — Typical of what building contractors in widely scattered urban centers throughout the United States are doing to solve the housing shortage are Tyler Gardens at suburban Falls Church, Va.

Modern, comfortable living at moderate cost is achieved in the project.

Developed to accommodate families requiring up to three bedrooms, and having rental schedules ranging from $65 to $90 a month, the project embraces a total of 98 buildings having 515 apartments. Making up the 515 units are, 83 one-bedroom apartments, 264 two-bedroom apartments, and 168 three-bedroom apartments. One-bedroom apartments rent for $65, two-bedroom $80, and three-bedroom $90.

More than the usual living facilities for rental units in the same price class are provided at Tyler Gardens. The approximate size of the living-dining area is 15 feet by 20 feet, and master bedrooms in all apartments are approximately 12 feet by 14 feet.

All apartments have radiant heat concealed in the celings. Basements scattered throughout the project provide convenient facilities for group storage, laundry and wash rooms and utility.

Picture windows admit abundant daylight to all apartments, and add to the feeling of spaciousness and living with the outdoors.

COLLECTS ANYTHING

LAUREL, Del — (AP) — A. R. Perry likes to collect odd items. His collecting hobby has rounded up innumerable things including these: An old-fashioned trundle bed, a powder horn, a model C-54 airplane, a wheel from a surrey, a bell said to have been rung the night Paul Revere made his famous ride, and 80,000 bottles 50,000 of which once contained a headache powder.

Indications Point to Change Ahead For Building Industry

Chicago—Important new trends that will effect the entire building industry were unveiled in the current issue of Practical Builder, authoritative trade magazine. Editors toured the country and discovered many new developments worth watching.

In California, for example, it was learned that sub-contractors, a very important segment of the housing industry, were looking for business. In some instances they had lowered bids as much as 30 per cent in order to win contract awards.

The magazine says that the same situation is not evident in eastern building centers. However, the article points out that California has long been a weather vane. Changes have occurred there which later spread over the rest of the Nation.

Generally, the productivity of labor is increasing everywhere, the article states. A larger labor supply has been an important factor in obtaining a dollar's work for a dollar's pay. A Texas builder who advertised for labor received 171 replies, an indication that a labor shortage has disappeared.

A western builder told an editor that his plumbers did roughing-in plumbing on a 50-house project in one-fourth the usual time.

Several "straws in the wind" indicate a coming buyer's market, the article said. While plenty of people still want homes the era of "any home at any price" is about over.

England Needs More Scientists

STAFFORD, England— (AP) — Britain needs at least 200,000 scientific and technical workers—twice as many as it has now—says Dr. C. P. Snow, wartime director of scientific appointments for the government. Opening new electrical training laboratories at Staffordshire county technical college he said that "the scarcity of scientists is a problem more vital than the shortage of raw material."

At present Dr. Snow is director of technical personnel for the English Electric Co at Stafford. The company contributed $40,000 worth of equipment to the college and gives its apprentices time off to attend the school.

Laundry Can Also Serve As Playroom

Even the smallest laundry room usually can be rearranged to serve both the laundry and indoor recreation needs of the average family, building authorities report. They say the key to giving one room a dual function lies in the selection and arrangement of equipment.

Most laundry rooms are insufficiently lighted, so the first step is to install additional lights. At the same time, move the old electric fixtures up near the ceiling. This will eliminate bumped heads and broken light bulbs later.

The second step is to take stock of present laundry equipment. If stationary tubs are stuck out in the middle of the room where they take up valuable space, they should be relocated or replaced with movable equipment.

Painting the walls and ceiling of the room is the third step. Be sure to use a washable paint on the walls because they are sure to be splashed with water and marred with fingerprints. Choose bright colors, too. They will brighten up the room for play time and also cheer up the drab routine of wash day.

Finally, choose recreational equipment suitable for the available space. This may mean installing just a dart board or it may call for a pingpong table. Advance planning and ingenuity place no limit on what can be done.

CEMENT THEM DOWN

In exceptionally windy areas, additional windtightness can be given to asphalt shingles by cementing down the tabs with quick-setting asphalt cement.

BLOODHOUNDS OF JUSTICE—There's never a lull around the Identification Bureau in Mansfield's police department. Subject to round-the-clock call on crime, officers in the bureau find themselves constantly checking on old reports, adding the constant flow of new "personalities" to their files and comparing notes with state and national "wanted" lists. At extreme left, Policewoman Ruth Craig takes down a confession as read to her by Detective Howard L. Schuck of the force. Usually Miss Craig sits in on the hearings, that is, unless the routine duties of the bureau force her to become a sort of "stand-in" secretary. The best-known method of unquestionable identification is fingerprinting, shown in process in the center photo. Bureau Officer Robert L. Pittinger "takes" prints of Parking Meter Inspector George Caton, who posed for the picture. Every person brought in on a criminal charge to municipal court is fingerprinted. At extreme right, Bureau Superintendent Paul J. Martin, seated, and Detective William M. Colby compare a set of local prints with the FBI "wanted" list. All prints in the department are checked for duplications in other departments.—(News-Journal photos)

New System Gives Finger-Tip Control on Crime Records

Identity Chief Starts Complex Job

27,000 Police Cards Indexed

By MARGUERITE MILLER

Identification Officer Paul Martin, who is an eagle-eye for misdeals, is doing some mighty reshuffling in his police department office.

It's a big hand that Martin holds — about 27,000 cards. The kind of cards that read:

Report No. 634: John Doe, forgery. Sept. 24, 1943. Case cleared.

Martin's the dealer on the three-handed game also played by Policewoman Ruth Craig and department assistant Robert Pittinger. They don't expect the re-codification process to be completed before next year—constant interruptions in the office approximate Grand Central—but they've taken the bull by the horns and cut a good sized chunk off the herculean task.

It's all going to work out toward one end; Martin promises. That, he says, is "the best department in the state." And he has a talking point since the change locally was started only after repeated trips by Martin and Police Chief Jesse J. Schwab to departments in other cities.

One master index file in which the daily reports, dating back to 1925, can be transferred to cards, is "the goal."

"We're trying to get that master file set up so we can catalogue all names and reports so they'll be readily available to all the patrolmen or officers on the force at a moment's notice," Martin commented.

"The system will suit our needs and it is one that can be expanded and carried on by anyone who might come into the department."

According to both Martin and Chief Schwab, too much of the detail on some cases has been "carried around in the heads of the investigating officers." With the new system, everything is put down on paper for both immediate and future reference.

TASK LONG DELAYED

As Martin says: "We're trying to get something done here that should have been done years ago."

But years ago there was no room available in the city hall for the department. For years, Martin and his identification lab were crowded back into a few square feet, sandwiched between the jail and the corridor.

When the municipal court room was moved to the third floor last fall, Martin, at last, was given the room needed for his expanding department. The rows of stiff wooden benches in the old court room were removed along with the judge's bench and Martin moved in.

At the same time, all police records, formerly kept in the traffic office, were moved to their rightful places under Martin's command.

And then came the big headache—or, you might say—27,000 of 'em. Martin estimates that 24,000 of the total reports are actual arrests made here and that the 3,000 others are "wanted" circulars received from other jurisdictions. Of the 24,000 local reports there are possibly 4,000 duplications as a result of the old system of traffic department and identification department filing.

Under the old system, all offense reports were filed numerically according to the date they were made. Unless an officer, who had cause to check back on a case, knew the approximate month the report was made, he spent a few hours sorting the records for the right one.

Now, it will take only a few minutes to find a record on anyone with past police "experience" in the city. The alphabetized master index file shows the crime committed, the name of the accused and the date and number of the report.

For more information, the officer need only pull out the daily record drawer, designated as to the year, and look up the number of the report. Separation tabs, setting off every 500 reports, aid in the search.

Active and inactive files on stolen cars are found next door to the master file. Here are listed, by make of car, the report of theft, the owner, and the serial numbers of the engines. Number of the report is again listed on these cards so that officers may have the same quick reference to the daily report as with the crime reports.

One of Martin's most amusing innovations to the department is the nickname file which is exactly what its name implies. Because, as the identification department head says, "real names of some of these people are never known or used," the file becomes invaluable when a suspect is designated only as "Fog Horn" or "Sugar Foot." But, on "Fog Horn's" card in the department, there is a full name.

In addition to that, there's another row of cards in the same drawer which give the officers an idea of any mixup "Fog Horn" might have had with the "law." These latter cards are filed in colors, according to the crime committed—blue for larceny, orange for robbery, etc. If "Fog Horn" is wanted his corresponding card to the nickname file will be bright red, easily picked out among the other cards.

Up-to-date tab on OSR parolees is kept in a file in a separate drawer where the "technicolor" system is used again to designate the on-parole and the violation-of-parole and wanted individuals. Clipped to the cards, listed alphabetically, are green plastic tabs for "on parole" and an added red tab for the "wanteds."

Since the licensing of every bicycle in the city has been enforced, a separate file, on all bike registrations, broken down to name of owner, license number and frame number, is kept.

One of the "just started" features of the department is the gun file, containing the type of gun, serial number and owner's name of every gun confiscated on crimes investigated by the department.

Persons who simply wish to list their guns in the file as an added help in case of theft or loss may do so without fear that their weapons may be mixed up with ones involved in crime.

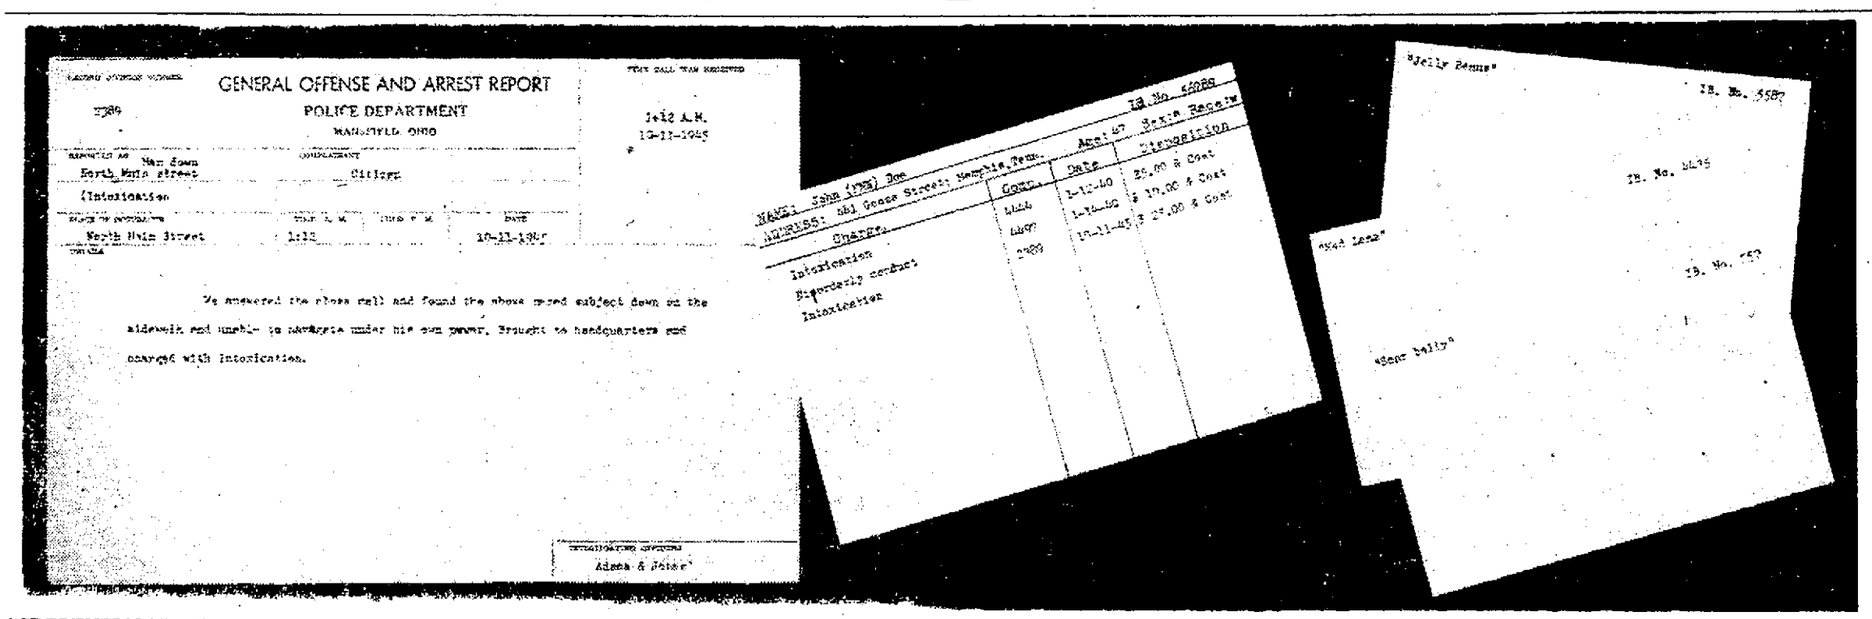
"In fact," Martin added, "it's a good idea for anyone to list his gun here as we can take the serial number of it and keep it for future reference in case the gun is lost or stolen. Many times, the owner can't tell us the serial number of the gun after he has lost it."

Going from the file drawers over to the walls, the visitor notices a wall chart—another Martin-idea—which gives a day-to-day check up on the crime rate and type in the city. A running total of the types of crimes and misdemeanors committed and the age group responsible for them is kept up to date. On an opposite wall, is a large blueprint of the city on which are stuck colored-headed pins, designating the type of crimes committed in their respective locales.

Through the use of both the wall chart on age groups and the locale map, any officer in the department can tell, at one glance, the age of the "trouble makers" in the city and their favored territores.

Last, but held in high importance, is the complainant file. Idea of this file, Martin says, is the "quick reference" it affords to investigating officers.

Termed as "essential to the efficient working of the department," the complainant file is held in strictest confidence. No Mansfielder who reports an incident to the police department, need fear that his or her name will be on the police record.



"CREDENTIALS"—There's plenty of records to be kept straight at the bureau and these little cards help. For each "case"—that's individually speaking—at the department, a card is made out for alphabetical filing. Since an offender is apt to return, cards are made out, giving ample space to all "return engagements." In the bureau's new filing system, the center card above, is the first one referred to in the master file. John Doe's name, his arrests, date of arrests and convictions are listed. If the last charge is to be checked on, bureau officers are referred to the report file (notice corresponding numbers) where the complete report of the latest charge is filed, copy at left. In cases where persons are known more widely by their nicknames than by their real names, the newly-introduced "nickname" file, samples at right, have proven of real value to investigating officers. Actual nickname file cards, kept in the bureau, also carry the real name of the person on the card. For obvious reasons, the real monikers were omitted here.

Signs Point To Business 'Normalcy'

Year Anticipated 'Fair-to-Good'

Ever since the war ended, budget-balancers have been wondering just when that "back-to-normal" phrase was toing to mean something to the pocketbook.

This may be the year. Mansfield merchants say 1949 may be the "most normal" year of the past 10.

Right now, the traditional January sales are keeping the sales volume well up in the black ink. Most merchants report a general drop in buying during January and February, but they are all looking forward to a "fair-to-good" business year.

V.H. Lodde, secretary-manager of the Retail Merchants association and the Credit Rating Bureau, says there is "no question that newly-imposed credit restrictions have curtailed home appliance sales." Appliance purchases must now be accompanied by 20 per cent down payment.

Lodde said the restrictions are also making a big dent in used car sales where thirty-three and one-third per cent of the total price must be laid on the line before delivery. Prior to the passage of the restriction last September, many used cars were moved out of lots with only a $200 payment behind them.

"Most merchants, "Lodde continued," are looking forward to a fair year, although they feel the first few months may be a little slack.

"Sales are keeping volume up. There was a heavy run on the stores at Christmas—right up to Christmas Eve. Consequently, good sales during December helped make up for the October and November slump in business."

Lodde predicts that merchants will be a mite more wary of extending credit in the months to come.

"Retailers will probably use more effort this year than has been used in the past several years on their collection procedures in order to keep the accounts liquid," he declared.

"And," he went on, "the day is coming when merchants will have to 'sell' again and try all kinds of advertising to move their stocks."

Lausche Unruffled By Cabinet Appointment Rebuff

By H. H. DAUGHERTY

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Former Gov. Vic Donahey always contended a Republican Senate's refusal to confirm several of his major appointments made him a three-term governor.

Therefore when the Senate Republicans and four rebellious Democrats defeated the confirmation of Herbert D. Defenbacher, Gov. Frank J. Lausche's nominee for finance director, the present chief executive accepted the rebuff without concern.

He did express regret the Senate's action deprived him of the benefit of Defenbacher's experience with state finances and said Defenbacher would be retained in some capacity in his administration.

Defenbacher is a Republican, but Governor Lausche, recognizing his knowledge of state finances, retained him as finance director during his first term. Former Gov. Thomas J. Herbert kept Defenbacher and Governor Lausche again wanted him in his cabinet to handle the state's finances.

The four Democrat senators' objection to Defenbacher was based almost entirely on the fact he is a Republican.

The Republican senators said they opposed him because the Democrats were divided and, being in the minority it did not behoove the Republicans to share the responsibility for Defenbacher's confirmation.

Republican members explained they had voted for the confirmation of Governor Lausche's other cabinet selections, all Democrats, because the Democrats were agreed on the nominations.

The Republicans have only one day left to change their position. That may be done next Monday night when the Senate reconvenes. If they decide it would be better political strategy to confirm Defenbacher, they may move on Monday night for reconsideration of the vote and on a second roll call vote for his confirmation.

'Scrappy' Kessing New Boss of AAC Gridders

Senior High Wins 17th Straight Home Game

League Adopts Playoff

CHICAGO — (AP) — The All-America football conference completed preparations for its renewed box office war with the rival National football league by changing commissioners and adopting a Shaughnessy play-off plan.

The new commissioner, Oliver O. Kessing, 58, was chosen after the league accepted the resignation of Admiral Jonas Ingram, commissioner for two years. Kessing—like Ingram—is an outstanding retired naval officer. He served as deputy to Ingram, making assignments of officials and supervising other organizational functions. He was promoted to the top executive spot just one day after the league decided to operate with seven clubs in 1949.

SOLVES PROBLEM

The conference solved its schedule problem by adopting a 12 game home and home program. The regular season play will culminate in a Shaughnessy style playoff. At the end of the 14 weeks' season, the first and fourth place teams will meet and the second and third place teams will be matched. the winners of those two contests then will play for the championship.

The problem caused by the odd number of teams in the circuit was solved by an arrangement under which each team will draw two byes during the regular season.

Kessing, who retired from the Navy in 1947 with the rank of commodore, was signed to a one-year contract at undisclosed terms. Admiral Ingram received $30,000 annually.

Asked whether he would get the same amount, Kessing snapped:

"No comment."

Kessing, whose home in Coronado, Calif., will maintain league headquarters in New York city. Joseph Petritz will remain in charge of public relations.

Admiral Ingram, whose resignation has been in the hands of AAC club owners for a year, had recommended Kessing as his successor.

FINE ATHLETE

Kessing has carried the nickname "Scrappy" since his undergraduate days at Annapolis, where he made a reputation as a formidible contender in football, baseball, boxing and wrestling. He entered the naval academy in 1910.

Kessing established the North Carolina preflight school for the Navy early in World War II. He moved to the Pacific and remained in command of an advance operations base throughout the war. If the invasion of Japan had come off, he would have commanded a landing force of 30,000 men.

Sport Program To Be Set Up For Newsboys

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A national newspaperboys' organization to promote college scholarships through competitive sports was formed today in Columbus.

Newspaer circulation and advertising executives from various sections of the nation formed the "All - American Newspaperboys' Sports Scholarship Inc."

The first project of the organization will be a $25,000 newspaperboys bicycle derby next summer in Columbus.

The bicycle derby will be sponsored jointly by the scholarships organization and the Arnold, Schwinn & Co., Chicago bicycle manufacturers.

Columbus Mayor James A. Rhodes, president of the organization, said the derby would give each daily newspaper carrier, between the ages of 12 and 17, an opportunity to win one of three college scholarships.

William F. Stoeffhaas, Schwinn general manager, said his firm would establish the "Ignaz Schwinn Memorial Scholarships," totaling $6,000 annually, plus $19,000 in bicycles as prizes for the national bicycle derby.

Rhodes, also president of the Amateur Athletic Union, said the immediate aim of the organization is to provide a well-rounded sports program for newspaperboys—including swimming meets and basketball and softball tournaments.

Notre Dame Plays In Texas Again

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — (AP) — Notre Dame pushed its football operations a little farther into the southwest yesterday by the announcement of the signing of a two-game series with the University of Texas.

Frank Leahy, Irish athletic director and head grid coach, said the first game would be played Oct. 4, 1952, at Austin, Tex., and the return tilt at South Bend, Sept. 25, 1954.

About Grappling, Tribe RBI Power Plus Cuff Stuff

By Fred Tharp
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

THE GRUNT AND GRUNT industry, sports gift to the entertainment world, is due back in Mansfield within two months. . . . Not that any papers have been signed but promoters have besieged this department and the Mansfield boxing and wrestling commission with queries about sites, type of shows, etc. . . . The big gimmick with wrestling is the same one heard many times in this town of ours—lack of facilities. . . . But that should be ironed out in the next six weeks when the National Guard Armory again becomes available for extra curricular activities. . . . All of the promoters seem equipped to give Mansfield better shows than it has known before. . . . They all want to please the customers because promoters are not in the business for their health. . . . Good shows mean more dough and we haven't seen many people ready to throw away "coin of the realm." . . . The commission, too, wants to erase the stigma that has seemed to follow the cauliflower business in Mansfield. . . . We don't hold any brief for wrestling as a sport—but we do like to see the "ham actor-athletes" ply their trade, be it as a villain or as the fair-haired lad. . . . Some promoters have also broached the subject of staging boxing shows here but have been only lukewarm in this phase of the ring business. . . . Too many things can happen to mess up a boxing card, injuries, contract jumping, fixes, etc. . . . The wrestlers don't get hurt much and everybody thinks they're fixed anyhow which is one of the pet selling points of the matches.

MANY REASONS have been advanced for the secret of the Cleveland Indians drive to the top of the baseball world. . . . Their pitching and catching have been lauded but many experts figure that the power of the Tribe infield was the main factor. . . . Many of these expert fellows think that the Indian infield was tops in American league runs-batted-in annals. . . . The Tribe foursome batted in 432 runs with Joe Gordon, 124; Ken Keltner, 119; Lou Boudreau, 106 and Eddie Robinson, 83. . . . That figure nears the top, though, as a check of the records show only two other quartets have ever bettered the mark. . . . The Detroit Tiger infield of 1934 banged home a great 462 to lead the Motor city crew to its first pennant in 25 years. . . . Big Hank Greenberg was the spoke of that group with 139. Charley Gehringer had 127, Bill Rogel, 100 and Marvin Owen, 96. . . . The Yankees best was in 1931 when Lou Gehrig set the all-time record of 184 RBI's. . . . Lyn Lary had 107 that year, Tony Lazzeri, 83 and Joe Sewell, 64 for a total of 438. . . . The New Yorkers still finished second to the Athletics in '31. . . . Best infield of all of those Yankee pennant winners was the 1936 quartet of Gehrig, Lazzeri, Red Rolfe and Frank Crosetti which plated 409 markers. . . . Boston last year trailed Cleveland, but far back, with 369 while the Yankees had only 187 RBI's. . . . And that is undoubtedly the reason Bucky Harris and his boys did not repeat as champs.

CUFF STUFF: Wilbur F. "Pete" Henry, athletic director of Washington and Jefferson college underwent an operation for amputation of his right leg above the knee this week. . . . The operation resulted from gangrene following a toe infection. . . . An all-time All-America tackle, Henry played pro ball with the Canton Bulldogs. . . . He was a football star at Mansfield Senior high some 30 years ago. . . . Shelley Swank, Tyger guard of 1947-48, is one of the outstanding prospects on the Ohio U. freshman basketball squad. . . . Shelley stands 5-11 and also is a fine baseball player. . . . The Ohio U. swimming roster lists another Mansfielder, Art Kern. . . . He's a diver and sprinter. . . . A junior, Kern won a letter last season with the Bobcats. . . . Soph Jim Garrison of Mansfield is a varsity breast stroker on the Wittenberg college tank team. . . . He stands 6-2 and weighs 145 pounds. . . . The Senior high school indoor track squad will run against the Kenyon college freshmen, March 13, at Gambier. . . . Harry Mehock has scheduled the Mansfield baseball clinic Feb. 16 at Senior high. . . . The morning session will be held in the gym and the afternoon in the auditorium. . . . Instructors for the clinic are Lou Boudreau, Muddy Ruel and Bill Bradley of the Cleveland Indians. . . . Only managers and coaches will be able to attend. . . . Prexy Bill Veeck of the Indians will speak at the Bucyrus high school Wednesday night. . . . Proceeds of the meeting will be used to further a playground recreational program for Bucyrus.

Junior Highs Play 2 Games

Mansfield's two junior high schools will both be host to reserve teams of nearby Class A schools this week.

John Simpson, which won its second game of the season Thursday at Lexington, will be host to the Ashland seconds Wednesday afternoon in the Simpson gym. Ashland defeated Simpson, 51-32, Jan. 14.

Crestline reserves will come to Johnny Appleseed Thursday as Jimmy Lymper's Pioneers go after their fifth triumph in seven games. It will be the first meeting of the year for the two clubs.

Two games will be played on both programs beginning at 4 p. m.

Big Court Tourney Is Listed

A chance for county independent teams to try their hands against teams in Mansfield will be afforded in the City-County Open basketball tournament announced yesterday by City Recreation Director Stan Kamen.

Play will begin Feb. 28 at Senior high school gym and will be open to any team in the county which has played a regular season schedule. All-star teams organized for the tournament will not be permitted.

An outstanding prize list totaling $200 in trophies and medals will be awarded both teams and individuals. Trophies will go to the winning and runner-up teams, the outstanding player of the joust and to the high-point man. Medals will be given to all members of the two top teams as well as to members of the all-tournament team and other individuals.

Any team in the county may enter including teams in Friendly House and Church as well as Recreation department leagues. Shelby City league teams will be invited and other clubs such as Butler Boosters and Lucas Vets are expected to enter. Players may compete with only one team, however.

Entry fee is $5 and deadline for entering was set by Kamen for Feb. 15. Complete dates for the tournament and other details will be announced at that time. Entry blanks are available at the recreation department.

Single eliminations will be played.

Hogan Shoots 66 In Rain To Take Lead

LONG BEACH, Calif. — (AP) — Ben Hogan shot a spectacular five under par 66 in the rain yesterday and signalled his bid at the halfway point for leading honors in the $10,000 Long Beach open golf tournaament. It gives him a 36-hole total of 134.

As a gallery of several hundred stood under umbrellas, Hogan posted a card of 33-33 for the par 35-36—71 layout at the Lakewood country club. He collected six birdies and was over par on only one hole for the round.

Jack Burke, Orleans, shooting his second 69 in a row, and Smiley Quick, Los Angeles, with 68-70.

FEW CHALLENGERS

There were few players remaining to finish who figured to catch Hogan at this stage.

Lloyd Mangrum, winner of the recent $15,000 Los Angeles open, dropped back from a first round 70 to 71 for 141, but could hardly be counted out of the fray at this point.

Tied with Mangrum were Horton Smith, 69-71. Harry Bassler, Los Angeles, 72-69; Wally Ulrich, Minneapolis, 71-70, and Marty Furgol, Albuquerque, 70-71.

Portland's Emery Zimmerman carded a 69 for 140, and his brother Al a 70 for 142. Herman Keiser, Akron, continued to putt well but took a 73 for 144, while Leland Gibson, Kansas City, after a first round 69, had 75 for 144 Saturday.

Philadelphia A's Sign Three More

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— The Philadelphia Athletics yesterday announced receipt of signed contracts from three players, including Charley Harris, star relief pitcher.

The new contracts increased the number of signed A's to 18. Thomas Davis, highly prized infielder coming up from Hollywood of the Pacific Coast league, and Hank Biasatti, first baseman from Toronto of the International league, were the other players to sign.

Bucks Break Even

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Michigan State's wrestling team defeated Ohio State 28 to 0 in a meet here yesterday. In a gymnastics meet, Ohio State's team downed Michigan State 16½ to 10½.

Columbus Schools Play Here Friday; Tygers and Rams on Road Tuesday

Basketball teams of Mansfield Senior and Madison high schools have some pretty rough competition in store for them this week—both at home and abroad.

The home schedule is possibly the toughest as Senior high hosts Columbus East and Madison entertains Columbus Linden-McKinley. These games are listed Friday night. Tuesday, Senior high goes to Fremont Ross while Madison plays at Crestline.

LONE NEW TEAM

East is the only newcomer among the quartet and should give the Tygers a plenty trying evening. The East aggregation moved into third place in the Columbus city league Friday night by knocking off Columbus South handily, 64 to 56. Prior to that game the teams had been tied for the No. 3 spot.

Featuring a fast-breaking attack, the East team has dropped only two starts in Columbus league play. Central plastered that second loss last Tuesday, 63 to 57. Lanky Luther Towers, the city's most improved player, connected for 27 points in that one for East. The big splurge gave Towers third place in the scoring race with 186 points in 11 games.

Just ten days ago, East edged Linden in a thriller, 51 to 50. Towers collected 15 points in that game while Linden's Johnny Hayes came through with 12. Hayes is fifth in the scoring column with 163 points. Tuesday, Linden knocked off Columbus Aquinas, 43 to 42, but lost to North Friday, 62 to 54.

In 1948, the Linden Panthers handed Madison its second loss in 18 games, 38 to 25.

Fremont's biggest opportunity for victory Tuesday hinges on the fact that the Senior high school cage team cannot win away from home. The Tygers won their first road game but dropped the next five. Scouting reports of Fremont show that Ross is not a polished ball club by a long shot but plays rough basketball. For that reason only Fremont has managed to make out okay with several opponents.

Bowling Green defeated Fremont, 47 to 38, Friday night. Last year, Senior high took the measure of Ross, 60 to 43.

Madison's game Tuesday will be the first of two tussles with Crestline. The second is listed in Mansfield, Feb. 4. Crestline has won three of seven games this year, including two of three in the Northern Ohio league.

Madison won over the Bulldogs twice last year, 41 to 22 and 57 to 32.

The Rams of Coach Blaine Dowler have won six of 10 games this season while prior to last night's clash with Akron North the Tygers had six wins and five defeats. The Bengals went into the North game sporting a record of 16 straight victories in the Tyger lair.

Schnittker-to-the-Rescue To Save Buckeyes, 66-56

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio State had the services of Dick Schnittker long enough tonight to chalk up its third Big Nine basketball victory of the season, 66 to 56, over Purdue in the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

The Bucks' star—hospitalized last week with a throat ailment—was in the game 13 minutes and 58 seconds, but it was long enough to spark Ohio State to a second-half rally. He contributed 18 points himself.

LEAD AT HALF

Ohio had a 33 to 29 lead at half time. Neither team was anywhere near top form the first 15 minutes. The score was tied six times in the first half although the Boilermakers managed to get ahead only twice, at 18-17 and again at 20-18.

Coach Tippy Dye sent Schnittker into the game with six minutes and 26 seconds left to play in the half. Schnittker scored only one basket himself in the first half, but he dumped six of eight free throws through the hoop. Three straight free throws by the Buck star and a long rush shot from the side court by sub Fred Taylor put the Bucks into a lead which they maintained safely to intermission.

The Bucks had broken the backs of the stubborn Boilermakers before Schnittker came on the scene, however. Following intermission, Purdue came back with a rally that earned the lead and at one time a 44-40 margin.

RAIDIGER HELPS

At that juncture, with 11:27 minutes to play, Bob Raidiger put on the steam and potted a pivot shot to make it 42-44. Bob Burkholder added a free throw and Raidiger came back with a lay-up fielder and a free throw to give the Bucks a lead they never surrendered.

Bob Donham and Schnittker then chimed in and the Bucks forged ahead to the 10-point margin of victory.

Johnny Williams, Purdue forward, finally broke his streak of consecutive free throws at 18 when he missed his first effort tonight. But he made good on his three succeeding chances for a season record of 21-1.

Halftime score: Ohio State 33, Purdue 29.

Free throws missed: Ohio State: Donham 4, Remington, Schnittker 3, Raidiger 3, Burkholder. Purdue: Williams 3, Caudell, Ritter, Butterfield, Butchko, Banks, Greiner 2.

Best Ashland County Teams Meet Monday

The Ashland college gym will be packed to the rafters tomorrow night when Perrysville and Savannah meet in what is expected to be a preview of the county tournament finals.

Savannah will match its high scorer, Don Lindsay, who batted in 32 points Friday against the fourth-quarter scoring ability of the Admirals.

Perrysville has won 13 games and lost three and in four of the victories it has overcome large opposition leads in the closing minutes. Its greatest previous comeback was in the first Savannah game, when it trailed 39-27 at the end of the third period, but won, 50-48.

In a game with Danville the Admirals were still behind, 36-35, when the final gun went off, but high-scoring "Snuffy" Smith had the ball in the air and it dropped through the hoop for a 37-36 victory.

Smith leads the team in scoring with an 18.6 average, while the big center, Herb Brown, has averaged 17 points per game. The team is well over fifty per cent in its foul shooting. Perrysville leads the Ashland county league and Savannah is in second place.

Deadline Set For Friendly House Meet

Only four more days remain for entering the Friendly House boxing tournament, F-H athletic director Mike Wentz announced last night. Entries close Thursday for the tournament slated Jan. 31 and Feb. 1.

Only eight local boys and one Galion youth have turned in entry blanks so far and unless late entries are heavy there may be no competition in several classes. Wentz expects entries from Galion, Marion, Mt. Vernon, Ashland and Willard. He stressed that the age limit is up to 26 and boys need not have previous experience to enter the novice class.

EARLY ENTRIES

Entered already are: Novice—Bruce Heinberger, flyweight; Ulysses Calloway, lightweight; William Wright, bantamweight; Larry Inscore, welterweight, and Ralph Grier, lightweight.

Open class: Don Esbenshade, middleweight; Howard Carney, featherweight; Bill Eccles, middleweight, and Red Mathias, heavyweight, of Galion.

Tickets for the tournament will go on sale next Wednesday. The matches are planned for the Friendly House gym, but Wentz promised that if enough advance tickets are sold they will be moved to a more accommodating site.

Big Norb Gets Two In Rally

Mansfield Senior high tried to give away a ball game last night in the Tyger lair but was unsuccessful in its effort and managed to eke out a 40-to 37 victory over Akron North.

The Tygers passing in the fourth quarter was strictly below normal and they had to come from behind in the final four minutes to preserve the long home court winning streak. Mansfield has now won 17 in a row on the Senior high hardwood.

TYGERS OUTFOUGHT

Akron presented a hustling team which outfought the Bengals through most of the game. The Vikings lacked height and three of them fouled out trying to stop the taller Bengals.

The lead changed hands seven times before two quick baskets by Big Norb Shibinski put the Tygers in the van 38-to-37. Shibinski got the first one on a rebound and the second on a fast break. With two minutes to go Ed Schmitt connected on a one-hander to cement the result.

Senior high controlled the ball during the final minute.

Akron piled into a 12-to-7 margin at the quarter but six straight points put the Tygers back on top. The teams sparred on even terms as the Tygers led 19-to-18 with three minutes left in the half. Then Shibinski connected from the gratis line. Ken McCally came through with a one-hander, and Norb hit a one-hand jump shot to give Mansfield a 24-to-18 lead at the half.

11 POINT LEAD

Field goals by McCally and Willie Fowler and a free throw by Ferguson started the third quarter and gave Coach Vern Hoffman's team an 11-point lead. North sliced the margin to 33-to-28 at the quarter and got six more points at the outset of the fourth stanza to take a one-point lead.

McCally knotted the score with a foul shot but North moved back in front, 37 to 34, to set the stage for Shibinski.

Although the Tygers foul shooting was spotty at times, they made 12 of 28 to offset a field goal deficiency. North had 16 field goals to 14 for the Tygers who had one of their off shooting nights. The Bengals tried 58 shots.

Ferguson made five of six from the foul line and McCally three of four. Shibinski paced the Tygers with 12 points but yielded honors to Dick Gowin, Akron's one-handed ace, who hit 13.

RESERVES WIN

Gene Fidler, big sophomore center, ripped the nets for 20 points to pace the reserves to a 40-31 victory over the Akron second team.

It was the ninth victory in ten starts for Coach Fred Staub's sophomores who jumped into a 14-6 lead in the first period and held on. They gained only one point the remainder of the route.

George Shoulders, regular guard on the team, saw little action as he was late getting to the gym.

Mitsch's Beat A League Team For 15th Victory

Frankie Mitsch's Corner store won its 15th game in 16 starts last night in the Madison high gym by a 51-46 margin over Richland Beverage of the City A league. Beverage was a last-minute replacement for the Butler Boosters.

Mitsch's trailed by one point at the half and were tied at the end of the third period but rallied in the final minutes to pull away.

Butler Junior high defeated East Mansfield, 21-15, in one preliminary while Lincoln Heights took Woodville, 25-16, in the other.

Senior High Field House Construction Secondary to Grade Schools

By CHARLEY STINE

Actual work on Senior high school's new field house appears to be at least a year away but its size, location, and accommodations already are a major issue with the City Board of Education.

"No action will be taken in the near future," says Harold Arlin, school board president, "because we feel that the construction of the new grade school buildings should be done first. However, we are thinking about plans for the field house."

Three sites are under consideration. One is to the north of the present gym, in the large yard beside the school; another is to the rear of Arlin Field in the football parking lot; the third is to the west of Stadium Field. All three are already school property.

Since plans also call for the holding of gym classes in the field house, the site beside the school would be ideal. However, it is not expected that the lot will be found large enough once surveying is done. Parking would also be a problem.

The location behind Arlin Field would be perfect both in the respect of parking and ample room for the building itself, but could hardly be used conveniently for gym classes.

The third site near the old football field would be a compromise although it, too, would not afford an over amount of parking space.

For ideas on the actual size and construction of the building, a committee of board members plan to visit a number of field houses in the state soon. Probably the most definate thing at the present time is that plans call for the gym to seat from three to five thousand people.

No blue-prints or sketches have been solicited although one architect has voluntarily submitted one to the board.

The one-quarter million dollars expected to be spent on the field house was appropriated last November election. However, the limited amount of labor by the contractors is expected to hold up work at least a year. Work on six badly-needed elementary schools is to be at least started before anything is done on the athletic building.

The field house will tentatively be prepared to accommodate basketball, swimming, indoor track, tennis, and boxing.

Mitsch's Plays 2 Games In One Night

4 Contests Slated On Wednesday

Frankie Mitsch's Corner store basketball team which has won seven straight games in the Class B National basketball league will get a supreme test this week when it plays two games in Wednesday night's four contest program.

Mitsch's will meet the Salesmen in the second game on the program at 7:45 p. m and will engage Four Square Gospel at 9:45

In the A loop, league-leading Ohio Sport Center has only one contest scheduled, tangling with Penn Auto-Sporting Goods at 8 p. m. Monday at John Simpson. Penn Auto has been beaten only once and will tie for first place if it wins Leading scorers in all the leagues remained the same this week. Ed Vanderbilt leads the City A with 127 points, Don Sands paces the American with 111 and Bob Milligan tops the National with 102.

Plan Six-Sport Athletic Program for Local Women

A six-sport woman's athletic program for spring and summer play was announced last night by Mrs. Virginia Kirby, head of the women's division of the City Recreation department.

The present Wednesday night volleyball league will continue for five weeks and will be followed by basketball, indoor badminton, and a table tennis tournament. Tennis, golf, and softball will begin as soon as the weather permits.

The program in whole or in part is open to any woman in the city except high school girls. Mrs. Kirby hopes to have 300 women in the program by summer. At present some 50 girls play in the regular Wednesday night volleyball sessions at Johnny Appleseed junior high.

ALL STAR SQUAD

An all-star team from the five-team volleyball league will be chosen this week to play an exhibition on a city league basketball program soon. A banquet to award trophies to the league champion is planned for March 2 at the Southern hotel.

A basketball league will open March 9 and continue on Wednesdays and indoor badminton will begin weekly sessions the following night. Table tennis will also be played on Thursdays.

Indoor instruction will be given in tennis and regular play on the outdoor courts will begin as soon as the weather permits. Golf instruction and league play, followed by a tournament in August is also planned.

A softball league will also be organized if plans materialize.

Church Teams Lose All Games In 'Y' Carnival

Church league teams proved to be charitable hosts in the triple-header cage carnival last night at the YMCA as they lost all three games.

The 164th Fighter squadron defeated Evangelical United Brethren in the feature, 24-16, Shiloh Legion edged First Christian 40-34 and the Ontario high reserves blasted First Lutheran of the Junior league, 37-17, in the other games.

Leading individual score of the night was the 15 points dumped in by Swartz of Shiloh.

Patty Berg Holds Lead In Women's Open at Tampa

TAMPA, Fla.—(AP)—Red-haired Patty Berg soared to a 76 in the Tampa Women's Open Golf tournament here today, but held first place by one slim stroke at the end of 54 holes.

Her score over the 6,093-yard par 70 Palma Ceia course is 77-68-76—221.

Tied for second at 222 were two other pros, Louise Suggs and Babe Zaharias.

Miss Suggs, in the last three-some to finish, missed a three-foot put on the 18th which would have given her a tie with Miss Berg. The little Georgian also missed a three-footer on the ninth.

Mrs. Zaharias, improving every day, has chalked up 78-73-71.

Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, who was in a tie for first on opening day and second yesterday, blew up to 79 for a 228 total. She previously had 74-75.

Nationally Famous Keglers to Roll Here

One of the really fine bowling teams in the country will meet the best in Mansfield in a special exhibition match scheduled for the Colony alleys next Saturday night.

The visiting club is Stroh's Bohemian Beer of Detroit, which has a long list of national and international records.

Furnishing the opposition will be Bissman's, leaders of the City A league.

Stroh's is the only team ever to win the ABC championship, world's match game championship, and International championship all in the same year. The team holds a 3123 average in the Greater Detroit All-Star league, which means that all five men average over 200 pins per game.

Four time holders of the national match game title; the team is maintained by Stroh's for publicity purposes and was booked here because Bissman's is a dealer for its products. There will be no admission charged.

Members of the Detroit team, several of whom are nationally known, are Carl F. Peters, Dale Ward, Buzz Fazio, William Kenet, Harold Asplund, and Frank Franz.

Mansfield bowlers still hold first place in all divisions as the annual North Central District Elks tournament goes into its second week-end at Wooster. The joust will run through Feb. 13.

The Head team tops five-man team scores with a 2914 while only one pin behind is the Hide quintet, also of Mansfield. Leo Yuncker and Bart Haley lead doubles play with 1306 and J. Lannon is the singles leader with 689. Both the singles and doubles marks are expected to withstand the firing of all 83 teams registered to compete.

★

Joe Laibach, secretary of the City Bowling association, announced last night that the prize list for the annual city tournament will be drawn up at an association meeting Tuesday night.

Entries closed a week ago and play will begin Feb. 15.

St. John's Club Wins Sixth In Church League

St. John's yesterday won its sixth straight victory in Junior Church league play.

The Johnnies won a close decision over First Christian, 35 to 32. The latter quintet held a 16-to-11 margin at the half.

Second-place St. Paul's won its fifth victory in six games, defeating First Methodist, 42 to 20. Tucker and Percy scored 35 of the winners' points.

In other games, First Lutheran came from behind to beat Grace Gospel, 20 to 17, and Central Methodist knocked off Park Avenue Baptist, 15 to 9.

Frankie Mitsch's Cage Team Plays at Ontario

The Ontario Vets will entertain Frankie Mitsch's Corner store cagers in a benefit game for the Ontario Volunteer fire department Tuesday evening.

The game will follow a 7:30 p. m. preliminary on the Ontario high floor.

Senior Church Hoopsters Open Second Round At 'Y'

Second round of competition in the Senior Church basketball league will get underway Tuesday night with the regular slate of three games starting at 7 p. m. on the YMCA hardwood.

First Methodist copped the first round with six straight victories with Park Avenue Baptist finishing one game behind

The Methodists collide with First Christian in the third game on Tuesday's card. St. Matthew's and Ontario open the program with the Baptists going against United Brethren in the second game. Lucas Lutheran draws a bye.

★

Bob Meeker and Trent Snavely, both of St. Matthew's, pace the scoring with 81 and 77 points, respectively.

Two Ice Shows Are on Ropes For This Year

Officials of Mansfield's two ice carnivals are still bewildered today by the lack of ice but so is the majority of the population in the mid-west.

The promise of cold weather has been almost as daily prognostication of the experts. But no ice.

Mansfield's public school ice meet and the News-Journal Silver Skates both are on the ropes for this year. The school competition was scheduled yesterday with the big N-J meet listed next Sunday.

Harry Mehork and Stam Karnen, directors of the two meets, just don't know what to do. They have postponed the blade competition indefinitely. Both directors realize that if ice isn't forthcoming in the next week or so the jousts will have to be postponed until 1950

ENTRIES COME IN

Meanwhile a few entries continue to reach the News-Journal sports department.

Coach William Pedigo of Union high school has entered a team in the eight-lap relay. The Union entrants are John Franks, Ben Barth, John Hale and Dave Walker. All except Hale are performing on the Union varsity basketball team

Addition of Union makes three teams in the high school division. Others are Mansfield Senior high and Mansfield Madison

Other entries in the N-J carnival are: Ronald Betscher, 8, 457 McPherson street, Nancy Lou Pore 13, 1313 Superior street, and Marilyn Sholoya, 12, 287 Superior street.

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Michigan will open six weeks of spring football practice March 28 Coach Bennie G. Oosterbaan has announced

Todd Returns To Aggie Club

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — (AP) — Dick Todd, Texas A. and M.'s greatest running back, who gained fame and fortune with the Washington Redskins in professional football, will return to Aggieland

Todd has been named backfield coach of Texas A. and M. by Athletic Director Bill Carmichtel He will report Feb. 1, three days before the start of the Aggies' spring football practice.

Todd finished at A. and M. in 1939 and except for two and one-half years in the navy has been with the Redskins ever since.

These Coaches Like Officials

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS (AP) It must be a friendly little loop the Mid-American conference

Commissioner Dave Reese the genial Dayton dent t recently mailed a list of the conference football officials to the six coaches

Butler, Western Michigan Cincinnati, Miami, Ohio U and Western Reserve and asked them to vote for or against using each athlete.

Four coaches sent the entire list back saying they'd be glad to have any of them officiate their games. A fifth asked that one certain official not be assigned to its games but that it would not protest such assignment. The sixth was opposed to one official

Thus it appears Dr Dave has fewer officiating troubles than any commissioner in the country. The former Denison athletic great summed up the situation with

"Our officials are either good or our coaches are very tolerant. I know our coaches are very tolerant, but I also feel we have some very fine officials."

If any of you scholastic football coaches are looking for a good, tough football game for next Oct 14 you might get in touch with Elmo Lingrel, athletic director of Middletown high school The Middies have an open date that day (or night) and Elmo would like to fill it

★

When they pass out the palms for shooting free throws at the end of the collegiate basketball season, the chances are Cedarville's Walter Blaterie will be right up front or thereabouts

Blaterie, sophomore guard from Akron, is averaging 10 to 12 points per game, but his accuracy from the free throw line is amazing to his coach, Mendell Beattie.

The youngster has caged 40 of 53 shots from the charity line, a 754 percentage which ranks near the nation's peak. The Cedarville star hit 11 in a row against Marietta, and eight straight against Morehead (Ky.) State Teachers
